PHIL'S WRONG SAYS BENNETT

DELTA (CP)—A forecast by Welfare Minister P. A. Gaglardi that British Columbia's homeowner grant would be increased $30 next year was rejected by Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

Gaglardi said in Kamloops last week that the grant would be increased to $180 in the next provincial budget.

The premier, who is also the provincial finance minister, told questioning reporters here Monday that "I think Mr. Gaglardi is a very outspoken person. I would like to know where he got his information."

"It is his personal view and it will not be substantiated.

"It will not be implemented," Mr. Bennett said.

Interest, Taxes Hike Price Index

OTTAWA (CP)—The consumer price index rose 2-10ths of a point to 126.8 in October from 126.6 in September, mainly because of higher interest rates, property taxes and rents, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The index, based on 1961 consumer prices equalling 100, was 121.4 in October last year.

Food prices eased moderately last month, with the food group index dropping to 127.8 from 128.5 in September. It was 122.9 in October last year.

DBS has no index of incomes exactly paralleling the index of consumer prices, an indicator of the cost of living, but its index of average weekly wages and salaries paid in a wide cross-section of industry rose in August to 152.3 from 151.1 in July the latest figures available. In August last year, this index—also based on 1961 equalling 100—was 141.8.

The consumer price index in August was 126.9, compared with 126.4 in July and 120.7 in August last year.

WAGES INCREASE

Average wages and salaries were thus up eight-tenths of one per cent between July and August this year and 7.4 per cent higher than in August last year. Consumer prices in August were up four-tenths of one per cent for the month and 5.1 per cent for the year.

Since then, consumer prices dipped in September and rose again last month, but the October index is still a tenth of a point below its August peak.

Old Guard Expels Gandhi

By Times News Service

NEW DELHI — The conservative old guard of India's ruling Congress Party today expelled Prime Minister Indira Gandhi from party membership. She remains as prime minister.

Mrs. Gandhi is expected to seek a fresh vote of confidence Thursday at a meeting of all 431 Congress members of Parliament but a more serious test comes after Parliament begins its winter session Nov. 18. The split within her own party forces her to rely on leftist, Communist and independent members to keep her government in office.

Hundreds of demonstrators today began converging on the 51-year-old prime minister's headquarters in her support and a demonstration leader said it was "just the beginning" of a struggle against her opponents, known as "the Syndicate".

Bandits Get $2 Million

NEW YORK (AP)—A Wells Fargo armored truck, taking recipts estimated at more than $2,000,000 from the Aqueduct horse-racing track to a bank, was held up today by three armed men who escaped with the cash, police said.

The holdup occurred in Brooklyn.

Montreal City Hall Under Police Guard

MONTREAL (CP) — Access routes to city hall will be under police guard today against a possible demonstration to protest a city bylaw proposal banning all demonstrations likely to be violent.

City council is scheduled to meet at 2:30 p.m. to discuss the proposal which provides for a 60-day jail term and a $100 fine for anyone taking part in a violent demonstration.

A mass demonstration is scheduled for about the same time and a second protest involving the burning of a symbolic copy of the draft bylaw in front of city hall has been called for 8 p.m.

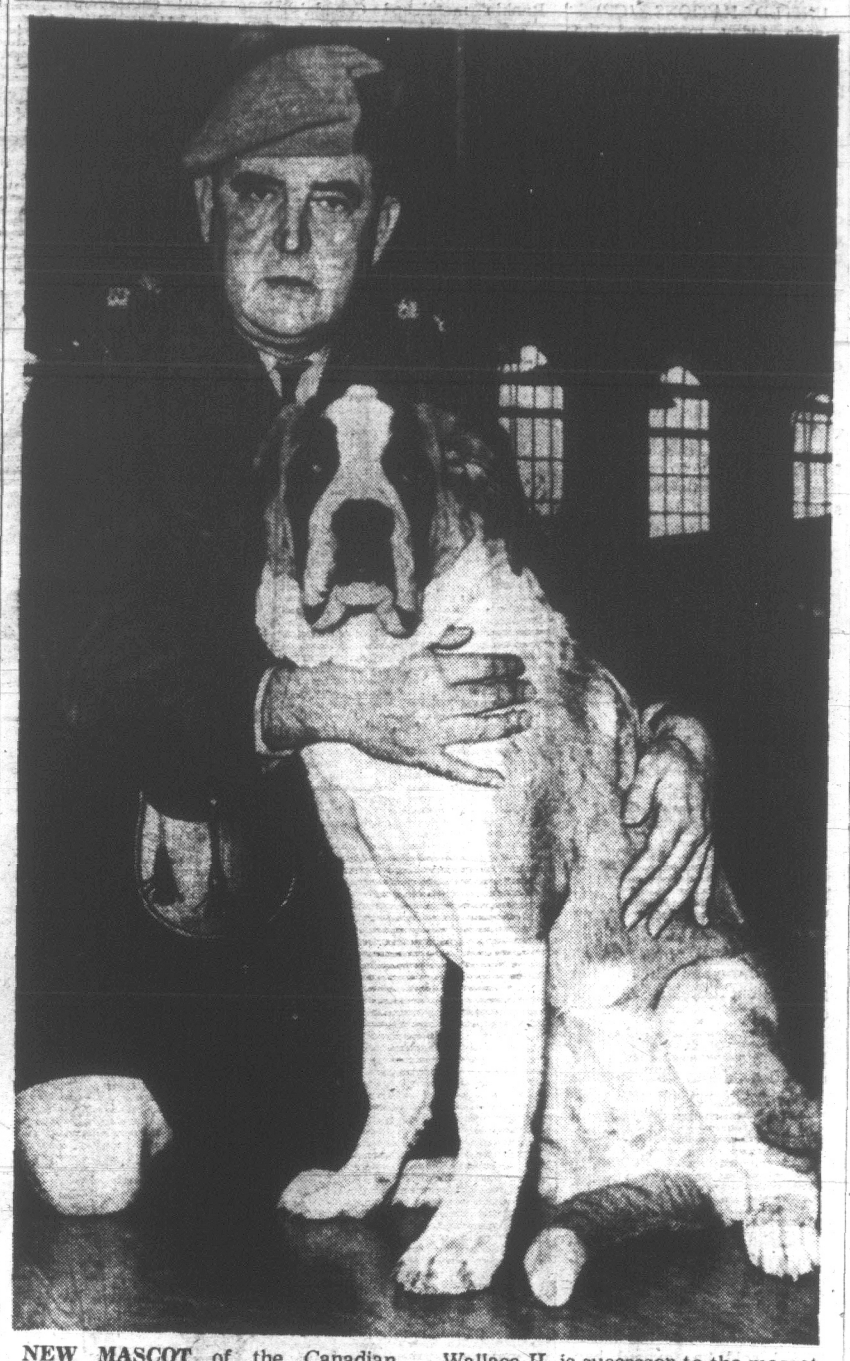

Although Mayor Jean Drapeau's administration has been criticized in the past by leaders of various demonstrations, no protest has yet been in front of city hall.

A few weeks ago, nationalist, separatist and left-wing groups which have individually organized previous demonstrations banded together in the Front du Quebec Francais to fight the Quebec government's Bill 63 on language.

Now, the FQF, though not organizing, is supporting today's demonstration.

NEW MASCOT of the Canadian Scottish (Princess Mary's) Regiment, a six-month-old St. Bernard pup, snuggles up to the regiment's commanding officer, Lt.-Col. G. M. Urquhart, after it was officially turned over Tuesday in a ceremony at Bay Street Armory. The pup, Wallace II, is successor to the mascot Wallace, the dog which went overseas with the regiment in the Second World War, and returned to Victoria where it died in the 1950s. The ashes of the first regimental mascot are kept in a silver urn in the officers' mess. (Robin Clarke photo.)

Everything I Say Turns Into Land Mine: Philip

LONDON (CP) — Prince Philip is beginning to fear that everything he says turns into a land mine.

His latest comment and his brush with reporters has raised questions whether the Queen's consort will be as free and easy about his public remarks as he has been in the past.

The Queen is known to be unhappy about Philip's public airing of the royal financial problems though an informant said there is no truth to published speculation that her advisers had considered attempts to squelch his United States television comment.

In that pre-recorded program, aired in North America and Britain last Sunday, Philip said the palace goes into the red next year and that the Royal Family might have to move out of Buckingham Palace into smaller premises. A palace official said later that Philip was joking about the possible move.

That led to a storm of public comment and debate in Britain on whether Parliament should provide the Queen with an immediate financial increase.

COMMENTS IN HOUSE

It also led to Prime Minister Wilson's comment in the House of Commons Tuesday that there will be no immediate increase and that there will be no parliamentary committee set up to consider the royal purse until the next Parliament, which would be after the 1970 or 1971 general election.

Wilson indicated there will be a deficit in the so-called civil list payment to the Queen next year but that the Queen has sufficient private funds to meet the deficit.

This has led to fresh newspaper debate whether the Queen, reported to be the world's third richest woman, should have to use her private funds to finance her state functions and administration.

From Wilson's Commons statement it was evident that the government and palace officials had engaged in a struggle over the royal financial situation months ago and that Wilson had firmly put his foot down on any immediate increase. That may have been the reason for Philip's somewhat out-of-tune remarks in the U.S.—to embarrass the Labor administration.

The impact of Philip's television interview recorded in Washington, followed by a New York TV appearance where he spoke of an abdication "rumor," have left his advisers concerned. One official said the statements were just a bit too flippant; a bit too much out of character.

This may have unsettled the prince who suddenly boiled up and tussled with two British Press Association reporters when he found they were reporting remarks he made at a Smaller Businesses Association luncheon Tuesday.

Claiming that he had not been told that reporters would be present, he demanded of one reporter: "Who are you?" and "What the hell are you doing here?"

When he saw another reporter dictating his story in a telephone booth, Philip tapped

IN LABRADOR Crash Kills Executives

Big Hydro Project Seen in Danger

LABRADOR CITY, Nfld. (CP)—An executive jet attempting an instrument landing crashed in an open-pit iron mine Tuesday night and killed all eight men aboard, including some top executives of two companies involved in building one of the world's major hydroelectric power projects in rugged Labrador.

Among the victims was Donald J. McParland, 40, president and chief executive officer of British Newfoundland Corp., Ltd., and president of Churchill Falls Labrador Corp.

The twin-engined de Havilland DH-125 slammed into a 150-foot cliff while trying to land at Labrador City in fog and drizzle.

Churchill Falls Power Site

It was a disastrous blow to Brinco, which lost two other executives, and to allied firms, which lost another three.

The two-member crew also died.

Brinco and the other firms — Acres Canadian Bechtel of Churchill Falls and Canadian Bechtel Ltd.—are the builders of the $953,000,000 Churchill Falls hydroelectric power project.

The crash occurred at 6:32 p.m. AST when the twin-engine de Havilland aircraft was attempting an instrument landing.

But the Brinco aircraft hit what is known as the "Smallwood mine," owned by Iron Ore of Canada.

An RCMP officer, one of the first on the scene, said darkness blotted out much of the crash area, but pieces of plane were strewn over a large area—as well as bodies."

The RCMP officer said there was "no doubt" the men died upon impact. Wreckage was strewn on both the top and bottom of a 150-foot cliff.

No one saw the accident, but area residents reported a loud noise followed by a flash or fire at the scene, six miles northeast of Labrador City.

Crash to Be Investigated

The city is about 350 miles northeast of Quebec City in a Labrador section of Newfoundland. It is about five miles from the Quebec border.

The last message from the 500-mile-per-hour de Havilland was to the control tower asking for landing instructions.

It was en route from Churchill Falls, Nfld., usually a half-hour flight over the 140-mile distance.

The crash will be investigated, starting today, by department of transport officials from Moncton, N.B., and Ottawa.

The other dead:

—Eric G. Lambert, vice-president of finance for Brinco and Churchill Falls.

—John Lethbridge, executive assistant to Mr. McParland.

—Fred E. Ressegieu, general manager of Acres Canadian Bechtel of Churchill Falls and vice-president of Canadian Bechtel Ltd.

—J. Herbert Jackson, assistant general manager of Acres Canadian Bechtel and a vice-president of Canadian Bechtel Ltd.

—Arthur J. Cantle, assistant general manager of construction for Acres Canadian Bechtel at Churchill Falls.

The crew members were pilot Jack MacLeod, 39, and Robin Elley, both employed by Atlantic Aviation of Canada Ltd. in Montreal. Mr. MacLeod, a native of Nova Scotia, had just moved to Montreal with his wife and two children from Toronto.

The de Havilland was carrying Mr. McParland on a whirlwind speaking tour of the lower St. Lawrence region, then north to Labrador.

In a Montreal speech Monday he described the federal white paper on tax reform as a "great disappointment".

He was especially critical of proposals to reduce exploration and development incentives in mining and other resource industries.

He was a successor this year to Donald Gordon, the

Brinco Names Henry Borden Interim Chief

ST. JOHN'S Nfld. (CP)—A provincial government spokesman said today Henry Borden will act as chief executive officer of the British Newfoundland Corp. and its subsidiary, Churchill Falls Labrador Corp. Until a successor is chosen to replace Donald J. McParland, killed in a plane crash.

Borden has been a member of Brincos board of directors for a number of years.

Gordon F. Pushie, the government's representative on the board, said an executive meeting would be called within 48 hours, probably in Montreal, to decide on a successor.

Brinco Stock Dips Slightly

MONTREAL (CP) — The price of shares of British Newfoundland Corp. Ltd. declined slightly in early trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange today following the death of president Donald J. McParland and two other top Brinco executives in a plane crash Tuesday night.

Brinco lost ⅛ to $5 shortly after the Montreal markets opened for trading.

'Shocked Beyond Words'

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood said today he was "shocked beyond words" to learn of Tuesday night's plane crash that took the lives of Donald J. McParland and five other executives in the $950,000,000 Churchill Falls hydro-electric development.

Mr. Smallwood said in a statement through his office here Mr. McParland was "highly regarded as one of Canada's top business geniuses."

Apollo May Be Delayed By Hydrogen Tank Leak

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — A leak was discovered in the insulating vacuum of a hydrogen tank in the Apollo 12 moonship today. The problem threatened to delay the start of the second moon landing mission as much as a month.

Apollo 12 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Richard Gordon and Alan Bean were targeted for blastoff at 8:22 a.m. Friday. But an informed source said there is a chance they now will not be able to go the moon until December. The space agency said the extent of the problem could not be immediately assessed.

The trouble interrupted an almost flawless series of pre-launch preparations. It was discovered late in the morning and officials immediately began an investigation to see what was wrong.

The problem involved one of two 28-gallon liquid hydrogen tanks in Apollo 12's service module, the unit that services the Apollo command module. Liquid hydrogen must be kept at 423 degrees below zero and each of the tanks has a vacuum jacket to insulate it.

The trouble was detected when technicians began flowing the frigid hydrogen into the tank. The hydrogen, used to fuel the spacecraft's fuel cell power generators, was drained from the tank after the leak was discovered.

THIS IS THE WAY IT IS in Britain between the press and Prince Philip after the royal consort berated two reporters while speaking at a Small Business Association meeting. The Prince, surprised reporters were at the meeting, asked one: "What the hell are you doing here?" and told the other: "I don't want anything of what I said quoted." The palace later issued an apology to the pair. (AP Wirephoto.)

him on the shoulder and warned him that nothing he had said should be published.

The prince had maintained at the informal luncheon that smaller businesses had nothing to fear from the big international companies since most of these big companies were based on the smaller suppliers.

When the reporter argued that he had only reported Philip's innocuous remarks, the prince burst out with an angry report about "chaps like you" and then was gently nudged to his car by officials.

Later he sent an apology to the two reporters and at an appearance at a dinner function told his listeners that he rose somewhat reluctantly, for "everything I say nowadays seems as if I trod on a land mine."

At that dinner Tuesday night, he had to enter the hotel through a rear door since he was speaking partly in aid of the Jewish National Fund and pro-Arab demonstrators were outside the front door.

The palace said later that Philip has a large number of public engagements ahead of him and that none will be cancelled.

In the Commons, three Liberals tabled a motion congratulating Philip "on the style and humor with which he answered questions put to him on television"—apparently a reference to the two U.S. broadcasts.

The signatories regretted that his critics "would appear to have lost their sense of humor."

FIRM PAYS $7.2 MILLION FOR OIL SPILL

Times News Services

LONDON — Owners of the Torrey Canyon have agreed to pay $7.2 million for damage done when the giant oil tanker ran aground in 1967 coating English and French beaches with oil.

A spokesman for the British government said the money will be split evenly by the two countries involved and accepted the amount in settlement of law suits asking for about twice as much.

The Union Oil Company of California was the principal party involved. It is believed insurance companies in the U.K. and U.S. met the cost of settlement.

Canada Proposes Pollution Penalties

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada today mentioned the possibility of international penalties against countries that pollute the human environment.

The possibility was contained in a speech by Canadian delegate Bruce Rankin before the General Assembly's economic and financial committee. The committee is discussing the whole range of human environment, particularly a planned international conference to be held in Stockholm in 1972.

Rankin, discussing what Canada hopes will come from the conference, said:

"Specific guidelines are needed which would set out the rights of states to a sound environment and the obligation which states have to ensure that they do not contribute to the destruction of that environment.

"It is possible that a set of principles can be devised which could be adjudicated and that penalties be prescribed for failure to abide by those principles."

Rankin mentioned Canada's strong concern over environmental problems, and the primary concern about Arctic pollution.

DDT Ban In U.S. Favored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary Robert H. Finch has accepted and sent to the White House a report urging that major use of DDT be ended in the United States over a two-year period, top government officials said today.

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Finch had not yet made a specific recommendation on the findings of the study on harmful effects of the pesticide.

But John G. Veneman, undersecretary of the Health, Education and Welfare Department, said Finch had discussed the proposal with two cabinet colleagues, Agriculture secretary Clifford M. Hardin and Interior secretary Walter J. Hickel, and both were "receptive to the idea." Hickel said he favored banning DDT.

Ziegler said the report from Finch had been referred to Dr. Lee A. Dubridge, President Nixon's scientific adviser, and that it would be discussed further by the environmental quality council which Dubridge heads.

Riot Troops Moving In

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government today began moving about 9,000 riot-trained regular troops into the Washington area as a "purely precautionary measure" in advance of this week's anti-Vietnam war demonstrations.

The defence department announced that paratroops of the U.S. Army's 82nd Airborne Division arrived from Fort Bragg, N.C. A regiment of the 2nd Marine Division from Camp Lejeune, N. C., will arrive tonight.

'Sir Loin' Table Can't Be Sold

LONDON (Reuters) — An English aristocrat was forbidden Wednesday to sell a family heirloom—an oak table on which King James I is said to have knighted a loin of beef.

Tradition says James, who ruled from 1603 to 1625, named the meat "Sir Loin"—thus adding a new word to the English language. The table has been kept in the aristocratic de Hoghton family estate near Blackburn in the north of England ever since.

A High Court judge heard that the present baronet, 50-year-old Sir Antony de Hoghton, tried to sell the table and seven other family antiques to a London dealer.

Trustees of the family estate obtained a temporary court order stopping the sale of the antiques and the judge made a final order after hearing that Sir Anthony owns the heirlooms only for his lifetime and not absolutely.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

My dentist has it made. He is past 60 and heading for retirement. His children are grown and educated and he is saving money only for himself and his wife. So, his fees are much lower than the dentists around town who have three or four kids in school, and he isn't unwilling to give good advice on how to save money on dental bills. One piece of advice is to never go to a dentist except when the sun is shining.

Now that sounds like pretty drastic action, especially if a rainy spell should come down on the city for any number of days. But he laughed and said the advice was good. The reason for sunshine when you go to the dentist is that when the barometer falls and there is no sunshine, the tiny air space around a molar may tend to cause pain in what is a perfectly good tooth.

When the barometer falls, the volume of air space changes. Although the toothache might be of very short duration, you may think you have a cavity and make a date for the dentist. And when you get there, he finds no cavity. My dentist would blame your toothache on the weather.

Early Deprivation a Risk To Development of Child

A Vancouver psychiatrist told a meeting Monday he is strongly against adoption agencies that fail to explain the dangers of deprivation in a child's early life.

Dr. Keith Akins was speaking on child development in the family at a lecture sponsored by the Greater Victoria Foster Parents Association and the Greater Victoria Teacher's Association at the Institute of Adult Studies.

"From six months to 36 months is when a child needs to attach itself to one individual," he said, pointing out this was a crucial period in developing an intact nervous system for later life.

He said major behavioral problems in child psychiatry are caused by family interactions. A poorly socialized set of parents means the child will have a hard time trying to socialize.

This is because a child follows example as a main part of his development and angry parents doing angry things will influence the child in anti-social acts.

Children with the most problems growing up other than the brain-damaged child are those with no parents.

A child with parents may lack a sound moral background or be overindulged or be exploited by his parents which leads to an improper experience in relating to other people, a vital part of adult life.

"The best way to raise children under the age of six is to have someone around 24 hours a day to look after them," Akins added.

Veteran's Day Parades Become 'Nixon' Rallies

By The Associated Press

Hundreds of Veteran's Day ceremonies, many aimed at giving President Nixon's so-called "silent majority" a chance of piping up, drew thousands of flag-waving citizens in cities and hamlets across the United States Tuesday.

Some of the larger crowds—estimated by police at more than 10,000 each—were in Washington, Boston and Tallahassee, Fla.

Massachusetts Gov. Francis W. Sargent led 11,000 marchers in Boston. The Tallahassee parade featured traditional floats and civic displays.

In the U.S. capital, organizers of the Veterans Day Freedom Rally at the Washington Monument could claim success as the estimated turnout matched their predictions.

The mostly white, neatly dressed gathering in Washington applauded and shouted approval during the 2½ hours as speaker after speaker attacked leaders of the war protest movement.

Some 35,000 persons were on the same ground Oct. 15 for music, speeches and the beginning of a candlelight march the night of the Vietnam Day Moratorium. And it was as an answer to this war protest and others that the "freedom rally" Tuesday was declared to make something extra of the Veterans Day observance.

Although the day was dedicated to honoring members of the U.S. armed forces of past and present, many citizens who back Nixon's Vietnam policy and oppose war protests took advantage of the occasion to show their feelings by showing the flag and driving with their car lights on.

In Pensacola, Fla., after a "biggest ever" Veterans Day parade, program chairman Clarence Morrow said: "The silent majority showed their respect for the president, this country and the flag today."

Near a monument honoring First World War dead at Ridgewood, N.J., five men and a woman camped out in tents overnight and reported collecting more than 400 signatures supporting the U.S. policy in Vietnam.

BOER WAR VETERANS FORM HONOR GUARD

VANCOUVER (CP) — Veterans of the Boer War stole the limelight during the Remembrance Day parade here Tuesday without even having to march.

Albert Rippon, 88, Gerald Webster, 90, Albert Hannan, 88, Joseph Gregson, 93, and Archie McAdam, 88, were promoted to form an honor guard for Lieutenant-Governor John Nicholson and Mayor Tom Campbell.

"We wanted to march but they talked us out of it," said Mr. Rippon, who carried the Boer War (1899-1902) Veterans' Association South African Campaign flag.

3 Korean Colonels Die in Plane Crash

SAIGON (AP) — Small scattered actions were reported in South Vietnam today, with 69 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese, three Americans and one South Vietnamese militia-man killed in clashes in the northern provinces and along Saigon's outer defences. Thirteen Americans were wounded and two are missing.

Along the central coast near Qui Nhon, a plane with eight South Korean officers on an inspection tour crashed, killing all aboard. Three of the officers were colonels who were promoted posthumously to brigadier-general.

The plane crashed into Mount Bong Chieu, 100 miles south of Da Nang, as it was preparing to land at Qui Nhon.

An Act of Sanity

IT IS HEARTENING TO KNOW that the federal government is alive to the many dangers of pollution, both immediate and long-term, and that it plans legislation in a number of fields which will protect not only man and his environment but also the wild life which is this country's heritage.

In his address to the Commons arising from the Speech from the Throne, Prime Minister Trudeau declared as one of the basic principles of his government that "we will never sacrifice, in the name of progress, a clean and healthy environment to industrial or commercial development." In line with this, there will be a bill to prevent pollution of lakes and rivers, and one to govern the operation of "appliances that emit radiation." Automobile and truck exhaust fumes are also under study.

These topics were on the agenda of Mr. Trudeau's visit last week to New York, where he talked with U.N. Secretary-General U Thant on an international approach to pollution control. This involved "a new concept," he said, "an international legal regime designed to ensure to human beings the right to live in a wholesome natural environment."

But it was in regard to the far North, and the responsibilities of Canada's sovereignty in the Arctic regions, that Mr. Trudeau was particularly explicit to Parliament.

Mr. Trudeau rejected any thought of closing the waters of the Far North to other nations. But at the same time he regarded as a "default of Canada's obligations" any welcome to all comers "without let or hindrance." For in the latter event it would be impossible to extend to the Arctic land and seas the protection that is necessary against the danger of industrial pollution.

The so-called barren wastes of the far North, quite apart from supporting a human population, are the breeding grounds of millions of sea birds. The Canadian Arctic is the nesting ground of all the Greater Snow Geese in the world. Four million migratory birds nest on the coast of Somerset Island; whales, seals, walrus inhabit the adjacent seas. This natural life depends on the existence of an unpolluted environment — an environment, says Mr. Trudeau, "which only Canada can take the lead in protecting."

It is clear that this will be a prominent feature of Canada's claim to the northern area waters. Action along this line would extend protection not only for the benefit of Canadians, Mr. Trudeau emphasizes, but for all the peoples of the world.

Mr. Trudeau obviously recognizes, as many other Canadians do, that with the rapid increases in population, growing urbanization, more widely spread industrialization, exploitation of natural resources heretofore thought inaccessible, and a global contribution to contamination of air, water and soil, that we face a critical threat.

To guard man's environment, Mr. Trudeau said, "is an act of sanity in an increasingly irresponsible world". He has pledged Canada to follow this course, and his words should be marked by all provincial governments as well. There are many leaders in this country who still see dollar-revenue as more important than any other consideration. Let them be made aware that in following this anachronistic policy they are out of step with the people of Canada.

Mr. Trudeau has set the pace with his comment on pollution: "The present government is firmly determined that no such acts of madness will be allowed to go on indefinitely, at least in Canada." That is a course which all Canadians can support, regardless of political party.

The Larger Concept

THE REPORTED DECLARATION of a Langford spokesman that "the only way we in the outer areas are going to retain any degree of control over our affairs is to gang up and vote as a bloc on all planning matters so that the urban core municipalities can't dictate to us," indicates that there will have to be a revolution in the thinking of some persons as we move into the regional system.

The representatives of the various areas will have to understand that when we function as a region—and more numerous duties are being given to the regional administration—it will be as a regional unit and no longer as a collection of individual municipalities or territories each working in its own interest. The idea of sitting on the Capital Regional District Board or its subsidiaries with the intent of forming blocs to fight against other blocs is totally to miss the whole concept of regional government.

The latest flurry of criticism of the pending Capital Regional District Planning Board is academic rather than practical. It was months ago that most members of the Capital Regional District indicated approval of the regional planning concept, while Victoria sought additional safeguards for local zoning and other localized functions. These safeguards were worked out, and it should be expected that the various elements of the region would now be fully in favor.

It is late to stage protests at this point. Regional District planning is coming: the choice is whether to participate voluntarily—with the incentive that the provincial government will not continue to give financial support to the existing Capital Region Planning Board after this year—or wait for a provincial order to impose the system.

The proposed system appears to leave the various localities adequate elbow room to plan their internal development; but where development involves the region as a whole, then the region as a whole will have jurisdiction. And the regional board members will be expected to operate as representatives of the region, not of their individual neighborhoods.

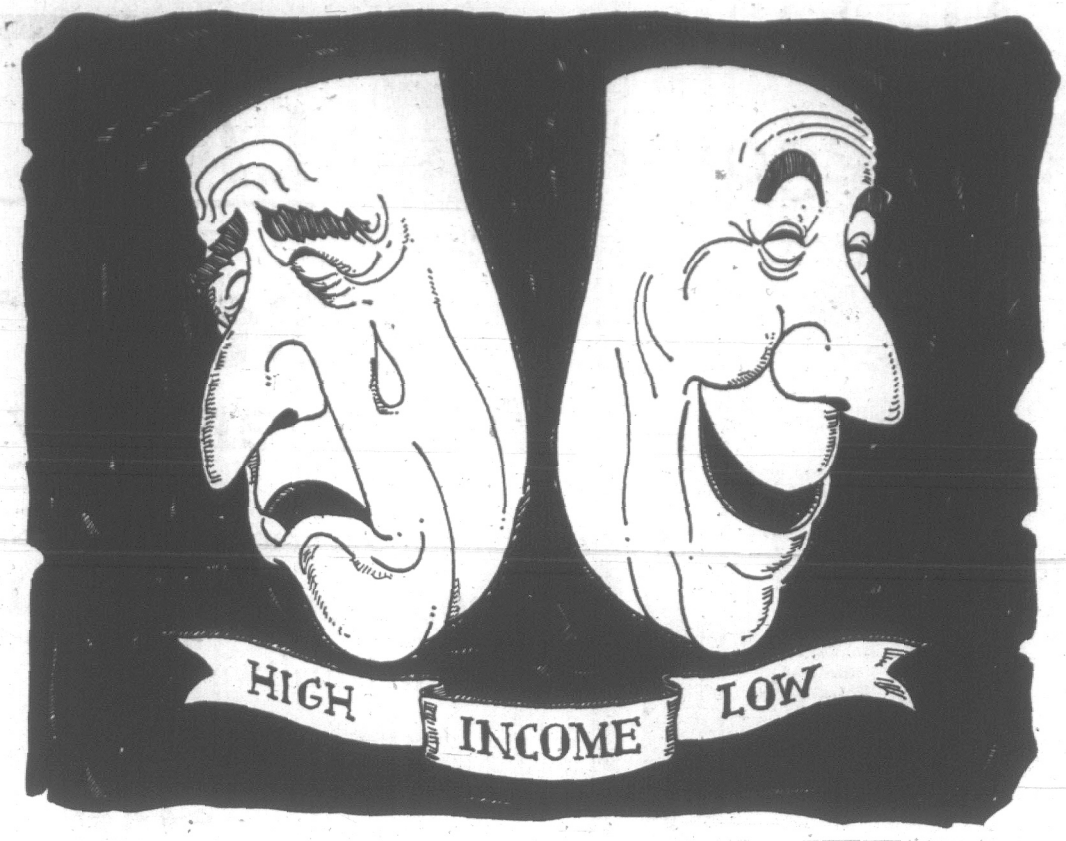

All for $5, but . . .

TO THE HOUSEWIFE SHOPping in her favorite supermarket today, an American Labor Department handbook of statistics makes incredible reading—at least in that section devoted to what you could get for your money in 1913.

For $5, it says, a shopper could purchase three pounds of round steak, two pounds of cheese, 10 pounds of flour, three of rice, five of chuck roast, two of bacon, a pound of butter, 15 pounds of potatoes, five of sugar and one of coffee, and still have enough left over to buy two loaves of bread, four quarts of milk, a dozen eggs and two cents worth of candy for the kids.

But there's a catch. In 1913 it took a factory worker 22 hours to earn five dollars. Last year, he had to put in only an hour and 40 minutes for the same return.

The good old days were great, apparently, for the housewife spending the husband's pay cheque. Getting that cheque was something else again for the husband.

O TEMPORA, O MORES — By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Galloping Down the Roman Road?

PERHAPS it has something to do with the genial climate of the Pacific coast where men can sit dreaming in the sun. Or with the wealth of this blessed littoral that frees the mind for meditation. At any rate, two eminent coastal residents, Governor Reagan of California, and J. V. Clyne, British Columbia's leading industrialist, have been meditating aloud on the same horrid possibility.

Hutchison

Is North American civilization, they ask, going the way of ancient Rome through successive stages of decadence, social anarchy and ultimate ruin? Oddly enough, in this land of boundless hope, the very Kingdom of Euphoria, both these distinguished men are pessimistic, but their question cannot be lightly answered. It needs still deeper thought.

Certainly the evidence on the bleak side is impressive, the parallel between the American and the Roman empires more exact and frightening than most of us have realized.

To take the most obvious exhibit, the American legions, like the Roman, are coming home. The United States, like Rome in its better days, grows tired of fighting the barbarians and protecting its distant friends. No doubt the secret thoughts of President Nixon today are very similar to those of the emperors who watched the outer defences fall one by one, the vacuums filled by Goths, Vandals and other tribes without law or learning. And no doubt, either, the average Roman citizen cared little about these dangers, judged the enemy harmless, went happily about his own private affairs and told himself that his state and society were indestructible.

Limits of Power

Rome learned, in short, that its power had definite limits but did not learn this fact soon enough to avoid destruction. The United States is learning that lesson, too, perhaps in time, and now, as then, it must be painful for all concerned, including Canada especially. But the internal evidence facing men like Mr. Nixon is even more chilling than the external.

The crime, the vice, the affluence and poverty side by side in Rome; the protest and dissatisfaction disrupting the richest and most successful nation so far known; the self-reliant peasantry turned into a violent urban mob and temporarily drugged with bread and circuses; the economic disorder which the Emperor Diocletian vainly tried to cure by fixing all prices and wages under the disastrous Edict of 301 A.D.; even the traffic that jammed the Roman streets until it was allowed to move, with hideous clatter, only at night — these things are quite familiar to modern America.

Except for the costumes, the languages, the circuses now endlessly repeated on television, and the traffic killing more civilians than Rome lost in any war, this might be a movie which all of us have seen before, a kind of ghastly deja vu. Yet there are great differences as well and they may comfort pessimists like Messrs. Reagan and Clyne.

Our Dilemma Worse

In some ways our dilemma is worse than that of the Romans on the eve of their fall since they could fall without using, in their desperation, the final nuclear weapon to destroy everybody. Neither the civilized peoples nor the uncivilized had the Bomb. Also, they knew nothing of the population explosion, the threat of worldwide famine, the poisoned air and water, the planet becoming uninhabitable.

On the other hand, they lacked our two largest assets — a free and educated society where men can think as they please and the mass communication to exchange their thoughts instantaneously for the joint nourishment of all. No Roman emperor could reach all his people at the same moment, as Mr. Nixon reaches them by television, almost in person. If there is wisdom in the people, as democracy assumes, they have, as the Romans had not, the chance to mobilize it and make it work before they are destroyed by their folly.

Are our assets sufficient to counterbalance our manifest destinies? Surely not without that larger, decisive asset which Rome possessed at the beginning and lost at the end — the asset of an agreed purpose and a common faith in at least something, if it was only the all-too-human gods.

Once purpose and faith perished so did Rome, as many other civilizations perished in earlier times. Once the empire ceased to rely on certain old-fashioned, simple virtues among its citizens, once its culture was based only on economic affluence and a religion of naked insatiable greed, then it followed Carthage, the richest nation of its time, which the Romans had easily conquered in their time of poverty and belief.

Some of the emperors understood these things. Marcus Aurelius, a meditative fellow, put them in his famous diary. Some modern men understand them today. And just as the latter Romans hungered for a new faith to replace the dead gods, and such eastern "mysteries" as Christianity penetrated the pagan West with interesting results, so contemporary western man can rescue his civilization only if he can believe something more durable than wealth and power.

For clearly they have failed, and their daily sacraments, a paganism as old as man, answer no question of importance, solve none of the truly dangerous problems. Hence in much more than outward, economic and political terms our civilization awaits its "mystery" which has not appeared yet. If Governor Reagan, the politician, and Mr. Clyne, the able industrialist, have any private information on this subject, the only one that really matters, I hope they will soon disclose their further meditation. All of us are ready and eager to listen.

FROM LONDON — By DAVID HUMPHREYS

Inconclusive Death Penalty Argument

"I'M thinking of murdering my wife," says the little man in the cartoon, "but I'm a bit confused about the penalties if I get caught." He is standing in a police station before a sergeant who would certainly not be able to help him.

Much would depend on the time his case went before a jury and the prevailing law governing punishment for murder. The experimental five-year abolition of capital punishment ends next July 31 when the death penalty will return unless the government does something in the meantime.

The first step came last month with the publication of the report, Murder 1957 to 1968, which is heavily laden with statistics but inconclusive enough to allow both sides in the debate to draw ammunition for the next round in the historical controversy.

If there is any message for Canada, in the first of five years of experimental abolition, it is that five years is barely long enough to establish conclusions. Yet unless the British government changes its mind as a result of the report — and there is no indication that it will — it will move to make the abolition permanent after a debate and free vote.

Alternatives are a return of the rope, considered out of the question, or an extension of the experimental period.

Meanwhile, the abolitionists can point to the report prepared by the statisticians in the Home Office to show that the risk of being murdered in England and Wales at three in a million is no higher today than it was in 1959. For some unexplained reason it has become more dangerous to live in Scotland. The risk was lower than in England and Wales 10 years ago and is now double that south of the border.

The total number of murders has increased during the trial period—from 135 in 1964 to 168 in 1968 — but the increase was mainly in the impulsive or emotional type. Britain has distinguished between capital and non-capital murder since 1957. Since most impulsive murders would fall into the non-capital category abolitionists can argue that the trial period has not been important.

No Consistent Trend

Where capital murder is involved, in crimes involving theft or other gain usually by professional criminals, the five-year pattern has not been consistent. Nine murders in that class for 1964 were followed by only four in 1965, jumped up to 21 in 1966, fell to eight in 1967 and shot up to 16 in 1968. That might begin to suggest an increase in professional killing but two out of four years is hardly conclusive.

The retentionists can find plenty of evidence to support their campaign which has been more organized and articulate in this country. The Conservative Party conference last month voted, against the advice of the leadership, to restore the rope. It reversed a conference decision two years ago in favor of abolition. The debate reflected a concern about the rising crime rate, up in 1968 by 6.8 per cent and by nearly 10 per cent for crimes of violence against persons. Sensing a potent political issue, Tory speakers lashed the government for ineffective police recruitments and their own leader, Mr. Heath, for saying that hanging should be taken out of the political arena. The police chiefs voted almost unanimously at their last annual meeting for the return of the death penalty.

The retentionists do not have to dig deeply to bolster their arguments. The fact is that total murders rose from 135 in 1964 to 148 in 1968. Taking out the cases involving insanity and suicide, we are left with an increase from 76 to 96 in what the Home Office chooses to call "normal" murders. Even better evidence comes in murders by shooting. There were 41 between 1964 and 1968 compared with only nine between 1960 and 1964. But again, closer examination shows that the murder rate was constant for 1964 and 1965 at 135 a year, then fell to 122 in 1966 before going up to 154 and falling back to 148. The report considered the population growth rate to conclude the risk of being murdered today is no higher than it was five years ago.

Canadian Exceptions

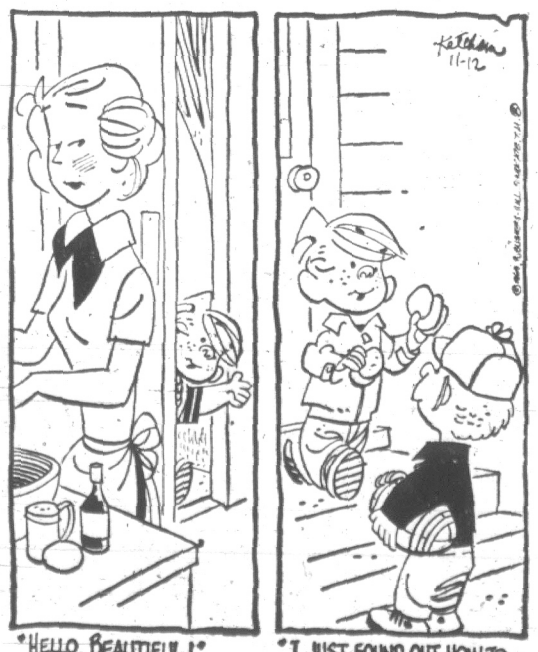

Unlike the Canadian abolition experiment which excludes prison officers and policemen, the British experiment has been total. On that aspect the report said only that 11 policemen and one prison officer were murdered between 1957 and 1968.

But according to Professor Leon Radzinowicz of the Cambridge Institute of Criminology, in the two years after abolition six policemen and one prison officer were murdered. This compared with 11 policemen murdered and no prison officers murdered in the previous 19 years. This evidence was the basis for an unsuccessful attempt to make the murder of prison officers or policemen a capital offence. Since 1966 there have been no murders of either policemen or prison officials, so this pattern also is inconclusive.

Professor Radzinowicz argues against a continuation of experiment on the grounds that there is risk of maintaining murder in a permanent "under review" status. He is also wary of having laws providing for death penalties that are seldom or never invoked, as, for instance, the Pearson government's unofficial no hanging policy. "To have statutes that are not used must, ultimately, make a parody of criminal justice."

He concludes that hanging a few people every year will not have much impact on the murder figures or the crime pattern. Instead money and initiative should be turned to more effective methods of combatting crime.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Looking Back

From the Times of Nov. 12, 1909:

It was an able presentation of the case against the McBride-Bowser-Mann railway contract that Sir Hibbert Tupper made before an overflow audience in the Broad Street Hall Saturday night. Sir Hibbert laid stress on the financial disaster which must follow such a "wild" and "unconsidered" agreement as that made with Mackenzie and Mann, and pointed out many serious omissions in the contract.

Success a Farce?

Last Friday evening (November 7) the parents and friends of a great many Victoria High School students were treated to what has got to one of the greatest debacles in the history of amateur athletics in this city. The occasion was the Greater Victoria High School swim meet at Colwood Pool in which one high school with a preponderance of competitors who had obviously left the "novice" class far behind, won an overwhelming victory over all opposition.

As the parent of a former swim-club member, who was twice club champion in his own age group, I feel well qualified to make the following observations concerning competitive swimming in general:

First of all, there are three requisites that go into the making of a successful young competitive swimmer: (a) a strong physique and a certain natural aptitude for the sport; (b) intensive training and coaching; (c) parents who are willing and financially able to foot the bill for (b).

The rigorous training and discipline that these young swimmers are subjected to often requires their personal dedication to the point of almost complete exclusion of other sports and activities. It is therefore perfectly obvious that such youths cannot be fairly matched against those for whom swimming is a casual, leisure-time activity. (Which is what a great many medical doctors and child psychologists are beginning to believe all sports should be!)

The so-called swim meet at Colwood then was an utter and complete farce inasmuch as it was perfectly obvious to any informed individual (their club swim suits notwithstanding) that many of the winning school's team members were actively engaged in full-time training and receiving expert guidance in the finer points of competition.—Mrs. Evelyn S. Osbourn, 2028 Stanley.

An Ancient Evil

It is astonishing that we have parking nightmares in our cities and towns, considering that the problem has existed for centuries. According to "Norfolk Fair", a journal which delves deeply into the history of that part of the Old Country I came from, two men were each fined three-quarters of a penny in 1649 for tying their horses to the market cross and the town pump, on a market day, "so causing mischief."

Apparently the records do not show whether the men were allowed time to accumulate these sums, but it is obvious that the judge felt that the problem could be dealt with without the risk of runaway inflation. — S. G. Woodeson, 6456 Patricia Bay Highway.

Too Many Aladdin's Lamps Instead of Negotiations

By PETER NEWMAN

JERUSALEM — "There are patterns in history," Moshe Dayan once mused out loud, "but these patterns are not necessarily symmetrical. They have chinks and loopholes. The secret of the Jewish people has been in finding these chinks and loopholes."

The oil fields of Alaska and the Northwest Passage across the top of Canada seem very far away from the sweltering heat and turmoil of this holy city. But it's just possible they may one day provide the potential collapse of the Arab economies, if and when Western Europe can become independent of Middle East oil by substituting the capacity now being proved up in the sub-Arctic.

Egypt would be the most vulnerable victim of such a long-term shift in world petroleum patterns. Before the six-day war, the strength of President Nasser's position was based on two propositions: that the Suez Canal was vital to the economies of Western Europe (this was, after all, why Britain and France went to war with Egypt in 1956), and that Egypt's political leverage resided in withholding oil shipments to Israel's allies.

Neither of these assumptions remains valid. The Suez Canal has now been closed for 28 months. It is filling up with sand and most of the shipping companies which once used it have launched giant tankers that would by-pass the canal, even if it was reopened.

More important, the Israelis have built their own "Dry Suez", a dual pipeline which bypassed the canal, pumping oil from Eilat on the Red Sea to Haifa on the Mediterranean. The project, financed by Baron Edmond de Rothschild, of London, already has a flow-through capacity of 4.5 million tons a year and a third line is under construction.

At the same time, none of the Arab countries have carried out their threat of boycotting petroleum sales to Western countries. They need the royalties too much.

To make up for the shutting down of the Suez Canal, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Libya have turned over about $580 million to Egypt from their own oil revenues, and this has become the mainstay of President Nasser's floundering economy.

If Alaskan oil became competitive in the European market, there is speculation here that the Arab economies would become so vulnerable that Egypt in particular might be forced to dicusss a permanent settlement with Israel.

This is a long and slender thread on which to hang the possibility of peace and the fact that it's mentioned at all demonstrates how barren the prospects really are.

My own conclusion is that another war in the Middle East is all but inevitable, and if it comes, it will be a very much more serious conflict than the last one. The Israeli army is now stationed within a day's striking distance of Cairo, Damascus and Amman. Would Russia be able to stay out of a situation in which the capitals of its three main Middle East allies were threatened?

The trouble is that both sides in this undeclared war have become so committed to their positions that it sometimes seems as if they have stopped acting in their own self-interest.

For meaningful peace negotiations to begin will require a psychological revolution and less resort to quite so many Aladdin's lamps in the foreign offices at Cairo and Jerusalem where the two strategies are being plotted.

The Arabs act as if any Israeli solution would require intolerable humiliation. The Israelis seem convinced that any Arab solution would mean the inevitable extinction of their society. Meanwhile, both sides are set on a collision course. Nobody wants war but everybody is willing to fight for his point of view.

The real issue is Arab recognition of Israel as an independent state. Israel's very existence is aggression, President Nasser declared during a Cairo press conference on May 28, 1967, and two months later he defined the Arab position as: "No negotiation with Israel, no peace treaty with Israel, no recognition of Israel."

This implies that any direct talks with the Jews would amount to an Arab surrender. Israel, on the other hand, has been just as adamantly insisting on such negotiations, because diplomatic recognition is the one objective it cannot gain on the battlefield.

While Israel might be willing to trade some of its territories conquered during the six day war for Arab recognition, the Arabs quite understandably will on no account grant recognition during Israeli occupation. And so both sides are dug in, immobile and adamant.

It's possible to take this chicken-and-egg argument one step further: The Israeli concessions, being territorial, could be reversed only by another war. The Egyptian concessions, being diplomatic, could be reversed by a simple declaration.

The United Nations, which Canada would like to see settle the issue, is dismissed by the Israelis who accuse the world body of "acting as a shield behind which the Arabs can hide their non-acceptance of Israel."

The only territory which Israel would willingly surrender is part of the Jordan River's west bank because to keep this captive population under control, it has had to resort to escalating restrictive measures, including the blowing up of terrorist suspects' houses.

There is also vague talk about giving Moslems free access to Jerusalem's holy places, turning the mosques into a kind of extraterritorial Middle East version of the Vatican. But Jerusalem itself is not negotiable.

On top of all this is the continuing problem of the Palestine refugees. Here Israel has acted in a surprisingly heartless manner. Some of the million displaced Arabs have now spent 20 years in the squalor of the Gaza and west bank camps and Israel has still made no move to compensate them for their property losses. It is in these camps where the El Fatah commandos are finding some of their most willing recruits.

About the only optimistic assessment of the situation I heard came from Dr. Jaacov Herzog, Director General of the Prime Minister's Office and a former Israeli Ambassador to Canada.

"It is essentially a struggle between Jewish faith and Arab fatalism," he said. As months and years pass, the three-fold dilemma facing the Arab leadership becomes ever more crucial: To do nothing with all the attendant changes to internal stability, to go to war, the results of which are a foregone conclusion, or to make the leap forward to peace and regional co-operation.

Suez Canal choked, filling with sand

Peace is still remote and war cannot be discounted but there are indications that in certain Arab circles there may be the beginning of understanding that the Arab assessment of over 20 years that Israel was a temporary phenomenon to be swept away by the sands of time—is at least being questioned. The Iron Curtain which sealed off frontiers and mind has been raised somewhat and it will never come totally down again.

Perhaps Dr. Herzog is right. But from here at the moment it looks as if U Thant, the Secretary-General of the United Nations was more realistic when he said recently that in the Middle East "We may be witnessing . . . something like the early stages of a new hundred years war."

Magnetic Poles: The Big Switch-Over

The German Tribune

The Earth's magnetic poles are not what they seem. They are not a fixed part of the physical geography of our planet. Every hundred thousand years or so they shift, the North Pole becomes the South Pole and vice versa.

For a few thousand years magnetic conditions are so absurd that Magnetic North can lie somewhere in the Atlantic or Central America until the North Pole finally finds its new home at the South Pole.

These facts sound like a leg-pull. But they are based on the latest investigations of geophysicist Dr. D. Heye of the Federal Institute of Geological Research at Hanover.

He concluded that the poles must have moved after examining borings from the sea bed brought back by the Meteor from the Great Meteor Bank in the Atlantic Ocean.

The movement of magnetic poles on a planet like Earth becomes less astonishing when it is considered that the magnetic field of the sun completely disappeared at times in the last few decades and then produced more than two poles. This possibility can be reckoned with in the future development of the Earth's magnetic field.

Even though direction finding by compass has made us take the magnetic field for granted, it is obviously only a passing phase.

Palaeomagnetics—a science that researches into directions of the Earth's magnetic field in certain rocks from the Earth's past—has helped to show in the past few decades that the earth's polarity has often changed.

Changed 23 Times

In the last five million years the poles seem to have changed about 23 times. Well in the past—about 300 or 500 million years ago—the magnetic poles were not in their present position.

The change is polarity is particularly important because it took place not so long ago in the geological past.

The last time may have been only 20,000 years ago and was certainly no farther back than 700,000 years ago. Another reason for the importance attached to the subject is that change in polarity takes place so frequently that it could occur once again during the lifetime of mankind.

Until now it was thought that when polarity changed, the Earth's magnetic field disappeared completely and then gradually reappeared in a different magnetic pattern.

There were even a few geophysicists who concluded from the weakening of the Earth's magnetic field—its intensity has decreased by almost a sixth in the last few decades—that a new change of polarity was beginning.

If a change in polarity occurs in the same way as it is assumed to have happened in the past, the disappearance of the Earth's magnetic field would mean that there was nothing to stop the Earth's surface being affected by high cosmic radiation normally absorbed by the atmosphere.

In certain conditions this could have considerable biological effects that would not however be as catastrophic as often supposed.

But it is quite obvious now that the process of a change in polarity is completely different. Dr. Heye was able to reconstruct the process.

He took sample KK 167 which had been dug from the bed of the Atlantic ocean by the Meteor and cut it into thin discs.

On the seabed an even layer of mud gradually forms, showing the direction of the Earth's magnetic field.

By examining the magnetic effects of thin discs of sediment, researchers can find what alterations there have been in the direction and intensity of the field.

The first magnetic analyses of the borings showed that there had been three changes of polarity, 700,000, 900,000, and a million years ago.

Cut Into Discs

Samples from the region of the polar change 900,000 years ago were cut up into thin clay discs, each of which corresponded to 1,300 years of sedimentation. In each layer the direction of the Earth's magnetic field was determined. The results were as follows:

When polarity changes the magnetic pole begins to shift. Then the poles turn anti-clockwise out of their normal positions.

At first their progress is rapid. It then becomes slower until it reaches the position vacated by the other pole. The North Pole shifts via the west until it suddenly becomes the South Pole. It takes four thousand years to travel half the journey, then the process slows. After ten thousand years the poles have moved through 170 degrees and the remaining shift is completed very slowly

While the poles shift the intensity of the Earth's magnetic field decreases considerably but the Earth's magnetism never disappears completely.

Others Different?

One reservation must be made. The geophysicists from Hanover analysed the effects of only a score or so of the changes in polarity, in the Earth's recent past. The process of other polar changes could have been completely different.

Additional observations, including those by French geophysicists, seem to confirm the findings of the Meteor venture. French findings showed that the poles moved in an anti-clockwise direction but they were not considered to be all that reliable as proof because samples came from solidified lava from a volcano.

The Earth's magnetic field could indeed determine the formation of the lava but the time factor is never certain where volcanic eruptions are considered.

These observations show that there is no basis for assuming that the magnetic poles of the Earth are in any way connected with the axes of the Earth's rotation.

The link between the rotational axis and the axes of the magnetic dipols is at best very weak.

Drug 'Escalation' Hasn't Been Proved

The Globe and Mail

The hypothesis most frequently put forward by our law enforcement agencies is that marijuana leads the user to harder drugs. In the absence of much evidence that pot itself does damage, the hypothesis is useful to those who oppose easing the law as it applies to those found in possession of the drug.

Reflecting a certain sensitivity to this debate, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, in its submission to the LeDain Commission into the non-medical use of drugs, added a few qualifications to the old line.

"We are not suggesting that cannabis, through some pharmacological quality, automatically compels a user to more potent drugs. Recently, we concluded a two-year study of this problem and documented evidence proves indisputably that in many cases a transition from marijuana to heroin does take place, but not necessarily directly, and certainly not in every case."

In many cases? Okay, how many? Let's look at some statistics about narcotics arrests in Metro Toronto just released by the RCMP. In 1964 seven people were arrested on marijuana charges and 86 on charges related to heroin and other hard drugs.

In the first nine months of this year 757 marijuana and hashish arrests have been made, just over a 100-fold increase in five years. But the hard drug arrests to date in 1969 stand at 75.

We admit that figures can be deceptive, but from the RCMP's experience in Metro, "the hashish capital of Canada", it would appear that the escalation theory is just a theory and a bad theory at that.

With the Little People At Cigarmakers' Bay

By ART STOTT

Alex, who is five-going-on-six and who visits us from the house next door at Cigarmakers' Bay, told us last summer of her discovery. She had been wandering among the big trees behind her house, had come upon a woodsy creature and adopted it as her friend.

Stott

We wanted to know what kind of woodsy creature and Alex explained: "A little people."

"How Big?" I asked, and Alex arched her index finger over her thumb to measure about three-quarters of an inch. "I call her Woodsy," she announced.

We asked her where Woodsy was and she extended her hand, palm up, and said "Right here." An adult had to look through Alex's eyes to see Woodsy, but once you made the adjustment Woodsy became interesting.

"A nice green hat Woodsy's wearing," I commented to Alex.

"It's turquoise," she said.

"Of course," I replied, corrected, and we went on to discuss the future of her new very tiny friend. Alex was looking forward to going to the big school at the end of summer and she thought she'd take Woodsy with her to learn to read, write and color pictures. Woodsy, Alex explained, would fit nicely into a compartment of her pencil box and it would be no trouble to take her to and from classes.

We hadn't heard much about Woodsy in recent months, but when Alex paid her visit at the weekend we were brought up to date. All sorts of things have been happening. Woodsy likes school and she has an older sister called Bluebell. Bluebell's going to have a baby and two fairies have joined the little people family. Alex's description of the two fairies was a bit sketchy, but she had evidence to prove their existence.

"You notice anything missing?" she asked us with a wide grin. We saw the gap in her teeth and told her we noticed.

"Well," she said, "I put my tooth under the pillow and in the morning the fairy had turned it into ten cents."

You can't argue against testimony like that. Who but a fairy would turn an old tooth into a dime?

"I've got to go now," she announced, called her dog and set off to explore some more among the big trees, talking to Woodsy and Bluebell as she went.

It's not just because we're a bit balmy in our house that we understand Woodsy and Bluebell. There were similar personalities in our family when our own children were small. You couldn't always see them when the little tads were playing with and talking to their synthetic friends. Still, we accepted the development with friendly sympathy because we thought that the growth of imagination in little children was important.

★ ★ ★

And we're not too sure that older people do much better in creating their images. We're familiar with adults who have developed violent hatreds for citizens of various countries and races they don't even know. We're acquainted with others who have sanctified some pretty questionable human material. The subjects on which they heap scorn or affection admittedly are not three-quarters of an inch tall, and few of them are friends of fairies, though a number are taken to be under the control of demons. That's the way it goes for some of us who have reached so-called maturity.

On balance, I'll take Alex with her tiny Woodsy and Bluebell. Her creations at least encourage sentiments of warmth and consideration, which aren't bad characteristics to find in a little girl.

Time enough, in the years ahead, for the child from next door to come down to hard realities. If she chooses now to stock her make-believe world with charming little people, one with a turquoise hat, she isn't doing much different from idealists who seek fulfilment of a vision in which all peoples come closer to perfection.

We shall follow the events in the life of Woodsy as they are related to us by Alex. And we wait with considerable faith the advent of Bluebell's baby, quite sure that it will be a great deal more attractive than the one Rosemary bestowed on a disturbed public.

North isn't far the Island way

A new kind of 'rush' is happening in British Columbia's North. Business and industry are moving toward vast, untapped resources above the 54th parallel.

Island Tug has always been a part of the big move to the Canadian North. Her rail car barges carry shipments of supplies and equipment from the end of steel in Seattle to the Pacific Great Eastern rail terminal in Vancouver. From there the cars roll to final destinations at the top of British Columbia . . . on the return trip they carry the products of new enterprises.

Reach North the efficient, trouble-free way. Let Island handle the entire routing problem. That way the North won't seem nearly as far.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Editor: G. S. Kent

Interprovincial

Interprovincial Pipe Line Co. today reported net earnings of $18 million or 71 cents a share for the nine months ended Sept. 30, compared with $17.85 million or 70 cents a share for the similar 1968 period.

Deliveries of crude oil and natural gas liquids during the nine-month period averaged 750,600 barrels a day, up approximately 39,000 barrels a day.

Canadian Pacific

Canadian Pacific Railway Co. reports income of $34.2 million or $2.21 per common share, for the first nine months of 1969.

This campares with $1.83 per common share for the same period in 1968 and represents an increase of $5.4 million over income for the first nine months of 1968.

The 1969 income figure includes $11.3 million from the sale of the subsidiary Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Co. timberlands to Pacific Logging Co., a subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd.

Gibraltar

Favorable values in copper mineralization has been assayed from diamond drill cores taken from its McLeese Lake property by Gibraltar Mines Ltd. working jointly with Gunn Mines Ltd. whose property adjoins.

Work on the properties since Canex Aerial Exploration Ltd. estimated reserved has shown additional bulk, boosting the total to 144.9 million tons, mostly of copper ore but with values in molybedenum.

Ontario Hydro

Ontario Hydro's new $50 million issue aimed at Dec. 1 looks like a sell-out at the par price of $100.

Investor interest in the bonds, coming out at two maturities and both with an 8½ per cent coupon, appears strong, according to a spokesman for the principals.

A five-year bond that is non-callable is offered with a 25-year debenture callable after Dec. 1, 1989.

Savage

Savage Shoes Ltd. of Preston, Ont., has acquired all outstanding shares of Wallace Footware (1962) Ltd. effective Dec. 1.

The announcement, making no mention of money or share exchange, said management will continue as is, with Wallace operating as an independent division specializing in fashion shoes.

Alwin

Decision to mine an estimated 1.3 million tons of copper ore on its Highland Valley property has been made by Alwin Mining Co. Ltd. based on a feasibility report prepared in September and October.

It usggests alternative milling capacity of 500 and 750 tons a day, costing $5 and $6.4 million respectively, and directors have chosen minimum operating capacity of 750 tons a day.

Conventional underground mining techniques are recommended, and start-up is planned for the fall of 1970.

WORKERS form human chain around what is claimed to be the world's largest steel plate. Manufactured by Nippon Kokan, the plate weighs 300 tons and is 53.3 feet long, 14.6 feet wide and 1.36 inches thick. It is to be used for manufacturing a large-capacity boiler for a chemical plant tower. The Nippon Kokan mill's 185-inch rolls are the largest in Japan. The mill is a major buyer of Canadian iron ore and coking coal.

Benson Turns Salesman

EDMONTON (CP) — Edgar Benson, finance minister turned salesman, today moved into Canada's oil country to argue that there is justice in the federal government's proposed tax reforms.

He flew in from Ottawa through fog, freezing rain and snow to present his case.

His appearance in Edmonton and in Calgary Thursday was seen as an important facet of the government's presentation of its proposed tax reforms because the oil industry was a major critic of changes proposed by the Carter royal commission.

The Carter commission findings, presented in 1967, were the forerunners of the government recommendations, made public in a white paper last Friday.

Mr. Benson, however, in effect denies he is acting as a salesman for the proposals.

He says it is part of his program to get maximum discussion of the proposals among as many people as possible.

After Calgary and Edmonton, the minister plans to visit Winnipeg Nov. 17 and Vancouver Nov. 20 for further discussion. Then he hopes to go to Halifax next month and other centres as time permits.

Government officials say there is no special significance in the minister picking on oil country for his opening rounds.

Benson had long been expected in Alberta for a Liberal party fund-raising supper but had been unable to make it because of pressures in Ottawa.

When government officials realized his appearance could coincide with publication of the white paper, they decided to turn it into the first of what Mr. Benson says he hopes will be open forums.

Mr. Benson said Tuesday he was not surprised by any of the reaction to the white paper proposals.

He said criticism so far has come from people or groups just as had been anticipated.

He was obviously pleased, however, by the reaction of Canadian stock markets.

U.S. Airlines Set Merger

NEW YORK (AP) — Northwest Airlines, the most profitable U.S. airline in 1968, plans to merge with ailing Northeast Airlines, officials of both companies announced Tuesday.

Northeast stockholders would receive one share of Northwest stock for every five shares of Northeast they turn in under the tentative merger agreement.

The plan is subject to approval of the Civil Aeronautics Board and directors and stockholders of both airlines.

Northwest turned a profit of $50,000,000 last year, while Northeast compiled a $2,400,000 deficit. Northeast's deficit for the first nine months of 1969 was reported as $8,700,000. It has lost money in 13 of the last 14 years.

Donald W. Nyrop, president of Northwest, and George B. Storer, chairman of Northeast, announced the tentative agreement. Storer also is chairman of Storer Broadcasting Co., which owns about 86 per cent of the Northeast stock.

Northeast operates routes to Florida from New York, Boston and Philadelphia and short runs between New England cities. It recently opened a Miami-to-Los Angeles flight.

Northwest holds a number of important long-range routes, including links from the Northwest states to the East Coast and Midwest.

It also flies to the Far East via Seattle and Alaska, shorter and cheaper to operate than competing routes via Hawaii, with the same fares as competitors.

Northwest stock closed at 35 Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange, while Northeast registered 13⅞.

Int. Utilities

International Utilities Corp. reported higher revenues for the first nine months of 1969, but recorded lower earnings.

Through Sept. 30, 1969, the company had sales and revenues of $587 million, compared with $469.46 million in the corresponding period of 1968. Net income was $27.5 million, compared with $28.89 million in the 1968 period. After preferred dividends, earnings per share were $2.05 based on an average 12,496,000 shares outstanding, compared with $2.29 on an average of 11,639,000 shares in 1968.

Cinderella has lost her slipper. The British Columbia Lions have been done in. But it was to be expected and only for a time did it appear that there might be a measure of hope for an upset.

So be it. Calgary Stampeders now will meet Saskatchewan Roughriders for the right to represent the West in the Grey Cup final.

It wasn't that the Lions totally collapsed in last Saturday's sudden-death semi-final. They didn't. They played it as well as could be expected and even as late as the last 19 seconds of the fourth quarter they were trailing by only seven points, and two minutes before, the margin was only six, and the Lions had the ball.

But this was a false statistic. For really the Stampeders were clearly the better club, and if there was a fault, it was that they Stampeders appeared to be attempting to nurse their advantage over the Lions when an all-out assault might have served their purpose better.

It was humbly suggested here earlier that Calgary's Jerry Keeling might prove to be the most dominant figure in the game. He was. The long pass, the short pass, the swing pass and almost any pass killed the Lions dead. Keeling, for the record, and this proves how damaging he was, threw for 326 yards.

But now the question is:

Do the Stampeders have enough left to handle the Roughriders?

They went into the B.C. game hurting, and they came out of it, hurting even more. Physically beaten up might be a better term.

The Lions played it tough, to be sure, and Don Luzzi, the great Calgary veteran, may have played his last game against them. He is reported out for the series opener and a doubtful starter for the other games.

Keeling also was favoring a tender ankle, as was Herm Harrison, his favorite receiver who caught seven passes for 141 yards against B.C. The other hurts are said to be minor ones. It depends how minor because Saskatchewan is well-rested and ready to avenge the result of last year's playoff in the west when they were riddled by another famous Calgary quarterback, Peter Liske.

Keeling could be just as good. At least B.C. coach Jackie Parker thinks so.

"From what I saw, he looks like the best anywhere," said the B.C. coach.

I think, too, there is a large measure of dignity at stake for Saskatchewan. Last year's embarrassment at the hands of the Stamps has not rested lightly with the Riders. Besides, the Riders this season have compiled their best record in history and for this reason, as well, they are not prepared to accept the fact that Calgary would dearly love to compound the felony.

In addition, they have three of Canada's distinguished football players.

There is quarterback Ron Lancaster. If there is a better quarterback, it might be Ottawa's Russ Jackson, but that is debatable too. Lancaster this season threw 25 touchdown passes and his percentage of completions of .531 was topped only by Keeling's .557 and his signal calling is beyond reproach.

Then there is Jack Abendschan.

It is the premise in some quarters that perhaps here is the man more responsible than most will admit for many of the Riders' successes. For he is an icy-cool performer who led all scorers in the west with 116 points and is Mr. Surefoot in key situations.

And there is George Reed. Here is the finest fullback in the nation, whose sheer delight is running at, and over people. He revels in the heavy going and is at his best when the stakes are the highest. He is simply that good.

The Stampeders stopped B.C.'s Jim Evenson long enough in the first half so that it didn't matter when he got to run in the second. But can they stop Reed the same way? Because there is a vital difference here between the two teams. Not only in the personnel, where the Riders have an edge, but also in game strategy, because the foe is tougher.

When the Stamps were putting the stopper on the Lions' running game, which they had to do, and did it well, they were in effect granting quarterback Paul Brothers the right to throw the ball. Brothers didn't throw the ball that well, and the Stampeder strategy proved to be fundamentally sound, as a result.

This week their task is more onerous. They will have to devise a means of stopping Reed, while granting the same right to Lancaster that they allowed Brothers.

The comparison is not a fair one, and the result could prove to be disastrous.

But, in fairness to Calgary and as noted earlier, the Stamps do have Keeling and his great receivers.

The series could be a barnburner, and likely will.

For openers, it has to be Saskatchewan.

Saturday's margin, 10 points.

Panton Sails Best When Tide Ebbing

Victoria Side Survives Stall

By DOUG PEDEN

It always helps to have a master mechanic on the job and Don Panton was Mr. Fix-It at Macdonald Park Tuesday when Victoria's Crimson Tide rugby machine was threatening to stall in the face of a bruising second-half challenge by Norwests.

With the Victorians sputtering and in trouble after appearing capable of running their Vancouver rivals out of the park in the opening half, Panton burst out of a scramble for his third try of the day to pull the city's representative side from behind with about 20 minutes remaining.

Suddenly, the Tide motor was back throbbing at close to full power and the Victorians charged to a 20-13 triumph over Norwests in a first-round match of the annual McKechnie Cup competition.

The hard-fought triumph sends Victoria, which has won the historic trophy only once since 1951, into the cup final, scheduled for Dec. 26 at Macdonald Park.

BIRDS BEATEN

Opposing the Tide in the Boxing Day tussle will be Vancouver Reps, who defeated University of B.C. Thunderbirds 24-8 at Vancouver Tuesday in the other first-round match.

Panton wasn't always prominent in the battle with Norwests. Several of his mates also made valuable contributions to the victory and all the men of coach Ray Calton performed with aggressive determination, except for a stretch of about 20 minutes after the intermission, when Norwests overcame a 9-0 deficit and seemed likely to grab the glory.

But the fleet Panton was always dangerous at his wing position. And he was an opportunist with the knack of scoring, which was what counted in a game of changing fortunes that was efficiently handled by referee Dave MacKenzie.

CLINCHING TRY

Over the route, the Victorians deserved the victory although they were never secure until standoff Don Burgess dove over the Northwest line for a clinching try in the dying seconds.

The Victorians were a more disciplined and more decisive side than their rivals and generally appeared in better condition. Tide backs usually moved the ball alertly, ran with better direction and were adept at exploiting openings with short kicks ahead.

Up against a very good Norwest pack, the Tide forwards came up with a hustling performance and perhaps provided the key to victory by consistently getting the ball to their backs from set and loose scrums to set up numerous scoring opportunities.

Anchored by Colin Dutson and Andrew Spray, the two tallest men on the field, the Norwest forwards dominated lineouts all the way. However, the Vancouver backs were ever a loose, uncertain outfit and were often hampered by the reluctance of standoff John Narbett to pass the ball.

9-0 AT HALF

Victoria collected its victory margin on three trys by Panton, a try and drop goal by Burgess and a drop goal and convert by fullback Martin Davies.

After a brief opening surge by Northwests, the Victorians took charge, and had the visitors defending desperately for most of the first half. Davies opening the scoring by left-footing a drop goal from about 20 yards at 15 minutes and Panton made it 9-0 before the intermission with his first two trys, both unconverted on attempts by Burgess.

It was a different Norwest side that came out for the second half. Coach Alec Mahood's charges were performing with new speed and fierceness and the change of pace disrupted the Victoria crew. Within 10 minutes Norwests had moved in front 10-9 on trys by forwards Clive Austin and Sam Glendenning and a pair of converts by Narbett.

Then Panton grabbed the ball and burst out on a 35-yard dash for a try, which was converted by Davies to put the Tide on top by a 14-10 count.

Burgess took care of the rest of the Victoria scoring, splitting the uprights from 26 yards for his drop goal and, after winger Chuck Plester had dashed for an unconverted Norwest try, wrapping up the victory with his try in the fading seconds.

In a preliminary match, the University of Victoria frosh broke a 3-3, halftime deadlock to defeat a team from Brentwood and Shawnigan Lake schools 14-8.

Two drop goals by Mark Hall, trys by Randy Howarth and Ken McBride and a convert by Dave Horton provided the Uvic points. For the combined side, Phil Ross and Dave McIlveen scored trys and Eric Williams added a convert.

Centennials Pinch-Hitting

Victoria Cougars' coach Doug Anderson doesn't expect Kamloops Rockets to show up for Saturday's British Columbia Junior Hockey League game at the Memorial Arena, but he isn't taking any chances.

Anderson has ordered lineups of both Kamloops and Vancouver Centennials to be included the Cougars' program.

The suspended Rockets are still "out", and hasty revisions in the league schedule will bring Vancouver to the Arena instead.

In Penticton, league president Howard Hamilton hopes the dispute will be resolved by the weekend, when Kamloops was scheduled to play three games. If not, the schedule has been altered in order that the suspended Rockets can avoid forfeiture.

Kamloops' suspension, announce by B.C. Amateur Hockey Association president Milo Fabro on Monday, stems from the Rockets' use of improperly-registered players.

Meanwhile, on the ice, Vernon Essos joined Cougars on the third rung by defeating Penticton Broncos 7-4 in Tuesday's only action. The game was scheduled for Nov. 18 but moved ahead.

Tony Golab Quits As Als' Manager

MONTREAL (CP — Tony Golab, general manager of Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference, resigned today.

A terse statement issued by the club said Golab, a member of football's hall of fame since 1954, said he has exercised his option of not renewing his contract with the Alouettes.

Golab, 50, had served one year as general manager of the last-place finishers in the East this season. His resignation was effective immediately.

It had proved a disastrous season for the Alouettes with only two victories and two ties over the 14-game schedule. Attendance at the 30,000-seat Autostade was poor with crowds for most home games under 10,000.

Golab was not available for comment.

Big Jean Cuts Loose; Stars After Geoffrion

By The Canadian Press

Jean Beliveau had coach Claude Ruel worried at the beginning of the National Hockey League season, but the little Montreal Canadiens' pilot can relax for the time being.

Ruel's captain, who went into hospital suffering from fatigue in October, scored two goals Monday night to lead the league champions back into the East Division lead on a 6-3 victory over Los Angeles Kings.

Boston Bruins also came back to life Monday with an 8-3 victory over Oakland Seals to end a five-game winless streak.

Ruel said he was extremely happy with what he considered Beliveau's best performance this season, but he wasn't entirely happy with the rest of his team.

"We came out roaring, but gave them too many chances to catch up," Ruel said.

CANADIENS RELAXED

The Canadiens took a 5-1 lead into the third period at Los Angeles and Mickey Redmond made it 6-1 at 2:37 of the period. Montreal then relaxed to allow Ed Joyal and Leon Richefort to score on goalie Rogatien Vachon.

The big Canadien captain now has four goals and eight assists for the season.

At Boston, Bruins' defenceman Bobby Orr assisted on three goals to regain the league s coring leadership. Veterans Johnny Bucyk and John MacKenzie scored two goals each.

WILL MEET BERNIE

In other developments, general manager Wren blair of Minnesota North Stars confirmed Tuesday he will meet today with Bernie Geoffrion to discuss a coaching job with Minnesota.

Geoffrion, a former star right winger with Montreal and New York, started last season as coach of the Rangers but an attack of stomach ulcers knocked him out of the job. He has since been an assistant coach under Emile Francis.

Norm Patenaude, Charlie Thorne and Wendy Thompson emerged as big winners in the Remembrance Day Race sponsored by the Victoria Track and Field Association in Beacon Hill Park.

The course, which ran from the Mile "O" marker and back along Dallas Road, covered approximately two and one-half miles.

Patenaude, who runs for Optimist Spartans, and University of Victoria's Thorne tied for first among men competitors with an identical 9:52 minute clocking.

Miss Thompson, a Victoria Track Club member, paced distaff harriers with a time of 11:45.

Rob Ross of VTC placed second in 10:15 ahead of Esquimalt Track Club's Jeff Hawker (10:22).

Carol Neeves of Claremont high School ran second in the distaff group in 12:24 while Delma Corby (ETC) placed third with 13:02.

Third Straight Title For U.S. Equestrians

NEW YORK (CP) — The Canadian equestrian team, without some of its best riders, finished third in the National Horse Show as the United States clobbered the opposition to win both the team and individual titles but the Americans figure the Canadians may be laying for them when they meet again in Toronto.

The U.S. team has won three straight shows in the fall circuit —in Harrisburg, Pa., Washington and at New York's Madison Square Garden. The riders now head for Toronto and the Royal Winter Fair where the full-strength Canadian Olympic champions will perform.

The U.S. scored a total of 130 points in winning seven international jumping events. Argentina, runner-up with 60 points, won two jumping events, and Canada's Brian Callaghan scored the only win for his team. Canada piled up 50 points and Mexico was last with 20.

The eight-day show finished Tuesday night with Argentina winning the last jumping contest.

Bill Steinkraus, the Olympic gold medal winner who led coach Bert De Nemethy's U.S. team to its overwhelming triumph, will not compete in the Toronto event.

His place will be taken by Neal Shapiro, who rode both at the Pennsylvania National at Harrisburg and the Washington International.

Steinkraus was the leading international rider with 42 points, beating out Chapot, who had 32.

Dr. Hugo Arrambide of Argentina, up on Adaggio, won the final international class, the Grand Prix of New York, after a jumpoff with Terrance Millar of Winona, Ont., on Shoeman.

Elder, the team captain from Aurora, Ont., was third on Pieces of Eight.

Millar and Eldar tied for sixth place in the final standing, each with 14 points. Callaghan, of Toronto, tied for ninth place with 10 points.

IMPASSE CONTINUES . . . . . GOLDEN JET CRITICIZED

Hawks, Not Hull, Calling Shot

(Times News Services)

CHICAGO — Bobby Hull has fallen victim to a few simple statistics and the puzzling impasse between the National Hockey League's great holdout grew more complicated Tuesday when Chicago Black Hawks chided their superstar for publicly airing his contract dispute.

The records for last season show the colorful left winger finishing with 58 goals and 49 assists scored for second place in the scoring race and the most goals ever counted by an NHL player in one season.

The records also show Chicago Black Hawks finished last in the East Division with 34 wins and 33 losses.

This led general manager Tommy Ivan to the observation that "individual records do not win championships" and as a result Hull has been given the cold shoulder in his contract dispute ever since the club went into training camp.

Hull pursued his farming interests while the Hawks went through a rigorous exhibition schedule and started their first six regular-season games without a win. The Golden Jet finally showed up in Chicago last week and said he was ready to play, but the Hawks didn't agree.

"If and when full agreement with Bobby is reached, coach Billy Reay and I will decide when Hull is in condition to be of benefit to the team and allow him to rejoin the club," Ivan said Tuesday. "From what we have seen of his skating so far, it will not be this weekend."

Ivan's statement came only hours after the 30-year-old Hull told a YMCA group he expected to have a new contract and "I will sign it." Hull also said he hoped to play this weekend against Oakland Seals and Montreal Canadiens.

Ivan's statement, released because he felt "the public was entitled to an explanation because of the many stories which have appeared in various media over the past few weeks," said Hull signed a four-year contract in 1968, which has three more years to run.

"There was never any dispute on the terms of his contract. When and if he returns to the ice, he will be playing under this contract. The items in dispute are in no way connected with his functions as a hockey player."

Ivan also took a dig at Hull's non-hockey business ventures and the fact that Bobby's record 58 goals last season failed to prevent a last-place Hawks finish in the NHL's East Division. "We saw what happened to other sports teams when they allowed outside activities to take precedence over the game itself," Ivan said.

Ivan said that following last season's "disastrous" finish, the club aimed at rebuilding into championship contention. "To accomplish these results, we have changed our policies requiring players to subordinate outside activities and give hockey their full effort."

Hull had contended the Black Hawks had failed to live up to financial arrangements on his reported $100,000-a-year contract. He was vague about the new pact he said he intended to sign. Presumably, it is a rider to his current contract.

"I learned one thing from this whole silly mess," Hull said. "No matter who you are, you're always in a position where someone else can put you down."

Fog an Early Worry For East's Finalists

TORONTO (CP) — A heavy fog that rolled across lakeshore areas Tuesday prompted fears that Sunday's Eastern Football Conference playoff game here might suffer the same fate as the Grey Cup game of 1962.

But the weather man said the fog will disappear with the coming of cooler weather and Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders should be able to see each other on the field Sunday.

"I think we'll see the last remnants of fog disappear by mid-morning," meteorologist Gordon Gee predicted Monday night.

The 1962 Grey Cup between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers played at the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium here was called because of fog with nine minutes remaining. The game was completed the following day with Winnipeg defeating the Ticats 28-27.

ROUGH REPUTATION

Meanwhile, Argo coach Leo Cahill was worrying that his defensive squad's reputation for knocking out quarterbacks could work against the team in the two-game, total-point final series.

Quarterback Sonny Wade of Montreal Alouettes was injured in the last season game against Argonauts and in last Sunday's semi-final, the Ticats lost two quarterbacks. Veteran Joe Zuger was knocked unconscious but returned later in the game for punting duties and rookie John Manel suffered an eye injury against the Argo defence.

Cahill said he was worried that league officials might be led to believe that Argos were deliberately trying to injure opposing quarterbacks.

Ed Learn, whose tackle knocked Zuger out, said:

"I still say the play was all right. I was committed before he hit the ground."

Salt Lake City Loses McNeill

By The Canadian Press

Salt Lake's Golden Eagles suffered their first Western Hockey League shutout Tuesday night, but the defeat was nothing compared with the loss of centre Billy McNeill.

McNeill broke a small bone just above his left ankle when he crashed into the boards midway through the second period. The Phoenix Roadrunners, ahead 2-0 at the time, added another goal late in the game.

In the only other game Tuesday, Denver Spurs scored twice in the final seven minutes of play to pull out a 3-3 tie with San Diego's Gulls.

McNeill, the Eagles' captain, is expected to be out of action about 12 weeks. He was hurt when he was checked off his feet and hurtled toward the boards head first. He swung his feet around at the last moment. He was Salt Lake's co-leader in scoring with five goals and seven assists.

MARCETTA SCORES

A goal by Frank Hughes late in the first period and one by Milan Marcetta early in the second put Phoenix in the lead. The final tally came on Bill Snow's shot into an empty cage.

Brian Harper's second goal of the night pulled the Spurs into contention with 13:46 gone in the final period. Del Topoll tied the count 45 seconds later for the point that put Denver in sole possession of fourth place.

San Diego goals were scored by Len Ronson, Fred Hilts and Al Nicholson.

Island Juveniles Veto B.C. Playoff

British Columbia's juvenile football title will be decided in Victoria at a date sooner than expected—Sunday.

Chew Excavating Hornets and Oak Bay Farmer Construction will play for the Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League's title as well as the "provincial honors" Sunday in Centennial Stadium.

The two-in-one playoff was set up Monday night after negotiations had broken down for a two-game, total-point series with the Lower Mainland champions for the B.C. title.

The Island League executive flatly rejected the playoff arrangements outlined in a letter from Brian Prentice, president of the B.C. Amateur Football Association.

Earlier arrangements had called for a game between the VIJFL champions and Surrey Rams on the Mainland on Nov. 23 with a second game at Centennial Stadium on Nov. 29.

The agreement ended, however, when the BCAFA said it intended to apply a $315 Canada Fitness Council grant intended for the provincial final to the Rams' travelling expenses. At the same time, the provincial body intended to collect 15 per cent of gate receipts from the Victoria game as well as a further 15 per cent as Surrey's share.

In return, the Island champions would receive 15 per cent of gate receipts on the Mainland.

But, as Bill Buchan, publicity director for the VIJFL pointed out, "Vancouver has always said it's no use playing over there because nobody would come and see it. They are offering us 15 per cent of nothing."

Last year there was approximately 2,000 spectators in Centennial Stadium when Hornets captured the title by bouncing Renfrew Trojans in a sudden-death final.

"As far as we're concerned, Sunday's game between Hornets and Farmers is for the B.C. championship," said Buchan.

Game time is 1:30 p.m.

Oak Bay Swimmers Place Third

Oak Bay wound up with a third-place finish in the senior team race at the B.C. high school swimming championships in Vancouver last weekend.

Magee of Vancouver, overall aggregate champions, also topped the senior teams with 191 points. Vancouver Sentinel was second with 183, followed by Oak Bay with 180.

Victoria High, which, like Oak Bay, entered swimmers only in senior events, was fifth on the aggregate list with 125 points.

Vic High's Greg Stone broke the meet record for the 50-metre breaststroke with a winning time of 33.1 seconds and joined schoolmates Lloyd Minckler, Jim Gollmer and Ted Osborne in winning the 22-metre medley relay race for the George Steinbach Trophy.

Magee's strength of the final relay events proved the difference. Oak Bay's 200-metre boys' and girls' medley teams each placed third. The girls' team was runner-up in the 200 freestyle relay while the boys' team finished a disappointing fifth.

Oak Bay held the point lead until the relays.

Oak Bay's individual standout was Sue McDonald, who won the "B" girls' 50-metre backstroke in 41.2 seconds, one-tenth off the provincial record.

Ingrid Strausse and Gail Williams each picked up second-place ribbons for the Bays while Peter Cruise and Peter Vandercoff picked up points for fourth-place finishes.

3 AUTOMATIC DRIVE COURTESY CARS

U.S. Favorites Upset By Irish-Bred Karabas

LAUREL, MD (AP) — Karabas shot through on the rail and upset the American duo of Hawaii and Czar Alexander to win the $150,000 Washington, D.C. International race Tuesday at Laurel.

It was the second straight victory for British jockey Lester Piggott. He was the third rider to win two straight Internationals.

The victory was the sixth straight for Karabas, who was bred in Ireland and is owned by Lord Iveagh. The four-year-old bay colt is trained by Bernard Van Cutsem.

Karabas held off the charging Hawaii to win by 1¼ lengths. Czar Alexander, who was second in this race last year, was another half-length back and 12 lengths in front of Hitchcock of Germany.

Time for the 1½ miles on the grass was 2:27.

LAST AGAIN

Completing the order of finish were Sabinus of Brazil, Don Florestan of Venezuela and Takeshiba-O of Japan. Takeshiba-O was last in an eight-horse field in the 1968 International.

Karabas, the third favorite of the crowd of 28,936, paid $9.20, $3.60 and $2.80. Hawaii, a South African-bred owned by Charles Englehard, returned $2.80 and $2.20 while Czar Alexander, an Irish-bred by Gustave Ring, was $2.60 to show.

The victory was worth $100,000 to Karabas and boosted his earnings to $182,613 this year.

Karabas is the son of Worden II, who won this race for France in 1953.

Springboks Move On, And Trouble Follows

LONDON (AP) — The South African Rugby Union team ran into more trouble Tuesday. A Welsh star refused to play against them and moves were made to ban them from a stadium in Scotland.

Jeff Palmer announced he will not play for the Welsh team against the Springboks next week because he dislikes South Africa's race segregation policies.

In Aberdeen, the Laborite section of the city council said it will propose to ban the South Africans from Linsfield Stadium, where they are to play North Scotland Dec. 2.

Anti-apartheid demonstrations broke out when the Springboks played in Leicester last weekend.

Meanwhile, in Pretoria, The South African Amateur Athletic Union is going ahead with plans to send a team to New Zealand early next year, secretary Danie Kleynhans said.

African nations opposing apartheid have threatened action against New Zealand if the tour proceeds.

Kleynhans said a "tentative" invitation has been received and a team of 25 athletes and a manager is planned.

Spartans Roll To Semi-Finals

Claremont Spartans will be working a string of four straight triumphs when they visit Campbell River Saturday for a semi-final match in the Vancouver Island high school rugby championships.

Spartans earned the berth in Island playoffs by winning the first half of the Inter-High School Rugby League. They finished the first half of the schedule Monday by drubbing Mount View Hornets 22-3 for their fourth successive win.

In Monday's other league match, Victoria blanked Oak Bay 6-0 to move into a second-place deadlock with the Bays, four points behind Claremont.

CONCEDED TRY

Gordie Rands booted two penalty goals in the second half to give Vic High its win and Reg Underwood scored two trys to pace the Spartans, who yielded their first try of the league season when Ron Peterson scored for Hornets.

Winner of Saturday's match between Claremont and Campbell River will meet either Brentwood or Shawnigan Lake in the Island final. Shawnigan and Brentwood are playing a two-game, total-points semi-final and Brentwood holds a 9-5 lead after the first game.

The Island champion is scheduled to meet the Mainland winner for the provincial championship Nov. 29 in Vancouver.

GIBBONS RUNNER-UP . . . . . . AT UPLANDS

Jeanes Takes Trophy

Walt Jeanes came out best in a countback of figures Tuesday at Uplands Golf Club and collected the main trophy in the club's annual Remembrance Day tournament.

Working with a 14 handicap on his home course, Jeanes finished with 79 for a net 65, which left him in a tie with W. Gibbons, a Glen Meadows swinger who had 78-13—65.

In the countback system used to break ties, both had the same score on the second nine holes but Jeanes was awarded first place on the strength of a better net tally on the first nine.

Third and fourth were Gorge Vale's Gordie White (76-10—66) and Bill Merluk (77-11—66) of Uplands.

Colwood's Art Carey fired a par 69 to win low-gross honors with a three-stroke bulge over two Uplands members, Gordon Pellow and Don Tuttle.

Playing in the tourney although unable to win any of the regular prizes was touring professional Bill Wakeham, who finished with a two-under-par 67.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

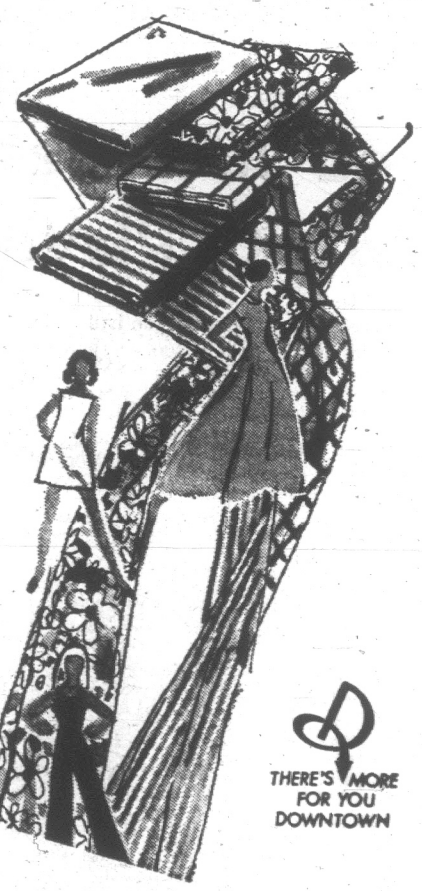

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Japan's Economic Success Secret — She Lost the War

SASKATOON (CP) — The secret of Japan's economic success is that she lost the Second World War, a conference on the place of China and Japan in today's world was told.

Rev. Nelson Chappel, whose work with the World Council of Christian education took him to 71 countries between 1953 and 1966, said Japan now builds 500 per cent more ships than Sweden, is the world's largest producer of radios, will soon convert to nuclear electric power generation and has the most literate population in the world.

"The secret of their success is that they lost the war," he said.

"Japan now is building up an industrial country and is only spending one per cent of gross national income on defence—and that for internal protection only."

Chappel said Japan, while relatively new in the field of democracy, has seen the emergence of trade unions and rising wage scales, has played a leading role in public health movements, has free compulsory education and Japan's imports contribute a "fantastic" amount" to world trade.

Kazutoshi Hasagawa of Ottawa, first secretary of the Japanese embassy, said his country is a survivor of an atomic holocaust.

"Our constitution now is a peace constitution and one of our most important tasks is to prevent nuclear destruction," he said.

Hasagawa said his country's only enemies are "poverty, ignorance and disease which we hope to wipe out in underdeveloped countries."

He said Japan's foreign policy is based on co-existence, mutual respect and non-intervention.

J. Blair Seaborn, of the external affairs department said Japan can look toward status as a super power.

Letting an Emotion Go in a Slow and Easy March

Magazine Drive Complaints Put School Off the Track

By BOB MITCHELL

Complaints from residents and confirmation of school board policy on commercially-sponsored school fund-raising projects have jeopardized success of Esquimalt senior secondary's Project 70.

The project is construction of a long-sought cinder track.

Greater Victoria school district superintendent A. J. Longmore announced Monday he has sent memorandums to all principals reminding them of the school board's policy on sale of merchandise or services by commercial groups.

The move followed complaints last week from Esquimalt residents that door-to-door sales of magazine subscriptions by Esquimalt senior secondary students were linked to the students' Project 70.

Principal Roy Temple said today bad publicity over the subscriptions sales threatened to ruin the campaign to raise $14,000 to complete the school's cinder track.

SIX-POINT POLICY

Trustees were told Monday at the meeting of the board's education meeting that Andre Desmarais, provincial representative for Perfect Sales Plan, also met students at Reynoolds Junior secondary.

At both Esquimalt and Reynolds, Longmore said, there were violations of the board's six-point policy on commercial enterprises adopted in Dec., 1968:

Door-to-door canvassing is not allowed;

If approved, a sales program should be confined to a two-week period, and should run concurrently in schools that adopt it;

Company representatives must not address students in an assembly;

Planning the program should be done outside regular school hours;

Student participation must be voluntary;

Competitions and prizes must not be used to stimulate student participation.

Longmore said Desmarais addressed students during school hours at both schools and at Reynolds class prizes including "the weight of the teacher in chocolate" were offered.

WARNED STUDENTS

Any sales program is subject to approval by the district superintendent. Longmore said he requested a written outline from Desmarais earlier this year, but never received one.

When he finally met the sales representative last week he said Desmarais told him he "didn't understand" the programs at Reynolds and Esquimalt.

TEMPLE
. . . sounded warning

The program at Reynolds has been curtailed. At Esquimalt, Principal Temple said, residents who want to buy subscriptions are being urged to phone the school so that students can visit them in the evening.

Students have sold subscriptions through Perfect Sales Plan for several years, but not on a door-to-door basis. Last year they made $3,000 by selling to members of their own families and to friends.

WARNED STUDENTS

"I knew of the rules and I warned the students of this," Temple said, "but we got the impression from Mr. Desmarais that the school board would look the other way."

The students are trying to raise $14,000 to complete the school's $33,000 track.

In previous years they raised $8,000, the school board contributed $5,000 and the municipality contributed $6,000.

Students learned earlier that Esquimalt residents pay between $15,000 and $20,000 annually for magazines, and decided to channel that amount through their sales program.

The company agreed to pay them 40 per cent of revenue, up five per cent from the usual 35. Temple said adverse publicity has had the effect of dampening enthusiasm of the 700 students involved in the program.

Tonight the students will put on a western variety show, a minor part of Project 70. They will also hold a city-wide car wash at the end of the month.

THIRD IN SIX DAYS

Another Driver Killed In Colwood District

A Langford man was killed in a single-car accident west of Colwood Tuesday night, the third area road death in six days.

Dead is Charles Glover Davis, 58, of 2626 Wentwich, a widower retired from the navy and the Canadian Corps of Commissionaires.

Colwood RCMP said his car ran off Sooke Road at Fulton Road, snapping off a traffic sign and flipped on its side. He was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Six people are in St. Joseph's Hospital following a two-car crash on the Trans-Canada Highway near Goldstream Park Monday night.

Mrs. Cynthia Bannerman of Courtenay is in poor condition with head and abdominal injuries. She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Roy, who suffered chest injuries and a fractured arm and is in fair condition. They are both teachers.

Driver of the other car, Richard Barker of 592 Ledsham in Colwood, is in good condition with hip injuries.

EXTENSIVE DAMAGE

Also injured were Valerie McNeil, 1279 Montrose, in good condition with facial, arm and leg cuts; Roy Maher, 51 Cadillac, in fair condition with chest injuries, and Theresa Chatten, 2232 Windsor Rd. in Oak Bay, in fair condition with head injuries.

RCMP at Colwood said the head-on crash caused extensive damage to both cars.

LS Norman Clifford Sims, 28, died last Wednesday when his car hit a rock outcrop alongside the Trans-Canada Highway near the Thetis Lake overpass.

RUPTURED KIDNEY

And coroner Edmond St. Jorre ruled Monday that Ross Rickman, 38, of Colwood was to blame for his own death in a head-on crash on Sooke Road Saturday.

Rickman was in the wrong lane, the coroner said. Death was caused by a ruptured kidney.

St. Jorre said today he has ordered a post mortem exam in the Davis death and will conduct an inquiry rather than an inquest.

Davis is survived by a brother and sister in Winnipeg and a daughter at Neah Bay, Wash.

Half His Dream Left in Ashes

By REG SILVESTER

Albert Yuen was slogging around in the mud this morning, slightly dismayed but not crushed by the sight of half of his luxury apartment complex in ashes.

His million-dollar project in Sidney was to open in January, but a fire early Tuesday morning set that back. He doesn't know yet how long or how much, and he's not sure to what extent his loss is covered by insurance.

This morning, at the site on Shoal Harbor, near Resthaven Hospital, he met RCMP and a man from the fire marshal's office investigating "every possibility" in connection with the fire.

Yuen said the fire was a blow but not big enough to stop his beginning again.

TWIN COMPLEX

"If you have half a house built, you have to rebuild the other half. This is a twin complex."

The remaining twin is scorched, but whole. It's a four-storey 42-unit apartment building with deep, arched balconies.

All that's left of the burned-out building is a tottering wall of concrete blocks and a pile of 42 twisted and scorched bathtubs that had been taken into the building the day of the fire.

Hugh Loney, chief of the Sidney and North Saanich volunteer fire department, said the building was engulfed in flame when they got there at 12:26 a.m. Tuesday.

Their job then was to prevent spreading.

"He was fortunate he didn't lose both buildings," Loney said.

A small house, which Yuen had bought and will remove to landscape the apartment site, was slightly burned. It was not occupied.

At another nearby house, fibreglass awnings melted.

Central Saanich sent 10 fire-fighting reinforcements in two trucks to help the 20 men from Sidney and their three trucks.

WATCHMAN HIRED

RCMP in Sidney say there have been complaints of vandalism in the past from the construction site, and that the company had hired a night watchman. He was on duty the night of the fire, police say.

Yuen said his apartments will rent for between $130 and $185 when the building is completed and include mooring for tenants' boats at a marina he is building on the harbor.

Sore Throats Top Diseases

Sixty-five cases of communicable diseases were reported during October by the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health on southern Vancouver Island and in the Gulf Islands.

Leading disease was streptococcal sore throat with 29 cases, followed by chicken pox (11) and salmonella (9). There were eight cases of infectious hepatitis, four of rubella, three of measles and one of mumps.

Most of the cases—46—were within the Greater Victoria School District—Victoria, southern Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Vet Relives War With Punch

"Are you trying to start another war?" Judge William Ostler asked a Canadian ex-serviceman in court today.

"I don't remember anything about it, Your Honor," answered Frederick Schulz, 55, of 3159 Shelbourne.

He was fined $50 for causing a disturbance outside the Britannia Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, around 10:15 p.m. on Remembrance Day and threatening to knock the doorman's head off.

Police said Schulz attempted to provoke fights with several people in the Britannia branch and when other veterans tried to assist him from the premises, he shouted abuse at them.

"It seems you almost started a war," said Judge Ostler.

Schulz said the trouble started when two sailors celebrating Remembrance Day called him out to the washroom and started a fight.

"That was the start of the trouble," he said. "I don't remember anything after that."

UNITED APPEAL INCHES TOWARD OBJECTIVE

The United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal continues inching toward its $694,000 objective.

Today's total is $545,000 or 78 per cent of the goal.

Officials had hoped to have been able to wrap up the campaign Monday but the date was extended in the last two weeks to allow volunteers to recheck areas that are far from their projected donations.

The 1968 campaign ended $40,000 short of its $655,000 goal.

The Children: Maybe They Will Truly Remember

By JOHN SLINGER

"We can truly remember the dead when we transform their visions into reality."

Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff's voice is heavy and sad above the silence of the morning, above the distant gun marking off 21 minutes in a slow salute.

His voice is heavy and sad as the chill wind that moved a skein of cloud across the sun tugs at his white robe and carries his words over the 3,000 heads in front of the Legislative Buildings.

His message chastised. For failure to remember the dead. For failure to "transform their visions into reality."

The guard mounted at the Cenotaph, heads bowed over reversed arms, shivered. When there were silences they were formed around the splash of the fountain and the restlessness and small voices of children, hundreds of children.

The children, there were so many of them, could not have the remembrance of the lines of veterans drawn up by the harbor. The veterans all have grey hair now and they marched slow and easy behind the Naden band.

• • •

The band played Tipperary and Mademoiselle from Armentiers (hasn't been kissed in 40 years) and to the men on parade the music could have meaning.

For many of us who just stood and watched there was meaning. There was grey hair in the crowd, too, the same eyes that were on parade, the same mix of sadness and resolution in the eyes, the slight shade of embarrassment for letting an emotion go.

They had been there; they had seen. The women who placed wreaths; they had felt. And younger still, those of us who perhaps had had friends in school who didn't have fathers; we could at least remember something.

From the program: "Response by gathering: 'We will remember them.' "

But the children will have to learn to remember. Maybe it was for them that the archdeacon's words were spoken, maybe they will truly remember:

The lives were sacrificed in the belief that "a more peaceful and happier way of life would evolve for all people everywhere."

It had not happened: "In some parts starvation and poverty are rampant. In others, men and women are producing newer and more deadly instruments of destruction."

• • •

Even in "this Canada of ours which should be an example to all nations" there is industrial strife, "turmoil" in the universities and evidence of forces "that would cause partition."

The pipers of The Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) shivered the lament—Flowers of the Forest.

There were two hymns, a bible reading and a prayer.

The Last Post was sounded. Then Reveille. (During Reveille the Maple Leaf flag, being raised from half staff, snagged and then ripped. There was evidence that the sea cadets on parade thought the problems of the sea cadets charged with lowering and raising the flag were pretty funny.)

Wreaths were placed. (Following the placing of wreaths and O Canada, a boy with hair down to his shoulders and two girls with long hair approached the Cenotaph. The boy was carrying a bunch of white chrysanthemums which he placed among the wreaths. The three stood for a moment in silence then turned, walked back into the crowd and disappeared.

• • •

(The three looked very young. Many stopped when the parade moved off to read the note attached to the flowers: "In celebration of life, not death, we remember those who have died in Vietnam." It was signed "Concerned Victorians for Peace in Vietnam.")

Admiral H. A. Porter took the salute from a reviewing stand in front of the Empress Hotel and the crowd applauded softly as the veterans marched past. The pickets of the Peace Action League resumed their spot in front of the Cenotaph.

(They had been there since before midnight but had moved with their sign, "Respect for the Dead with Concern for the Living," to the Legislature steps. One young man said strangers had come by twice during the night with coffee and food. "It was a gentle night," he said.)

As the crowd departed, children chased one another around the trees, the Cenotaph and Queen Victoria's statue. Up in the carillon tower Herman Bergink played selections of First and Second World War songs.

Arthur Mayse . . .

THIS IS YOUTH APPRECiation Week, and it's high time we got around to it. But let me ask a question of the powers who lay on such festivals.

When are they going to declare a Middle-Age Appreciation Week?

We in that age-group are the unsung heroes of the race, even though the fact is apparent only to us. We hold the sky suspended, not to mention the national economy.

Because we get more knocks than boosts, we tend to be somewhat humble, and even though the fact may not be fully apparent, more than a little unsure of ourselves. We are whistlers, and occasionally brayers, in the dark.

★

The aged patronize us. So do the young, when not raking strips off our long-suffering hides for letting the world get into a mess.

('Look at the bomb. Look at pollution, poverty, and the housing situation, also Vietnam and Biafra! How could you let these things happen?')

To the young, we are old, but the oldsters look on us as youngsters with everything still to learn. We can't win and we dare not lose, because without us, the deluge.

★

We're not crying into our beer, mind, and even though we aren't really likely to set the world right, we'll blunder along as best we may until present youth arrives at middle-age and the hot seat.

Still, I feel we should have a week—or, come to think of it, a day would suffice—of being appreciated by young and old alike.

Perhaps we don't deserve it, but Lord, it would be nice!

HERE'S A LETTER FROM Nelson Dewey, Box 631, Sidney, who suggests that if the passenger train appears to be obsolete, it is only because the railway lines are doing their determined best to foster this impression.

"It's my meagre understanding," he writes in part, "that the railroads were given vast amounts of land throughout North America in return for providing freight and passenger service. They made more money by shipping freight, and decided to get out of the less profitable passenger business by following the theory, 'If you ignore it, maybe it'll go away'."

★

Dewey tells of a family trip from Los Angeles that involved several train changes, with waits of from 30 minutes to two hours between each. Then he zeroes in on the E & N as another example of railway reluctance to make passenger train travel the first class experience it could be.

"But do the railroads want to make the effort?" he demands. "Just take another look at the Esquimalt & Nanaimo 'passenger terminal' (and I use the words advisedly) for the answer. I had to get out of my car and peer into the closed-up building, then decipher a faded 'schedule' chalked on a piece of blackboard next to the tracks before I discovered what that building was!

★

"I later read that there was a passenger service to Nanaimo—in the newspaper—but remembering the 'terminal,' I decided I would never take my family into such a run-down place. I'd fear for our lives,, if not from rats, then from its collapsing upon us."

His theory: that apealing, well-advertised and reasonably priced railway passenger service might very well show a profit.

I'd like to believe so, but remain skeptical. I think it would also be necessary for passenger trains to travel from here to there at jet speed.

We'll keep this discussion open. Any other opinions?

MILES FOR MILLIONS preparations are booming along, and rain or shine or merely grey, a mighty army of marchers will be hoofing a 25-mile route measured from the registration point at Mile Zero, where Douglas meets Dallas.

I'm told, though, that one acute need still needs filling. This is for more volunteers to pass the marchers through the checking stations strung along the course.

★

If you don't mean to undertake the walk, here's a chance to get in on the action.

For anyone interested in helping out, the numbers to call are 477-1863 or 477-1864.

SHIRLEY CONRAN TELLS THE TRUE STORY OF STARDOM

The Camera Crew Sounded Like the 1911 Cabinet . .

LONDON—"God, they must be scraping the bottom of the barrel,' said my friends when I was asked to make a film in the 'One Pair of Eyes' series in color for BBC-2.

I said to the BBC that I would like to make a film but not about me: what was interesting was private. They asked me what I would like to make a 45-minute film about: 'About what hell it is to be a working mother, what hell it is to be a non-working mother, what hell it is to be married and what hell it is not to be married.' So the film was called 'Danger, Women at Work.'

They asked me to write a treament, so I telephoned a friend who knew a television researcher who said: 'Con your way along like everybody else does and don't worry, they'll change it all.' So that's what I did, but they didn't change it.

Anyone who thinks that being a telly star is glamorous can take note that my film involved being prepared for a 25-hour day and eight working days a week and hanging around doing nothing —and being able to do nothing else for half that time. I now know why film stars go on about My Last Motion Picture, My New Motion Picture and My Next Motion Picture—they haven't time to think about anything else or do anything else.

Frantic Dashes

After three days of breaking appointments at the last minute I simply stopped seeing anybody but the film crew, cancelled everything in my diary and just stuck to the shooting script. What I can't understand is why the crew didn't understand the same thing. Invariably there were frantic dashes to the telephone in the early evening to cancel dinner parties, visits to 'Forty Years On' and wives' evening classes.

Other people who know how to work their televisions and have televisions that work know that this series, 'One Pair of Eyes,' is a cunning, sideways portrait of some character putting forward a pet theory. Somehow these sensible creatures write exotic locations into their script and whizz off to India, Japan or New York.

The number of locations is usually about six and the film generally starts with the central character standing on a slag heap—grey mountain—cobbled street in Wales, Sheffield, Wigan; hair blows in wind; voice over says dreamily "I was born there, in this rough mining town—industrial slum — teeny village." Then there's a train sequence, then off in an airplane to those glamorous places — Khama Sutra, original site of . . .

Not realising this, and much to the film crew's disgust, all my 329 locations were in factories, building sites, Denham, airfield, Dee Wells' doorstep, the local garage, Clerkenwell Road or my own back yard. The farthest we travelled was Manchester and Stoke-on-Trent.

The complexity of the film was mostly my own fault. I didn't know that when I wrote a simple sentence, with not even one sub-clause, such as "you get equality only when you're dead" that this would involve hiring a hearse, a coffin, a wreath, four undertakers, a field in which to dig a grave, and a frantic phone call on Friday at midnight to ask if I knew any good gravediggers. I thumbed through my address book and found one, who, for good measure, looks like the Hunchback of Notre Dame, but they didn't use him.

Opening Shot

I was unnerved by the opening shot. For some reason which to the producer seemed good at the time — and which had nothing to do with my original script — the film opens with me in a black Merry Widow in front of six men I had never even seen before, reclining against a padded satin bedhead. And then they complained that I seemed nervous.

In another sequence, for reasons that I can't remember, I had to jump out of a helicopter in a force 9 gale, stride without staggering, across that same rutted field in a see-through black lace dress, and chat to a duchess. That duchess had to say only one word and it might have been cheaper to hire a real one than an actress. It seems that a paid-up Equity member on location has to have a saloon, a chauffeur, a make-up girl and a hairdresser — everything except a field lavatory, which is the only thing that would have been really useful. I had to strip in a ditch behind a tree; wake up National Union of Journalists.

Breakdowns

The camera incidentally was the one used in the Royal Family film — and so was the cameraman — though that didn't stop the camera breaking down every now and then. The camera crew sounded like the 1911 Cabinet — Mr. Campbell-Jones. Mr. Bonham-Carter and so on, I immediately forgot all their names, didn't like to ask again, and couldn't ask again by the end of the day when they were calling me Shirley. So I thought of them all as Asquith and called them You.

I didn't reckon on my home being turned into a studio because it was cheaper than hiring a real one — for them, not for me. We all drank a lot of beer as it really is very thirsty work sweating under all those lights. John Mortimer provided them with non-stop champagne, someone mentioned afterwards.

One night the producer casually said, as I drove him home: 'The cameramen don't understand what the hell you're doing.'

'Haven't they read the script, goddammit?'

'Yes, and they still don't understand what the hell you're doing.'

Later I called him at midnight (for a change) — 'It's no good, I'm no good, etc.' 'Don't worry, Shirley, you've just got ccccold ffffeet. Just you write in a car chase and it'll be as good as "Bullitt".' Which is how Jackie Stewart came to be in the film.

Other Stars

As Katharine Whitehorn and I rehearsed our little bit of cinema verite on Hampstead Heath a passer-by muttered, 'Surely they can't both be Simone Signoret.' Other stars included Rosalind Russell, Barbara Castle in a fury, St. Paul's Cathedral and Drusilla Beyfus: I can't think why I didn't get more wives of TV critics into the thing.

The crew kept saying 'Oh, this always happens' every time disaster struck. Mary Quant had a threatened miscarriage on the day we were to shoot her. Writer Priscilla Chapman almost had her baby to camera. And Dame Joan Vickers broke her toe (she's accident prone from the knee down).

My cat managed to bite every single member of the crew, drawing blood from most, and then posed artistically, motionless, back paws stretched in air like Margot Fonteyn, when the camera started filming him.

Bakery Chaos

We caused chaos in that delightful bakery, especially in the French Fancies section. The producer wanted to film the pink icing falling glue-like on to the Fancies while the mob-capped, 16-year-old dollies stuck cherries on them.

Just as we got the cameras lined up, which was an interminable business, the producer saw that there were only two yards of Fancies left, rolling relentlessly towards us on the conveyor belt, and he shouted: 'Stop the pppppresses, can't someone put that machine in reverse.'

Then the camera had its final breakdown and we lost Sink, whoever he was, so we all trekked back to Manchester for the night because by now we'd missed the last train back to London. Determined to go wild somewhere in the budget, we drank a bottle of champagne in Manchester.

For me, the worst part was still to come. After seeing the rushes I burst into tears and wrapped my car lightly round a lamppost backwards while reaching for a handkerchief. I wasn't prepared for them to react with 'Oh, good, now we can get a close-up of a really authentic bash in your car.'

When I showed this account to a crew they said: 'Goodness, this is the first time anyone's written about what really happens when you're making a film.'

Me, incredulously: 'You mean it's often like this?

Crew, in chorus: 'ALWAYS.'

Oranges Growing In Store Window

By PENNY SAVER

"Isn't that clever," I said to Mathilda as we paused before a window display. "By slipping those nice plastic trees between real plants they dramatize how realistic they are."

"But if those nice trees are plastic," replied my aunt, "why do they have identifying tags, just like the real plants."

I looked blankly at her.

"What I mean to say," she continued, "is that they are real."

As usual, my aunt was absolutely correct. All the exotic plants that I automatically assumed were plastic (afer all, who sees an orange growing in Victoria?) were real, and raised for the market by a local florist.

There was a lemon tree for $8.95 with full-sized lemons just beginning to turn from green to yellow.

The orange tree I mentioned before bore clusters of tiny oranges that were just beginning to consider ripening. This $7.98 plant is a miniature variety and the fruit is scaled down along with the branches and leaves.

For $7.98 there were tall yucca-like plants that were unfurling gorgeous purple and pink blooms. With a bit of difficulty I decifered the tag which seemed to say Fasciata. Very interesting.

Another plant resembled a miniature pine. "Why not decorate a living evergreen next month," I asked Mathilda.

"I think I will," she replied and a few minutes later I found myself trying to concentrate on driving while a pine tree prinkled by gear-shift arm.

(Incidentally, the most expensive plant in the display was $11.95, but I can't remember what it was.)

Ink Matches Paper

Not content with being toothgratingly bright, a line of note paper I found includes its own matching ball-point pen.

These sets include 19 envelopes, 20 sheets of paper and one pen for $1.59.

There are two color combinations: orange and hot pink and bright lime green and blue. The inside of the envelopes is printed in a pattern using the primary (notepaper) color and the secondary color while the ink in the pen is in the secondary color.

Getting a child to brush his teeth the way the dentist recommends can be quite a chore. After all, if he hasn't suffered under the drill he can't really appreciate why he should brush and, beside, it's so much easier to go back and forth than to squiggle up and down.

So a toothbrush manufacturer has tried an experiment.

Junior toothbrushes come attached to a broad plastic base that will stand upright on its own. The base is decorated with scenes to please either girls or boys.

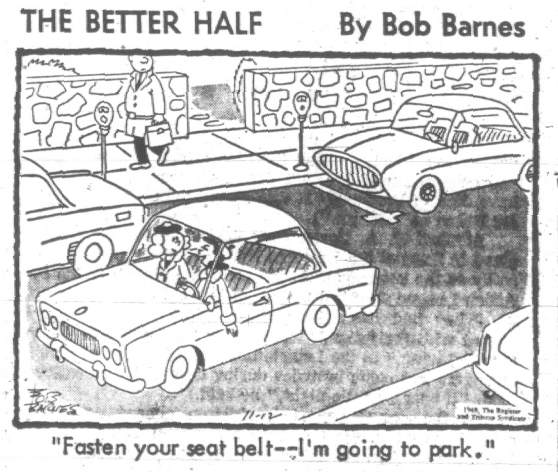

When the child brushes the right way—up and down the tooth surface—little bells inside the base ring.

When he brushes the easy way—back and forth—nothing happens.

These brushes cost 79 cents each.

Please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. for information on where to find these items.

Red Has a Kind of Roar

CALGARY (CP) — Weary of life's pressures? Want to escape?

Paint your bedroom blue.

A man whose expertise in color has made him world-famous certainly wouldn't recommend blue bedrooms. But then, Harry Wohlfarth's bedroom carpet is red. He loves living and action and has no desire to do the blue thing—retreat from life and love.

Prof. Wohlfarth was interviewed on his way home to Edmonton from Rome, where he recently presented a paper supporting the long-held theory that colors really do affect people.

The fine-arts professor from the University of Alberta has been studying this for the last 16 years. He says he has found that colors do cause changes in pulse rates, breathing rates and blood pressure—changes that cannot be controlled consciously.

Yellow is the most stimulating, followed by red and orange, the professor says. Darker colors depress—black the most, then blue and green.

Prof. Wohlfarth warns that a complicated series of tests is necessary before any scientific evaluation of a person's personality can be made. But his findings make for great instant analysis:

Yellow—for gogo people. Yellow stimulates, particularly mentally. An office full of laggards could be speeded up considerably by splashing lots of yellow paint around.

Red—for the self-confident. Red people are aggressive, masculine, strong, lively. They, and their color, have a "kind of roar," the professor says.

Orange—for those not as aggressive as red or yellow people. They are more like their color, cheerful and uplifting. They are usually attractive to others.

White—for Simon Legree types. White terrorizes people, conjures up images of endless icy wastes, threatens security.

Blue—for calm people. Blue people inspire rest in others, can provide a retreat from the hurly-burly red and yellow types.

Green—for bovine people. They are deadlocked between peppery yellow and recessive blue. Prof. Wohlfarth says the painter Kandinsky best described green people as great, fat, contented cows sitting in a meadow and gazing around with huge, stupid eyes.

Mauve—for would-be nuns. Mauve people withdraw spiritually from the world's crassness. Purple people are not as esoteric; they have a dash of aggressiveness.

Brown—not what it might appear. Brown people are really red personalities, but they either haven't the nerve to admit it or they are hiding their red tendencies for reasons of their own.

Beige and Grey—for cowards.

Black—for those who have lost their desires. Black is like a gaping hole, empty, desolate and only to be entered when the love of life is extinguished, the professor says.

Pot Penalties, Abortion Laws Must Change—YWCA Youth

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — The National Young Adult Conference of the Young Women's Christian Association has called for the legalization of marijuana, repeal of abortion laws, and approval of the black manifesto and the Vietnam war moratorium demonstrations.

The 500 delegates to the convention, all under 35 years of age, ended a heated three-day meeting recently with proposals they hope to present to the national convention of the parent organization next spring. The thrust of their demands centred on more power for youth in the YWCA.

Other resolutions passed by the group included making YWCA facilities available to dispense birth control aids to all women, regardless of age or marital status; approval of conjugal rights for prisoners of both sexes; and reduced penalties for marijuana possession.

The resolution calling for legalization of marijuana passed 167-126 with many delegates refusing to vote while the call for lower penalties was passed without dissent.

Conference officials called the gathering a "power play" by young adults who threatened to quit unless the national YWCA reflects younger views in its legislative stands.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Phone Call Furore

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I have been married to Margie for seven months, and there is one thing we argue about constantly: Margie is the secretary for a bachelor, and he has asked her to telephone him every morning at 7 o'clock to wake him up! (He doesn't trust an alarm clock.)

I say that my wife isn't supposed to report for work until 8:30 a.m. and her employer has no right to expect her to call him at 7 a.m., as she is not on duty then.

Margie says she doesn't mind calling him, and that I am making a big deal over nothing. I say, my wife belongs to me at seven in the morning and I don't want her worrying about having to wake up her boss.

I would like your opinion. Also the opinion of your readers.—Margie's Irate Husband

DEAR HUSBAND: I don't see any harm in Margie's calling her boss to wake him up, but if you do, then out of consideration for you, she should tell her boss to get somebody else to wake him up. (And by the way, if he doesn't trust an alarm clock, how about a rooster?)

DEAR ABBY: I have read in your column many letters from the family of the bride resenting bitterly the family of the groom paying off their social obligations by inviting all their shirt-tail relatives, friends, neighbors, and business acquaintances to a wedding since it's paid for by the bride's parents.

I recently returned from the Orient where I attended a wedding, and was informed of their solution to the wedding guest problem. Each family invites as many guests as they wish and each family pays for his own guest. Clever?—A Reader

DEAR READER: Very!

DEAR ABBY: People keep writing in to say they can't stand the smell of tobacco, or garlic, or onions. Well, there are worse smells as far as I'm concerned.

I can't stand closer than three feet from my mother-in-law without becoming nauseated because she uses a heavy gardenia perfume which practically knocks me out.

And those air fresheners that smell like pine and orange blossoms gag me.

It takes me a full hour of fresh air to get back to normal after dancing with one of my husband's clients who uses a popular men's fragrance that smells like jasmine!

I am about to give my favorite wrap to the Goodwill because my niece borrowed it and in spite of numerous airings I can still smell the perfume she must have bathed in before wearing it.

Maybe I'm a weirdo, but I'll take the smell of tobacco, garlic, or onions to some of those fancy exotic fragrances any day.—Stinky in Fort Worth

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Police Check Bomb Links

NEW YORK (AP) — Police are checking links between Tuesday's explosions at three Manhattan office buildings and earlier blasts, including an attack last month on the U.S. armed forces induction centre.

More than 100 telephoned warnings of imminent bombings were received by police Tuesday, all of them unfounded.

The explosive devices used Tuesday at the RCA Building, the Chase Manhattan Building and the General Motors Building were "high-order explosives on the nature of dynamite connected to a timing mechanism," a police spokesman said.

The police spokesman said: "We are not at this time claiming a definite connection with those blasts, but the matter is under investigation."

TOOK THE CREDIT

Letters purporting to be from left-wing radicals took credit for the latest blasts. They were similar in style to letters mailed to news agencies after a bomb ripped through army and selective service system offices in the Federal Building.

Special delivery letters were sent to the New York Times and United Press International, postmarked Monday evening.

They said: "During this week of anti-war protest, we set off explosions in the offices of Chase Manhattan, Standard Oil and General Motors," because America's giant corporations have fomented international problems.

"From the inside, black people have been fighting a revolution for years. And finally, from the heart of the empire, white Americans, too, are striking blows of liberation."

The three blasts caused heavy property damage and one minor injury.

Mental Health Awards Given To Local Groups

The Victoria branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association recently presented outstanding service awards to three local organizations.

George Kenwood, executive director of the B.C. division of CMHA, presented the awards to Stan Wallace, president of the Victoria Jaycees; Mrs. Joan Mascioli, representing the Victoria Jaycee-ettes, and Dave Abbott of radio station CJVI.

CMHA volunteers received certificates also for their service to mental health.

Moon Mission Crew Diverse Trio

* * *

Charles Conrad Jr., commander of the United States' Apollo 12 expedition, and rookie astronaut Alan L. Bean are scheduled on Nov. 19 to be the third and fourth men to set foot on the moon. During their 32-hour visit by lunar module to the moon's surface, Richard F. Gordon Jr. will keep the command ship in orbit.

CHARLES CONRAD JR.

No Aspirations To Business Or Political Careers

CONRAD
. . . smallest astronaut

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — On Nov. 19, Charles Conrad Jr., wearing the smallest space suit in the United States astronaut corps, will edge down a short ladder and become the third man to walk on the moon.

No fancy words for a watching world are expected from the commander of the second U.S. moon mission. That's not the style of the blue-eyed navy pilot everybody calls Pete.

"I consider myself a professional in this job," says the 39-year-old Philadelphia native. "I have no aspirations to be president of a company or run for political office."

Ever since he can remember, Conrad's aim has been to fly. When he was 14 he stayed home from summer camp. Instead, he cut 80 acres of grass of a mall port in Wayne, Pa., to earn flying lessons.

Pete's parents are divorced, and his mother has remarried. His father, a retired investment broke, lives in Sarasota, Fla.

Although always busy, Conrad graduated ninth in a class of 31 at Darrow School in New Lebanon, N.Y., in 1948. He was captain of the football team despite his small size, played hockey and baseball, was president of his class and of the dramatic club, editor of the year book and a member of the glee club.

Then he went to Princeton University, which had a good aeronautical engineering program, graduating with a bachelor of science degree in 1953. The next day he married Jane DuBose, a pretty Bryn Mawr student, and a few days later began flight training in the United States Navy.

In 1958 he was accepted in the navy test pilot school, where he met Richard Gordon Jr. Both applied for the astronaut corps and eventually were accepted.

Conrad was pilot of the troubled Gemini 5 orbital flight in August, 1965. The spaceship stayed in orbit for eight days despite a series of malfunctions.

Conrad's next expedition was as commander of the Gemini 11 three-day flight, with Gordon as his pilot. They soared to the then-record altitude of 850 miles in September, 1966, and Gordon twice went space-walking.

Conrad, the smallest U.S. astronaut at five feet six inches and less than 150 pounds, is the lively sparkplug of any group. He showers his listeners with a friendly flow of chatter and wit.

He has an infectious, Terry Thomas grin (there's a gap between his front teeth) and a direct way of speaking.

RICHARD F. GORDON JR.

If the Korean War hadn't come along, astronaut Richard F. Gordon Jr. might be drilling teeth instead of flying to the moon on Apollo 12.

The dark-haired, 40-year-old navy commander planned to be a dentist. But after his graduation from University of Washington in 1995[1], the need for pilots gave him a chance for flight training and a navy commission. The Seattle native became hooked on flying.

Gordon won the Bendix Trophy race in 1961, flying from Los Angeles to New York in a then-record two hours 47 minutes—an average of 868.74 miles an hour.

He followed his friend Charles Conrad Jr. into the astronaut corps, and flew with him on the Gemini 11 mission during which Gordon twice walked in space, at one point tethering the Gemini to an Agena rocket launched earlier.

Gordon grew up in Poulsbe, a small community on the west side of Puget Sound, Washington state, where his father was an operating engineer for a dairy and his mother a schoolteacher. His father died four months before Gordon was named an astronaut in 1963.

While he was in university, Gordon taught golf. One of his students in 1951 was a pretty brunette, Barbara J. Field. He married her two years later.

Free time has been scarce for Gordon during the last two years. But when he has the opportunity he takes his wife and six children water skiing.

As the command module pilot on Apollo 12, Gordon will remain in orbit aboard the mother ship while Conrad and Alan L. Bean land on the moon.

GORDON

BEAN
. . . daredevil

To look at Alan L. Bean, a slender, nearly-bald man with a calm and patient way of speaking, you would never guess that behind those hazel eyes lurks a daredevil spirit.

Instinctively, his parents say, he sought to be a flyer. His chance came when he was 17, when his father let him enlist in the naval reserve. A naval scholarship sent him to University of Texas to major in aeronautical engineering.

While there he married Sue Ragsdale, a Dallas blonde he first noticed at an athletic meet.

He took a navy commission, served four years in an attack squadron in Florida, became a test pilot and applied for the astronaut corps. He was in the same 1963 group of astronauts as Gordon, but this is his first space flight.

Bean will ride to the surface of the moon with Conrad, leaving Gordon aboard the command ship. Bean will follow Conrad out of the lunar module and become the fourth man to walk on the moon.

At 37, Bean is the youngest and quietest of the trio.

At the top of his list of hobbies is "playing with my children," Clay, 13, and Amy Sue, 6. He also is an amateur painter.

RARE ORGAN WILL PLAY AGAIN

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

Lloyd Davey, a visitor in Victoria from Burbank, California, is a pipe organ consultant. Indeed, it's just possible he's the only consultant of his kind on the North American continent—perhaps in the world.

He's a specialist in his profession. You don't call him in to look at any old organ. The field he prefers and in which he finds his greatest pleasure is the beautiful Aeolian instruments that were status symbols in the early years of this century.

You found them in the drawing rooms and the music rooms of the Carnegies, the Duponts, the Chryslers and others of their ilk.

Original Aeolians, named orchestrelles, were built specifically for the residences of the rich. They progressed from hand-pumped reed instruments a little like harmoniums, to pipes and manual stops and from there to de luxe models with rolls that worked on the system of player pianos.

It was these last instruments that were popular until the stock crash of the 20s. When recovery came, the Aeolian craze had diminshed and few if any were produced again, unless it was for an individual order.

★ ★ ★

Many of those already in existence found their way into churches or movie houses after they had been changed so they could be played manually.

A few remained in their original state and were still played with rolls. Today, some of these are being rediscovered and restored.

That's why Lloyd Davey is in Victoria. He's working on an Aeolian once owned by Robert Butchart at Benvenuto, the family home on Saanich Peninsula.

BUILDER and musician Lloyd Davey, now in his 80s, works on an original Aeolian player organ, in Hugo Spilker's shop here. Davey is one of the last of a rapidly fading group of pipe organ specialists.

When Mr. and Mrs. Butchart moved into Victoria in their later years and Benevenuto became the world-famed Butchart Gardens, it was found necessary to dismantle the organ and to use the space it occupied as part of a restaurant.

Eventually it was shipped to Vancouver, changed to manual by the well-known Mainland organist Andrew Chapman, and installed in Stanley Park pavilion.

Sunday organ concerts were then inaugurated at the pavilion and continued until several years ago, when again the needs of an enlarged restaurant shoved the organ out of its niche and relegated it to a dusty store room.

Now, through the efforts of the Butchart family it is again in Victoria, and before too long will no doubt be back at The Butchart Gardens.

It's been neglected of course. The player rolls have not been used in a long time. Rubber tubing and the rubber cloth used to protect the rolls cracked and split when Lloyd Davey touched them.

★ ★ ★

"The wiring is all mixed up, too," Davey says. Then he brushes the rolls gently with his strong fingers and adds "but this organ will soon be in full voice again."

He tells you about the pipes (a thousand of them) that give, in turn, the sounds of French horn, trumpet or any other orchestral instrument you can mention, as well as harp and chimes. He blew gently into several of them to produce these sounds.

The he touches the keyboard and tells you "there never was a sweeter sounding instrument than an Aeolian. People have said that even if a cat walks over the keys the sound is sweet . . . and that is true."

★ ★ ★

Davey, now in his 81st year, has been associated wih the organ business in one capacity or another since 1922 and has travelled pretty much all over the United States and Canada.

He first saw an Aeolian at three years of age, when his mother took him to hear one that had been installed in his home town.

It was an immediate love affair. One that has lasted a lifetime and that has been turned into a profitable career.

Before coming to Victoria this organ consultant spent three months at Kingsburg, California, working over an Aeolian originally owned by a Beverley Hills man and designed to be played with paper rolls.

When it was installed in a Kingsbury church, changes were made so it could be played manually.

Davey first saw it in 1948 when he made a few minor adjustments. He's been going back at least three times a year ever since.

★ ★ ★

This time the organ had to be rebult to fit a remodelled alcove and he had the job of placing hundreds of pipes and other pieces back in their proper positions.

Work here will be completed, he says, by the end of the week. Then he and his wife, who travels with him, will head back south.

It's just possible they may return in the spring. "After all, this is one of the few Aeolian originals left . . . we must keep it working."

Phil Fails First Test: Barrett

New Democratic Pary House Leader Dave Barrett today charged Welfare Minister Phil Gaglardi with "failing completely" his first big test as minister of social welfare.

Barrett said Gaglardi, who took over the welfare post Oct. 17, had shown "a lack of real concern" in turning down a request for social assistance by casual dock workers idled by the longshoremen's strike.

And he charged that Gaglardi showed a lack of forthrightness in telling the workers that it would require a change in legislation to give them aid.

Barrett said the workers sought welfare aid after being refused unemployment insurance benefits in a "callous" federal decision.

The workers are upion members but as casuals they do not have the right to vote on strike action, Barrett said.

Now the workers and their families are in a "desperate" situation, he added.

Under the Canada Assistance Plan the government must grant aid to "anyone in need regardless of the circumstances," Barrett said.

"There is no doubt the minister either does not know what he is talking about or won't admit that government policy not to assist these people."

Saanich Council Rejects Apartment, Row Housing

Saanich council voted a triple no to rezoning applications at a public hearing Monday night.

First on the list was an apartment at 349-355-361 Gorge Road West.

The applicant, unidentified, didn't show up. Council was told some of the property has changed hands. Two residents didn't want an apartment near them. Council said no.

Next was a row housing proposal for 1260 Tattersal Drive. Developer Ken Price proposed 48 individually-owned homes which would sell for $25,000 each — a $1.2 million project.

Local residents were opposed. They said the proposal would lower property values, that it was a prime residential area and row housing would detract from this and traffic access would be a hazard in an S-bend.

One resident said the access point could be named "Grand Central Station" and "row housing sounds like tenements."

Price shot back that the homes would be for sale and at $25,000 each they would "not be in a slum class."

Council divided itself, and an even split appeared between those who wanted to reject the rezoning application and those who wanted it tabled for more information. One vote made the difference as council voted 5-to-3 to turn it down.

A proposal to build a second house on a lot at 4256 Dieppe Road, to screen the owners from Fatts Poultry Processors Limited, was also turned down.

Council criticized the Fatts for not living up to a commitment earlier this year to erect screening.

Reports were called for at a previous council meeting on this point and one of the Fatt brothers said delays were caused by the highways department road widening requiring his house. He had to build another. He promised action on the screening and some shed removal.

Listen Carefully

To save money—don't ask "How much does a hearing aid cost? The sensible way to save now and in the future is to ask "How best can my hearing problem be helped?"

Since loss of hearing is a complex disability, first discuss it with your doctor. If he recommends an ear specialist—see him.

If the final answer is a hearing aid we can assure you that your instrument will cost you no more than it has to, and in most cases you'll find the charges much lower than you had been led to believe.

Sexy Films Deplored

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American film industry is threatened by movie producers who are attempting "to out-sex or out-violence anything seen before," says the head of the National Association of Theatre Owners. "The most insidious danger today to our box office, and in terms of public relations, is the gratuitous sex or violence scene in films," said association president Julian S. Rifkin Monday.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. Student Activism Sparks Turkish Establishment Fear

By RALPH JOSEPH
CP Correspondent

ANKARA (CP) — Student revolutionaries in Turkey are reported to be arming themselves, and authorities fear that unless concrete steps are taken to cool student passion, the young activists and police could soon be looking down one another's gun barrels.

The police and left-wing student elements have long been in a state of mutual distrust. The police claim the activist leaders are self-declared revolutionaries, while the students say the police are acting on behalf of the "ruling classes" and "feudals" and are out to "eliminate" a number of student leaders.

In recent weeks three students have been killed in separate incidents in Istanbul. As a result, some say they are collecting arms in self-defence.

In the first incident, a forestry student died in a clash between two groups of students demonstrating for and against boycotting the Ishik School of Architecture at Istanbul. In the second a student was burned to death in an explosion in the storeroom of the National Turkish Students Association. In the third, a metallurgy student of the Middle East Technical University was shot dead by an unidentified person who students claim was a policeman.

SPOTTED IN SQUARE

The METU student killed, Taylan Ozgur, was one of those wanted by police in Ankara since the student riots last June when the universities were closed and some students went into hiding. He was recognized by police at Istanbul's Beyazit Square while making his way, with some other wanted students, to attend the Istanbul University Students' Congress.

The police tried to arrest them. There was a scuffle, according to student eyewitnesses, and Ozgur worked himself loose and began to make a run for it. Then, as one report put it, "someone at the corner of the street shot him down calmly and professionally." The man was alleged to have got away in a police car.

But Ozgur himself, on the way to hospital, was found to be armed with two guns. The arms, held by students on their persons and in their dormitories, are of course illegal —but it would be unfair to say that only students keep illegal arms. Among the general public, police estimate that the number of people with illegal arms is four to five times those with licensed weapons.

Ozgur has inevitably become a leftist student martyr, and posters bearing his picture now are plastered all over the university campuses.

ACTIVITIES SPREAD

Meanwhile, most of the 100-odd students arrested after last summer's riots have been released from jail, but the trials of 11 of them are still going on. In another action by the authorities, 52 student associations affiliated to six large student unions have been closed by a court order for "indulging in politics." The action has been challenged by the student unions, which have appealed to a higher court.

The authorities are also trying to expel some of the more prominent activists from the university. At METU, one student has been expelled outright, while seven others have been suspended for various terms. Some of the suspensions amount to expulsions, since the students will either not be able to complete their term requirements or take their examinations currently being held.

Authorities too have cut off financial assistance to some student activists. At METU both co-eds and male students have countered this by selling izgara koftes—grilled meatballs—on the campus to raise funds.

Some of the leftist students do not confine their activities to the campuses alone. The 270-member Socialist Ideas Club is trying to reach both students and peasants, and club members have made several trips to villages around Turkey. A leader of the club, who preferred to stay anonymous, told me that they try to visit those villages where the peasants are having trouble with the "feudals and ruling classes" and offer them help.

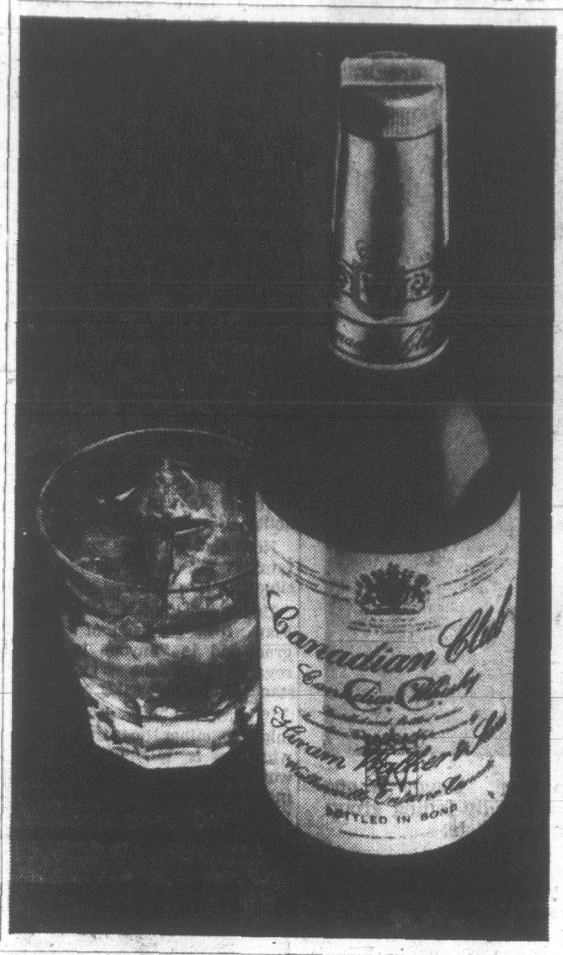

They are, of course, watched by the police, he said, and on some occasions have been brought back to Ankara under arrest. He admitted that the club members were Marxists, but insisted that he received no aid from any political party or outside sources; the club raised its own finances.

There is an underground Communist movement in Turkey, but this leader was reluctant to describe himself or the club members as Communists.

Easy Does It

ALTADENA, Calif. (AP) — Police gingerly investigated the car parked with two wheels hanging over a 100-foot-high cliff, its gearshift in neutral. Then they awoke the peacefully-sleeping occupant, James Loran, 26, and booked him here for investigation of drunken driving. A tow truck pulled the car to safety.

Squeaking Wheel Gets Greased, Victoria Civil Servants Told

Until Victoria civil servants make their dissatisfaction felt, the government will keep ignoring province-wide pleas for collective bargaining rights, a union meeting was told Monday.

John Fryer, general secretary of the British Columbia Government Employees Union, said two recent letters from the 13,000-member organization have been "totally ignored" by provincial secretary Wesley Black.

One, sent in early October, asked that discussions of collective bargaining be started. The second letter, sent Sept. 25, dealt with wage appeals for 5,000 to 6,000 clerical workers.

"They have refused us even the courtesy of an answer," Fryer told 150 members of the Victoria local.

"If that bothers you it should be known here in Victoria."

Because the Victoria local is the largest, with close to 2,000 members, and civil servants here meet those in power on a daily basis "this local's reactions are terribly important and they are noticed."

●

"In fact the feelings of the 2,000 union members here count for as much as the other 11,000 in the province put together."

They must show their interest so the government can't dismiss collective bargaining demands as "something dreamed up by a bunch of Vancouver radicals."

These demands are "neither outrageous nor militant" for government employees in British Columbia are the only ones in Canada without some form of collective bargaining rights.

A membership drive will be started here with increased efforts to attract professional government employees, he said.

A recently-initiated youth program has been successful and "if properly cultivated we could have some 500 new, young members before long."

But it isn't enough to be a silent member, said Fryer. It has been a historic fact with the Bennett administration that "when the wheel squeaks it gets the grease, but not before."

"We've got to start squeaking."

Fears that recognition of the union would mean a series of strikes are unfounded.

"We have never asked for the right to strike. All we want is that the conditions of our employment be laid down in writing."

●

Earlier in the meeting Brian Jewitt, founder of the recently established Victoria Tenants' Association, blasted "avaricious landlords" in a speech filled with metaphor and fire.

He wants a rent tribunal established to protect apartment-dwellers from sudden rent increases.

His organization is "a little group of plebians" forming a common front against "real estate juggernaults" in an effort to stop their "hitherto unchecked pillage."

He deplored the "money-grabbing" establishment concerns which "prostitute themselves (to tourists) on the jetty of Ogden Point" thus driving rents up in Victoria.

"Where are the enlightened city planners, the biologists, the ecologists? Where are the realtors and lawyers who have read Eric Fromm? Where are the altruists, the catalysts?

"They weren't there when I asked for redress from a 40 per cent increase in my rent."

Reaction to his speech was mixed and a man at the back commented: "He should have brought his guitar."

'MAY' CHANGES HIS MIND

Resources Minister Ray Williston said Monday a federal bill to provide for sewage treatment plants with or without the consent of provinces is in a good spirit of co-operation.

He was modifying his earlier, cool reaction to the bill, in which he said Ottawa should stick to the cleaning up of the Great Lakes and let the provinces work in their own areas.

Williston said he changed his mind after reading a copy of the bill. His first reaction was based on a news report from Ottawa which he said gave a wrong impression.

The sewage treatment plants in question would be built unilaterally by Ottawa only in areas of national or inter-jurisdictional interest, Williston said, and only after full efforts had been made to obtain provincial co-operation.

Group Not Optimistic On Drilling Probe Request

A royal commission into the effects of drilling for oil in the Gulf of Georgia has been urged by the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control.

But members of a SPEC delegation to the Pollution Control Board are not optimistic their request will be granted.

Members of the board gave a SPEC brief a "stony" reaction Monday, said Dick Chudley, acting president of the Victoria chapter of the pollution-fighting organization.

But Resources Minister Ray Williston, a member of the board, said later the board approved of the educational aims of the group in creating "an environment of public understanding about pollution issues."

Williston was less charitable about an avalanch of messages from the Vancouver area urging the government to take a stronger role in pollution control.

According to one member of the delegation, Williston said that the government can only throw the letters—printed on a blank page from a Vancouver newspaper—into the garbage can.

The full-page advertisement inviting people to write to the government was paid for by a New Westminster radio station.

Williston explained later that the messages are in an unmanageable form for the government to make any real use of them.

The SPEC group also presented a petition with 15,000 names on it, urging the government to show more leadership in pollution control.

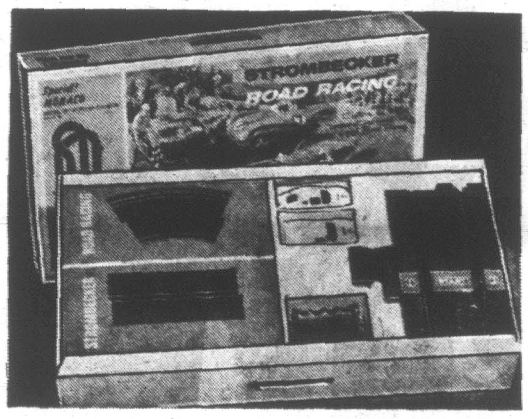

Mines Minister Frank Richter, asked to comment on the request for a royal commission, repeated earlier statements that the exploration work under way now poses no threat.

Delicious Apple Pie

Spread 4 tbles. butter evenly on bottom and sides of a 9 inch pie plate. Press ½ cup pecan halves, rounded side down into butter on bottom of pie plate. Over the pecans, pat ½ cup of brown sugar. Roll out enough pastry for the lower crust, then place it in plate over sugar. Trim even with plate rim. Sprinkle 1 tbles. lemon juice over 5 large tart apples, which have been pared, cored, sliced. Combine 1 tbles. flour, ½ tsp. cinnamon, ½ tsp. nutmeg and a dash of salt, toss with apple slices. Turn into pie plate, to keep the top level, spread the slices evenly. Moisten the edge of the bottom crust. Place the remaining pastry (rolled) over the mixture. Trim the top ½ inch beyond bottom crust edge, tuck it under to seal the apple juices. Prick top with fork. Bake at 400F for 50 minutes. Remove and let cool for 5 minutes. Place a serving plate over the pie and invert. Remove pie plate and serve warm or cool.

Aid Group Began in Crusades

TORONTO (CP)—A place of refuge existed in Jerusalem in 1096 when the first crusaders stormed the holy city and wrested it from the infidels. It was served by monks of the Benedictine order and dedicated to St. John the Baptist.

Its head, a monk named Gerard, assisted the crusaders in the siege, enlarged the hospital and founded the Knights of the Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem.

Growing wealthy and militant, based first in the Holy Land, then in Rhodes and finally in Malta, the order was a feared and dominant force for centuries in medieval Europe.

Dedicated to mercy, it's known now as the Most Venerable Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem—more simply, St. John Ambulance. It's had a prior in Canada for 60 years and its head is the Queen.

The history of the first-aid organization, whose members in trim black uniform with a white cross are familiar at every public gathering, is told entertainingly by Eric Hardstaff, a member since 1960, in The Imperial Oil Review, a company publication. It's a story of self-dedication with not a little sacrifice, but Hardstaff makes it seem fun.

TOO BUSY TO WATCH

He's at all the best shows, the Grey Cup final, the Stanley Cup playoffs—all the best places in town, as he puts it.

He doesn't really see the performance, though. He's too busy watching for fainting victims or patching cuts and bruises or looking for lost children.

Of the Beatles' performance when the singing group played in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens some years ago:

"All I recall about that concert were long rows of teenaged girls lying, wherever we could find space, on their backs on the floor with their feet propped up on chairs—the classic position for fainting, hysteria and over-excitement. . . . Then they'd gallop back to their seats, only to collapse again."

The association formed its first official division in Canada in London, Ont., in 1909. But it had been giving first-aid instruction to the public since 1893 and since that time nearly 12,000,000 persons have learned what to do and what not to do in emergencies.

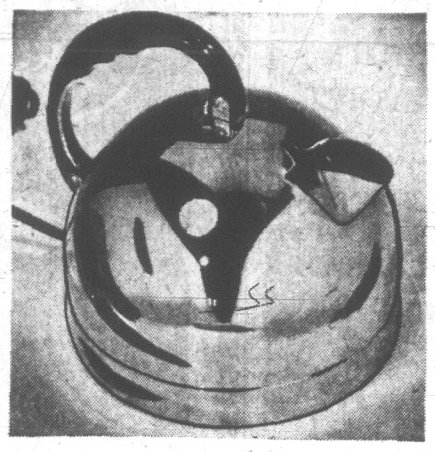

"Much of our time we spend freezing at some open-air little league hockey rink. Or getting our toes stomped on or having some kid barf all over our newly pressed uniform. So don't anyone make fun to my face about those do-gooders from St. John Ambulance."

What's the most frequent request fired at a St. John Ambulance man?

"Hey, mister. Where's the washroom?"

Brazil Arresting Priests

SAO PAULO (AP) — Terrorists in cassocks and priestly subversives are the latest targets of Brazil's security police.

Police informants say archbishops, bishops and other high Roman Catholic Church officials have been told by government security units that a growing number of priests, friars and seminary students are participating in terrorism and other activities against the military government.

Authorities believe churchmen have helped terrorists cross the Brazilian borders into Uruguay, Paraguay and Argentina. Others have acted as legmen and liaison officers between various terrorist groups, and some turn out anti-government literature.

Police in Sao Paulo have confirmed that a number of priests and friars were arrested in connection with the terrorist movement led by Communist leader Carlos Marighela, 58. He was killed in a gun battle in Sao Paulo last week after two Dominican friars, arrested previously, co-operated with police and lured him into an ambush.

Marighela's heir-apparent, Joaquim Camara Ferreira, is believed to have escaped into Uruguay with the aid of a seminary student, Carlos Alberto Christo, also known as Frei Beto.

The newspaper O Estado de Sao Paulo reported that security police raided the Christo Rei Seminary near Porto Alegre last week and found Communist literature, newspaper clippings on terrorist activities and a radio transmitter in Christo's lodgings.

Church authorities have refused to comment on such raids against church property. They also are keeping mum about the role of men of the cloth as police informers and decoys in ambushes.

The man behind the crackdown on churchmen is believed to be Vice-President Admiral Augusto Rademaker, a hardline right-winger with a legendary hatred of communism. As navy minister before his inauguration Oct. 30, he concentrated the efforts of Brazil's navy security branch almost exclusively against militant leftists, and it was he who suggested the death penalty for subversion.

EX-QUEEN RULED 'FIRE HAZARD'

PORT EVERGLADES, Fla. (AP) — The retired liner Queen Elizabeth, now a tourist attraction, has been labelled a fire hazard and closed to the public.

Fire Chief John Gerkin said the liner could not be reopened until the owners observe stricter safety standards, and then only for guided tours.

"They were allowing too many people aboard at one time," Gerkin said. "Once, I found 1,500 to 1,800 people aboard. I asked a security guard which exit he would lead the people to in the event of a fire and he told me, I don't even know where the exits are at.'"

●

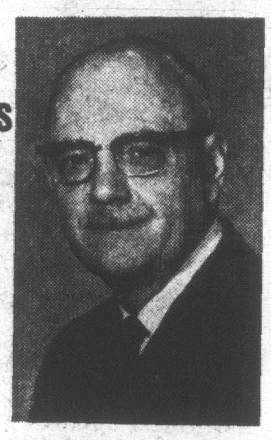

Gerkin said there was a fire aboard the Elizabeth Oct. 31 which company employees put out without calling his department.

"If people had been on board, chaos could have happened," he said. "There was only one thing to do and that was close it down."

Edward Moldt, project supervisor of Queen Ltd., owner of the vessel, said his firm had complied with all fire regulations and that he did not understand why the ship had been shut down.

BRITISH TELL AIR CANADA

Lower Air Fare Plan Out

MONTREAL (CP)—Air Canada has been officially notified by the British Board of Trade that its radical plan to lower transatlantic air fares has been rejected, a spokesman said Tuesday.

The proposal, submitted Oct. 20, would have put a new fare structure into effect Dec. 1 for groups of 50 or more travelling on an excursion basis.

The spokesman said the proposal "has been rejected as submitted."

"However, the company is optimistic that agreement will be reached" on a "compromise" proposal.

Under Air Canada's original proposal the company would have bypassed a regulation of the International Air Transport Association stating that cheap group fares may be extended only to members of existing clubs or similar organizations.

Saigon Leaders' Debates Unruly, Incomprehensible

SAIGON (WP) — The gentleman from Quang Nam left his seat in the chamber, stepped briskly to the microphone and began shouting: "We should shave the ministers' heads; cut off their hair."

Applause rippled across the 19th Century French theatre. Klieg lights snapped on. A government television camera focused on 60 South Vietnamese deputies about to begin an emotional, incomprehensible, typical debate.

The immediate question: A "no confidence" vote in President Nguyen Van Thieu's two-month-old cabinet. The underlying issue: Austerity taxes imposed three weeks ago by the president himself, the gist of Thieu's first personal crisis.

But why not shave Thieu's head if Thieu ordered the taxes, a westerner asked? "Because the ministers are scapegoats, they can be attacked with impunity," came the Vietnamese answer. The minister's ability was not considered important. The principal was.

Each deputy was allowed 10 minutes at the microphone. They marched up in shirt-sleeves to speak extemporaneously, and these were among their first proposals:

● The Lower House should vote no-confidence in the economics and finance ministers but not challenge Thieu's entire cabinet for another two months. If, after two months, inflation has not been arrested, the house should reconsider the question.

Deputies Rarely Agree

● The Lower House should do no such thing. On Wednesday, 53 deputies demanded a no-confidence debate aimed at all ministers. Singling out two ministers for criticism violated the original petition and thus was contrary to house rules.

● The Lower House alone cannot constitutionally vote no confidence in the whole cabinet or individual cabinet members. Under the constitution, such votes require a joint session of the legislature. But the senate has not agreed to sit with the house.

● The Lower House should vote for a national refereudum to determine whether the people favor or oppose the new taxes. After all, Thieu promised to resign from office rather than oppose the will of his people. This might encourage him.

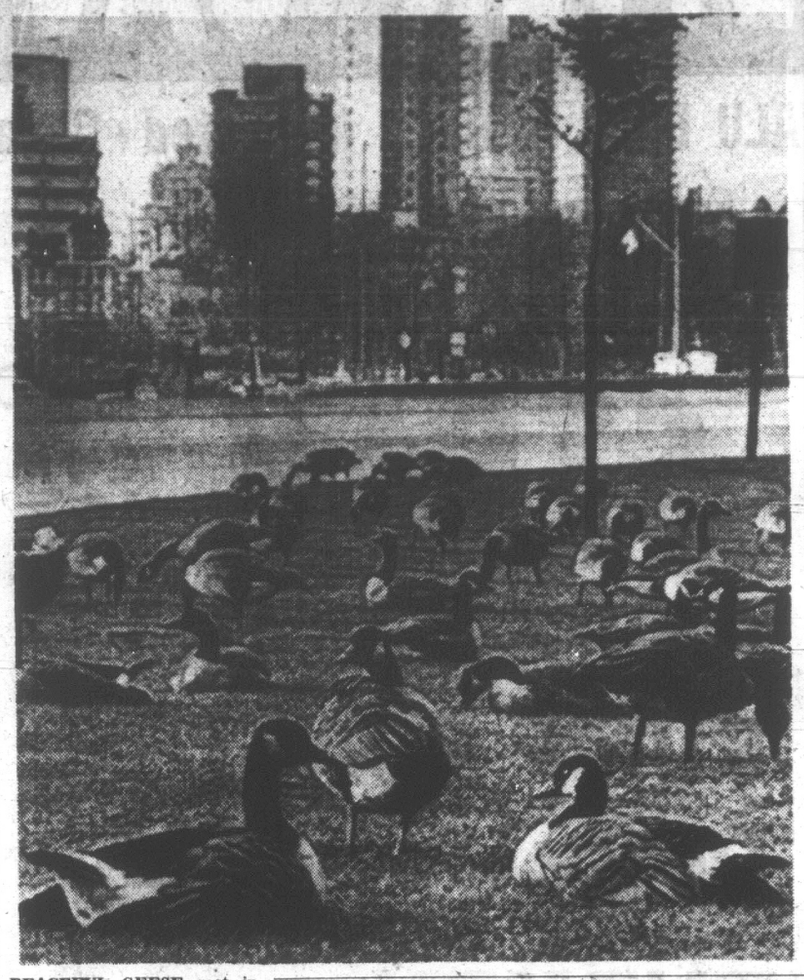

● The Lower House should forget about doing anything and continue the debate. Only in that way will the Thieu government sense the real mood of the nation. None of the resolutions thus far proposed stands a chance of passing anyway.

● The Lower House should vote for a national referendum with Thieu's popularity, the only issue. Meanwhile, the president should accept direction from a council of religious leaders.

Hard to Take Seriously

It would be very easy for a westerner not to take the Lower House seriously. It conjures visions of a midwest Territorial Assembly in the 1830s. The huge majority of members are less than 35, and the oratorical style smacks of Nasser and Castro, not Fulbright or Muskie.

But its proceedings are monitored daily by a Vietnamese-speaking diplomat from the U.S. Embassy. During any given debate, its press gallery contains as many reporters as does the House in Washington. In selecting his new government, Thieu picked ministers able to work with the congressmen and sacked a premier who could not. It has twice chopped Thieu's budgets.

PEACEFUL GEESE rest in Vancouver's Stanley Park, oblivious to West End bustle but apparently well aware of the fact their relaxation is not to be disturbed by eager nimrods. The Canada geese stopped briefly on flight south. (CP Wirephoto.)

Accident Kills G-G

LONDON (AP) — A nine-storey scaffolding collapsed in Whitehall Monday, killing Sir David Rose, governor-general of Guyana, and injuring at least two other men.

The scaffolding, erected for cleaning a building near the Houses of Parliament, collapsed onto a limousine in which Sir David and the men were sitting.

Sir David was in London to give up his post, which will disappear when Guyana becomes a republic in February.

FAULTY BOXCARS STUDIED

Railroads Wasting Grains

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study conducted by the United States agriculture department shows a railway boxcar can leak about six bushels of wheat through defective doors alone from the time it is loaded at a country elevator until it is dumped at a terminal market.

The study was made in 1965 and 1966 on a total of 1,989 incoming boxcars at grain terminals in Kansas City, Minneapolis and Chicago.

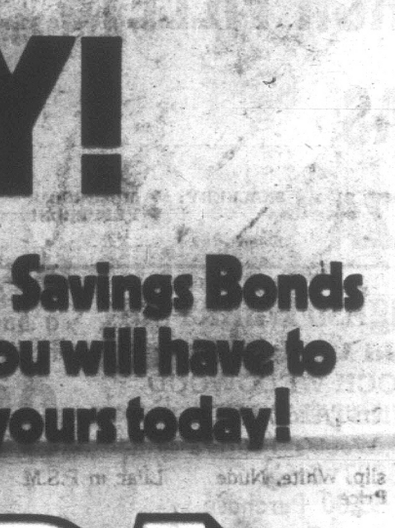

Of the boxcars inspected, the report said, 55 per cent had defects leading to leaks of grain such as corn, wheat and soybeans.

The most conclusive evidence was collected on wheat shipments, the report said, although a wide variety of information was tabulated on shipping losses for the other crops.

No estimate of dollar loss was made on the basis of the latest survey, but the report added that railroads paid more than $2,000,000 each year from 1959 to 1966 on claims involving grain shipped in defective equipment.

Cheap N-Fuel Likely

By WALTER SULLIVAN

SOCHI, U.S.S.R (NYT) — Plans are being drawn by Britain, West Germany and the Netherlands to build two pilot plants for the manufacture of nuclear fuel by a comparatively novel and inexpensive method.

The process, known as gas ultracentrifugation, has evoked alarm among those who believe it may lead to the proliferation of nuclear weapons.

It is reported that construction of the first plant, in the Netherlands, may begin in about a year. The second plant would be in Britain if the three-nation plan now under consideration is adopted.

NOT FOR GERMANY

As a concession to those who fear a German nuclear capability, no plan is projected for Germany. However, the headquarters of the enterprise would be in that country.

The controversy over implications of the plan has come to the surface at the Pugwash Conference, which is under way here.

The conference, the 19th in a series that began in Pugwash, Nova Scotia, in 1957, has brought a number of leading scientists from the East and the West together to discuss ways to check the arms race.

It is generally agreed that, within 10 or 20 years, U.S. plants will be unable to meet the demand of power-hungry west European nations for enriched uranium, which is widely used as reactor fuel.

ENRICHED FUEL

Raw uranium is composed of two types of isotopes, Uranium 238 and Uranium 235. The latter can be split to release energy for a bomb or a power reactor.

The level of Uranium 235 in raw uranium, however, is only 0.7 per cent. If Uranium 238 is removed until the level of Uranium 235 is 7 per cent, the material can be used as enriched reactor fuel.

The Uranium 235 level must be more than 90 per cent to be used in a bomb.

The five nuclear powers—the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China—have built plants that separate the uranium by a sophisticated process known as gaseous diffusion.

According to data presented here, the cost of the American and French plants was about $1.4 billion. The minimum practical plant using centrifuges probably would require almost 100 times less in dollar investment, electric power and size of structures.

The conference has ruled that, to enable freer discussion, those presenting papers cannot be identified.

Efforts have been made for years to develop high-speed centrifuges that could separate the isotopes of uranium, much as milk and cream are separated in a spinning device.

This was a formidable challenge because the weights of the two isotopes are almost identical.

Sufficient progress has been made in the Netherlands, Britain and West Germany for such a process to seem feasible as a source of enriched uranium for European reactors in the next two decades.

U.S. Indian Program Called 'Total Failure'

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. government efforts to provide American Indians with quality education have been marked with near-total failure and haunted by prejudice and official ignorance, a Senate report says.

There are about 600,000 Indians in the United States.

"We have concluded that our national policies for educating American Indians are a failure of major proportions," the report says.

"They have not offered Indian children—either in years past or today—an educational opportunity anywhere near to that offered the great bulk of American children."

The Indian education subcommittee's final report is a distillation of two years of hearings, staff studies and field investigations, begun by the late Senator Robert F. Kennedy and continued by his brother, Senator Edward M. Kennedy.

"The American Indian," the report says, "lives in a state of severe, grinding poverty.

"Ninety per cent of his housing is atrocious and beyond rehabilitation; he suffers the worst health conditions in the nation; his unemployment rate is 50 per cent and the average family income is $1,500 per year."

This situation, linked with an educational system hopelessly inadequate to lift Indians from a self-perpetuating poverty cycle, is a "stain on the national conscience," the report said.

OFFERS 60 STEPS

The subcommittee offered 60 general and specific steps it says will redirect the education of Indians and reform a bureaucratic system it labels stagnant, inefficient and destructively paternalistic.

Current "conditions lead to feelings of anger and frustration, coupled with strong feelings of personal inadequacy and powerlessness."

The report blames much of this on popular prejudice: "the inability to see the Indian as anything other than perpetually "dirty, lazy and drunk."

Trustees to Consider Area-Wide Balloting

When the nine newly-elected Greater Victoria school trustees meet in January they will consider abolishing the system of representation by which they were elected.

At a meeting of the board's education committee Monday there was a brief discussion on the advantages of electing trustees to represent the entire district, rather than current setup where they are elected to represent one of the four municipalities.

In this way, some trustees reasoned, no part of the city could claim to be under-represented, since it could run as many candidates as it wanted for the nine seats available.

Representation according to municipalities is Victoria, three; Saanich three; Oak Bay, two; and Esquimalt, one.

Trustees decided Monday to postpone further discussion until after the Dec. 6 school board elections.

District superintendent A. J. Longmore said individual school boards may choose between over-all district representation and the grants system, and their choice needs only the approval of the Minister of Education.

The idea came up during discussion of a request by the View Royal Ratepayers' Association that the area be given a trustee. Since 1946 View Royal has been attached to Victoria in trustee representation.

A letter from Joe Phillipson, the department of education's superintendent of school board relations, said View Royal is too small to get its own trustee. The move would actually require dropping a trustee from one of the other municipalities, since nine is the maximum number allowed any one district.

School board chairman Dr. C. B. Jameson said if View Royal ratepayers feel they are not getting proper representation they could rectify the situation by running a candidate in annual elections.

'Population Curbs Can Be Achieved'

By REG SILVESTER

Population growth in underdeveloped countries must be cut back to avert a world disaster, says Frank W. Notestein, president emeritus of the New York City population council.

With modern knowledge reducing the death rate, the birth rate must be controlled and that same knowledge applied to improving the economy of the developing nations, he told the Victoria branch of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs Monday.

NEVER STARVATION

He told them the starvation point will never be reached. This age is one of high expectations, and before starvation, it would become an age of massive frustration. The risk is loss of political coherence and revolution.

But Dr. Notestein laughs at the pessimism of younger students of population who don't remember how bad it was 10 years ago.

"At least now, some countries are willing to consider controlling their population," he said.

It is encouraging, he said, that 77 per cent of the people in underdevelped countries live under governments pledged to reducing their birth rate.

And the people want to control their fertility in almost all the countries. Dr. Notestein has found that if a decent contraceptive service is provided they will take advantage of it.

OPTIMISTIC

Other signs for optimism are better methods of contraception and prospects in the laboratory for a virtually costless birth-control device, he said.

Dr. Notestein said a serious world can achieve health and prosperity for all its people — something that has never before been possible.

But it must curtail its population growth and encourage underdeveloped nations to improve economically to prevent massive revolutions that could cost millions of lives.

Dr. Notestein was a professor of demography at the Princeton University for 23 years and was the organizer and first director of the population division of the United Nations.

He has also been an adviser on population control to India's minister of health.

Lollobrigida To Wed U.S. Realtor

ROME (AP) — Actress Gina Lollobrigida announced today she is going to marry George Sl Kaufman, a New York real estate man who said he has never seen one of her movies.

Miss Lollobrigida, 41, made the announcement at a news conference before she and Kaufman, 40, flew to New York from Rome.

The marriage, which Miss Lollobrigida said would take place "as soon as possible," will be the second for both of them.

It will automatically excommunicate the auburn-haired beauty from the Roman Catholic Church and theoretically leave her open to bigamy charges in Italy, which has no provision for divorce.

In the eyes of the church and of Italian authorities, she is still married to a Yugoslav-born doctor and publisher from whom she was separated in 1967 after 17 years of wedlock. Kaufman is divorced.

Film Features Girl's Fight To Stay Alive

A film featuring a 12-year-old girl's fight to stay alive will be seen on Channel 2 at 7:30 this evening.

Titled "A Breath of Life", the film shows how a cystic fibrosis patient, who without help would have died at two, is kept alive by treatments that involve taking 110 pills daily, sleeping in a mist tent, and special exercises.

The film will also deal with other genetic defects, such as muscular dystrophy, hemophilia and mongolism.

Nearly three-fourth of earth — the 70 per cent that comprises the sea floor — remains virtually unexplored and unused.

JUDGE FINDS FAVOR WITH MAN'S APOLOGY

A young man, after kicking the caretaker of an apartment block in the stomach, returned three nights later and apologized to him.

"You are obviously a decent young man," Judge William Ostler told 26-year-old Jimmy Lissa, of 430 Michigan Street, "and your concern for the caretaker is a recommendation in your favor."

Lissa was fined $25.

William McGregor, caretaker of a Michigan Street apartment block, said Lissa came to the premises in the early morning of October 31 and started buzzing residents on the inter-com.

When McGregor interfered, Lissa knocked the keys out of his hand and kicked him in the stomach.

Lissa said he remembered nothing of what happened.

Bertrand Forces Out 'Pro-Separatist' MLA

QUEBEC (CP) — During his leadership campaign, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said there is no room in the government Union Nationale party for separatists.

Tuesday, one of the men Mr. Bertrand had in mind resigned from the Union Nationale caucus in disagreement with the Bertrand government's language legislation.

Out went Jerome Proulx, 39, a teacher elected to the national assembly in St. Jean in the 1966 general election that brought the Union Nationale to power.

Mr. Proulx, who disclosed that Mr. Bertrand had asked for his resignation twice during the language bill debate, said he may join Rene Levesque's separatist Parti Quebecois.

Mr. Bertrand accepted Mr. Proulx's resignation with a smile and told reporters that another dissident backbencher, Antonio Flamand UN—Rouyn-Noranda, should follow Mr. Proulx's example.

The 57-man government caucus met Tuesday night, but the premier would not disclose if it discussed possible expulsion of Mr. Flamand, 36, a teacher first elected in 1966.

The Proulx resignation signalled the changing situation in the Union Natinale, where Mr. Bertrand is asserting his authority as leader with more and more firmness.

Both Mr. Proulx and Mr. Flamand supported Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal's candidacy for the Union Nationale party's leadership at its convention last June.

Both men disagree with the bill's provision to ensure Quebec parents freedom to choose the official language of instruction, a principle Mr. Cardinal reluctantly accepted in cabinet.

Mr. Proulx and Mr. Flamand, like other opponents to the language bill, argue that this freedom will undermine the French-speaking community by accelerating Anglicization of Quebecers.

The bill, which has received second reading, is moving slowly through clause-by-clasue study despite a filibuster by its five opponents in the 108-seat house.

Leading the filibuster is Mr. Levesque, seconded by Yves Michaud, 39, a journalist who resigned from the Liberal caucus rather than vote to approve the bill's principle.

Buffalo Ranching For Fun and Profit

By The Canadian Press

Buffalo steaks and roasts, both on the plate and on the hoof is fast becoming a new national industry as buffalo ranching — for fun and profit — becomes established.

Since 1967, the national parks branch has been selling surplus buffalo by tender, rather than slaughtering the animals to prevent overpopulation. In 1968 and 1969 the branch sold 13 groups of buffalo, totalling 260 head, to nine different buyers at a total price of $44,513.

Both purchasers and government officials express optimism on the prospects for marketing buffalo meat. But it will be some time, if ever, before buffalo steaks compete with beef at the supermarket.

Armand Guyon of St. Raymond, Que., who bought a herd of 25 in 1968 for $5,500, says he has received requests from Europe for buffalo meat, but more requests have come from Montreal and Toronto restaurants.

He feels the Canadian market will be large enough to make it unnecessary to ship to Europe by the time he has built up his herd and starts selling, perhaps next year.

PROCESS IS SLOW

Shubenacadie, N.S., will be the site of another buffalo herd in January. A group of 30 prominent Halifax businessmen are bringing 30 buffalo to the province for the commercial production of buffalo meat and as a tourist attraction.

A parks branch spokesman said one buyer just marches his animals straight to the abattoir, while another keeps his buffalo as a hobby.

"Our hope is that they will by and large go into herds for reproduction purposes."

A moderately good gourmet market for buffalo meat already existed in the United States and a similar one could grow up in Canada.

"There has been over the years a steady and growing interest in buffalo meat."

But five to 10 years is required to build up a herd, and it is "a pretty moot point at this stage" whether anyone will be making much of a profit.

The federal agriculture department carried out experiments from 1919 to 1950 at Wainwright, Alta., and from 1950 to the early 1960s in larger quarters at Manyberries, Alta., to determine whether buffalo could be raised like cattle.

CITE DRAWBACKS

The results were mixed. Pure buffalo did not adapt well, but "cattalo"—three-quarters Hereford, one-quarter buffalo—showed some good results.

Grain-fed young buffalo and cattalo produced meat of "excellent quality and taste," said Dr. Hobarth Peters, supervisor of the later experiments.

But they were nervous in feed lots and put on weight slowly. Studies showed that cattalo gained an average of 1.61 pounds daily, while Herefords on the same diet gained 2.52 pounds.

Cattalo ate 100 pounds more hay and 32 pounds more grain than Herefords for every 100 pounds gained. Pure buffalo did significantly worse than cattalo.

In addition to being inefficient meat producers, cattalo were less fertile than Herefords. The cattalo cows could match their Hereford counterparts, but buffalo and cattalo bulls did not.

Another problem with bison is the length they take to reach maturity. An agriculture department spokesman pointed out that age, not just weight, is a major factor in marketing.

'Reformed' KKK Head Dragon Joins Inter-Racial Campaign

By DON McKEE

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — As a grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, Calvin Fred Craig burned his share of crosses in cow pastures and other places.

Now, since he quit the Klan last year, Craig gets fired up over such un-Klannish things as the plight of poor blacks, slums, justice in the courts, fair taxation. He attends integrated meetings and proclaims the need for non-violence.

And he even digs soul food.

"I would just like to see the little people—the little property owner, the poor black and the poor white—get a better break all around," said the ex-dragon, now involved in an inter-racial program to fight Atlanta slums.

"Until some of the injustices are corrected, these people aren't going to be any better off," Craig, 41, said in an interview. He talked at length of social, economic, racial problems and the need for new approaches.

This is the same Craig who a few years ago was a head cheerleader for segregation and white supremacy, leading anti-civil rights marches as grand dragon, or state president, of the United Klans of America Inc.

Craig refused to turn over Klan records to the House committee on un-American activities in the 1965 investigation of the various Klan groups. He paid a $1,000 fine for contempt of Congress, while three other Klan officials got a year in prison.

VOLUNTEERS SERVICES

The new Craig, who avoids outright denouncing of the Klans, devotes his spare time to volunteer voter registration and the Model Cities program, a federally-financed program to improve blighted urban areas.

Craig is a member of the Model Cities steering committee, and was elected by residents of an almost all-white area while still grand dragon in early 1968. He is one of five whites on the 15-member committee.

"At the first committee meeting," recalled Xernona Clayton, a Negro who is chairman of the Model Cities community relations division, "Mr. Craig moved twice when he found himself sitting next to a Negro. Now he just sits anywhere."

Craig's metamorphosis began long before he quit the Klan. In 1965 he was proposing a state biracial committee—to include him.

"You can't solve a problem by only negotiating with people who believe in the same thing you do," he said. Craig got involved in the Model Cities program, he said, because it afforded a chance for the kind of dialogue he sought.

After he went to several meetings, he was elected to the steering committee. About five months later, April 27, 1968, he announced he was resigning from the Klan.

KLAN WAS OPPOSED

Asked why he quit the Klan, he said: "There was some opposition concerning my being involved in Model Cities. But regardless of how you feel, you gotta go to the conference table. You can't have violence unless you have all-out violence."

He said he had felt "violent" in the past. "I trained most of my people for some of the most violent . . ." He did not finish, but admitted holding two bomb-making training schools for his Klansmen.

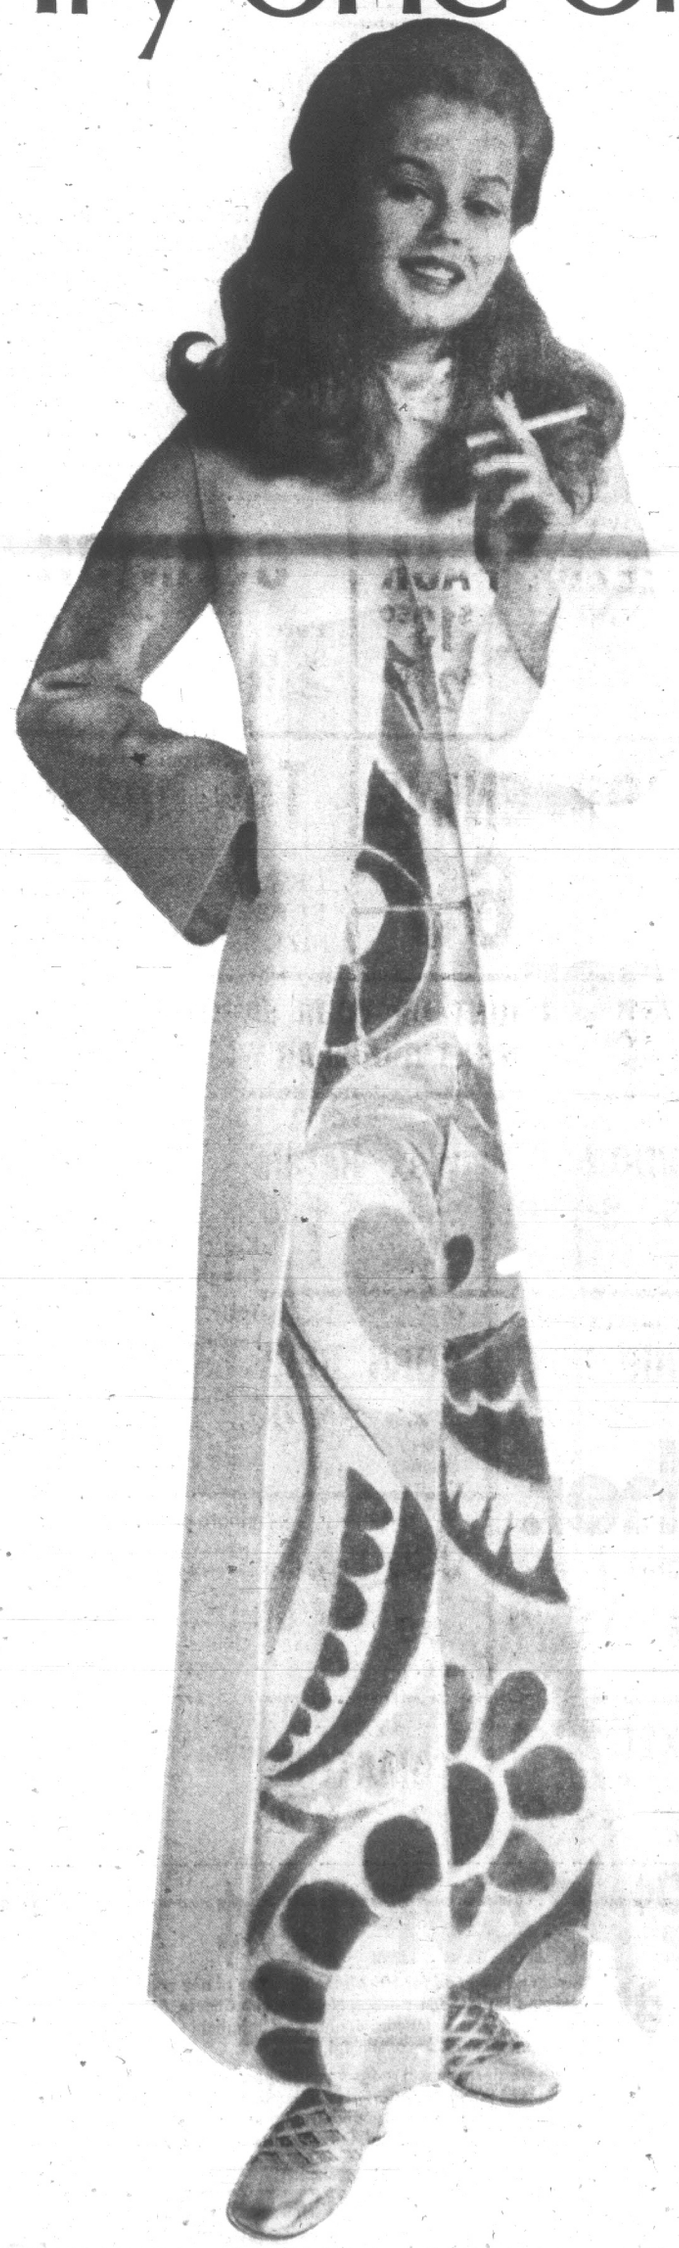

Craig, who spent at least 10 years in the Klan, says he believes he accomplished "just about as much" since he quit the Klan as he did while a member.

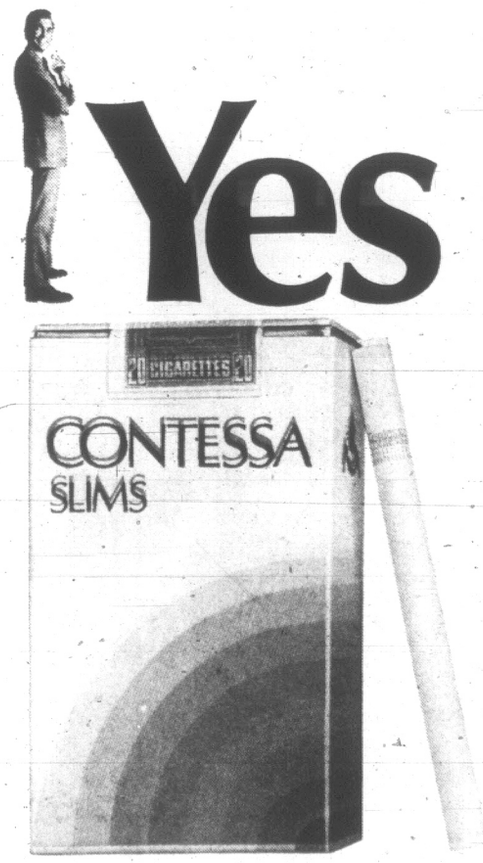

"I don't agree with a lot of people," he said. "But at least we aren't out on the streets hollering at each other."

Space Pact Signed

CANBERRA (Reuters) — An agreement to establish a joint defence space communications centre in Australia was signed by External Affairs Minister Gordon Freeth and U.S. Ambassador William Rice today. The agreement was announced on April 23. The station is expected to be in operation by late 1970.

GULF OF GEORGIA PRESERVE URGED

'We're Saying to Hell With the Future'

DUNCAN — A Duncan city alderman says the Gulf of Georgia area from Port Hardy to Sidney should be declared a natural preserve in which all pollution should be prohibited by law.

Ald. Martin Lukaitis told city council it is not enough to fight pollution, it should be banned.

"The Gulf Islands should be declared a recreation area by the government in perpetuity.

"We are becoming so selfish for ourselves and saying to hell with the future for our children."

His remarks came during discussion of a request by Nanaimo Regional District to support a ban on seismic tests by Gulf Oil Company in the Gulf of Georgia. All but Ald. Tom Kilpatrick voted in favor of the resolution.

Kilpatrick said the oil company is only asking for permission to see what was on the ocean floor.

He said council is jumping to the conclusion that tests would lead to an application to drill for oil.

Ald. Rois Harder said "when a man tests the bathwater with his finger, he intends to jump in."

Ald. Jim Saunders described a flight by a small plane over Santa Barbara after a Union Oil company well sprung a leak and saturated beaches "with a sickening, gooey mess.

Saunders said he had lived on the waterfront all his life and had seen parts of it turn from paradise to junkyard.

"This morning I counted 64 boats in Satellite Channel, also causing pollution.

"With oil wells there too it won't be fit to live near."

Mayor Jim Quaife said seismic testing alone could cause damage to the sea floor and if a protest was not made now it would leave an opening for the government to say later: "Why didn't you speak up when the seismic tests were asked for?"

BIG CHEQUE, BIG HEARTS of the Duncan Rotary Club. The club donated $5,000 to Operation Recreation's swimming pool fund Monday. Left to right are Rotary district governor Craig Reid, of Qualicum Beach; Duncan Rotary president John McFaul; Op-Rec chairman Pat Moore, and Rotarian Horst Nowrath. Op-Rec will reach $41,000 of its $100,000 goal with addition of the $5,000. Below, Elizabeth Zygmunt, 16, and Doug Angus, 15, receive trophies from swimathon chairman Dave Rose. Special Status For Indian Gov't Hit by Alderman

DUNCAN—Preference to Indians accepting municipal status is inconsistent with the Municipal Act and is not helping the Indians either, city council was told Monday.

Ald. Rois Harder said Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell was calling for union through establishment of regional boards and then supporting separation by creating more municipalities.

"This is two-faced double-talk," he said. "The minister is creating problems for the city with this inconsistent attitude."

The comments followed a report by Mayor Jim Quaife on his recent visit to see Campbell regarding an announcement by the Cowichan Band to secede part of their band lands from the city.

Council resolved to invite the minister—"and no substitutes will be accepted"—to meet them and representatives of the Cowichan Band council as soon as possible.

UNENVIBLE POSITION

Quaife quoted Cmpbell as saying, "the basic concept for an Indian municipality would be a skeleton type of municipal government with the opportunity of adopting only those sections of the Municipal Act that they want to."

Harder said it would be unfair to other municipalities if one group was given special concessions.

Quaife agreed the municipality "next door" would be placed in an "unenviable" position and establishment of another municipality next to the city would place the city in an "untenable" position.

"While attempting to facilitate better use of existing services in co-operation with North Cowichan we would at the same time be called upon to provide services to a new municipality to the south."

SHOPPING COMPLEX

The Cowichan Band wants to secede a portion of land south of Trunk Road and west of the E & N railway tracks to build a shopping complex and apartment block.

Quaife said he was told by Campbell that "it should be impressed upon them (the Indians) that they withdraw all Indian lands and not just one small portion."

The city could spend considerable money in the area and in five years be faced with the proposition of more land secession.

'USELESS HOURS'

Ald. Jim Saunders said if the Indians wanted to secede they should be allowed to proceed immediately.

"We can't seem to get anywhere with them and have spent many useless hours trying to work out arrangements to suit us both."

Variety Concert, Dance Slated To Raise Funds for Swim Pool

DUNCAN — More Operation Recreation activities to raise money for the covered pool at Pioneer Park were unveiled at Op-Rec Centre today.

A dance will be held at Moose Home at 9 p.m. following a variety concert at Cowichan senior secondary school Friday at 8 p.m. The concert is being sponsored by Cowichan Music Festival Committee.

The Fraternal Order of Eagles will sponsor bingo in aid of the pool fund at Eagles Hall on Station Street Nov. 19. A top prize of $300 is offered.

Hearings Sought For Fishermen

TOFINO—Tom Barnett, MP for Comox-Alberni, has told fishermen he will urge the federal fisheries committee to hold meetings in west coast communities so fishermen can give their views on the second phase of salmon licence proposals.

The fisheries licence proposals instituted by Fisheries Minister Jack Davis divide salmon fishing vessels into A and B categories.

Under the scheme, a vessel to remain in the A category, the production average for a consecutive four-year period would have to be $5,000 a year in landed value of salmon.

BELOW AVERAGE

If a vessel fell below the production average, it would drop into B category where it would be frozen and phased out of the industry. B Class vessels cannot be renewed or replaced.

Leaders of Indian communities say the proposals will eliminate 80 per cent of the present Indian fishermen from the industry.

A large number of Indian vessels are not equipped with today's sophisticated fishing gear and their catches are usually below average.

B.C. Tel 'Penalizes' City's Growth

DUNCAN — The British Columbia Telephone Company should be taken over by the provincial government like the B.C. Hydro and B.C. Ferries, Ald. Alan Kerr told city council Monday night.

Kerr's remarks came in advance of a resolution to protest a notice of intention by the telephone company to increase the city's rate grouping. The move would lead to an increase in subscriber's bills.

Mayor Jim Quaife said it seemed that the city was being "penalized" because it is prospering.

Ald. Rois Harder did not take part in the discussion because he is a local B.C. Tel official.

He said lightheartedly afterwards that council join him in a tour of the local facilities.

OIL SLICK CLEANED UP AT HARMAC PULP MILL

NANAIMO (CP) — Officials of MacMillan Bloedel, Ltd., said Tuesday efforts to clean up oil, which spilled into the water under the dock at the Harmac pulp mill, were successful.

More than 250 gallons of oil leaked from a broken pipe. A log boom was built to contain it and detergents used to clean it up.

For the 19th Time, UN Votes To Deny Red Chinese a Seat

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — For the 19th time the General Assembly has barred Communist Chinese participation in the United Nations.

The 126-member assembly Tuesday defeated the annual Albanian resolution calling for the replacement of Nationalist China with the regime in Peking. The vote was 48 for, 56 against and 21 abstentions, including Canada.

Last year's vote was 44 for, 58 against and 23 abstentions.

The assembly voted 71-48-4 that the matter was an important question needing a two-thirds majority for passage.

For the first time, neither Canada nor the Soviet Union spoke in the debate, not even to explain their vote.

Canadan's reason was that she is in the midst of recognition negotiations with the Peking regime in Stockholm. She is certain to vote yes after there is an agreement. For three years Canada has abstained.

Prime Minister Trudeau said in a press conference here that the Stockholm talks are, "I hope," in process of "winding up."

RUSSIANS COOL

The silence of the Soviet Union and three other East Bloc delegations, Byelorussia, Ukraine and Czechoslovakia, reflects a new low point in Sino-Soviet relations.

Italy, which like Canada is engaged into recognition talks with Peking, switched her vote this year to abstention from no. She also dropped a proposal of previous years that would have had Secretary-General U Thant appoint an ad hoc committee to investigate whether China wanted to on the UN.

Belgium, another country interested in establishing relations with Peking, also abstained.

It had been an open secret here that Canada would not speak this year and would abstain on the vote, failing an unexpected announcement of agreement from Stockholm.

Some informed Western observers said they believed Albania and some of her friends stalled off the vote as long as possible in the hope there would be a Canadian-China agreement.

The debate this year was marked by the continued coolness of the Soviet bloc to the Chinese—even those members who spoke displayed no enthusiasm for Peking—and by a modification of the attitude of some Western countries.

New Zealand, which voted against the resolution, surprised other countries during the debate by saying a way must be found to get China into the UN.

Like many other countries, New Zealand voted no because the resolution called for the expulsion of Nationalist China.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp created another stir here in April when he told reporters that, on the basis of what Canadians then understood at the Stockholm talks, he believed China wants to be a member of the UN. Trudeau repeated this opinion Tuesday.

INDIANS OFFER $24 FOR ISLAND

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — More than 50 American Indians representing 20 tribes have made a mock attempt to buy Alcatraz Island for $24 in cloth and hippie beads.

They were ferried over in a Canadian boat, but were refused permission to land.

Four young men invaded the forbidding island in San Francisco Bay—three by swimming 100 yards from a barque, and one by getting a lift from a small boat when he became exhausted.

The four remained on the east side of the 22-acre rock for about 15 minutes and were taken back to the mainland in a small boat.

The chief of the expedition, Adam Nordwall, 40, a Chippewa from San Leandro, Calif., had hoped to present the beads and cloth to caretakers on the island, but two small boats he ordered didn't show up.

So Ronald Craig, 37, of Vancouver took the Indians over free in his new Monte Cristo, but the ship was too big to put in at Alcatraz, and the coast guard said nobody could land without permission of the General Services Administration.

The Indians want to "reclaim" Alcatraz, a federal prison until 1963, for an Indian centre to replace their own centre recently destroyed by fire. The San Francisco Bay area has 30,000 persons of American Indian ancestry, Nordwall said.

The proposal is the latest of dozens for the island, for which the government wants $2,000,000.

Russians Expected to Stress Parity Before Agreeing to Arms Limitations

MOSCOW (WP) — The Soviets are approaching next week's Strategic Arms Limitation talks in Helsinki with no great expectations and only three sorts of hints about their likely negotiating strategy. These are:

● —Vague assertions of a claim to parity with the United States.

● — An inclination to wait for the United States to make the first offer or the first concession.

● — A tendency to want both new defensive (ABM) and offensive (MIRV) systems to be discussed.

No authoritative statement has been made.

●

This is natural, given the long history of Soviet secrecy about defence matters. Western observers here assume it also reflects a condition they consider axiomatic: The division in the Soviet leadership between representatives of the Russian military-industrial complex who want to maintain or increase the rate of weapons development, and others who want to limit the arms race to reduce international tension or to use the resources to speed economic growth.

Recent evidence of this division is spotty and antedates the agreement to hold SALT talks, so it is probably not specifically related.

Articles by Soviet generals in August and September suggested that some military leaders think the Soviet Union would win a nuclear war and that Russia must have a technology and an economy that can produce "complicated modern weapons" and survive nuclear missile attacks.

●

The articles were clearly part of an argument against arms limitations—perhaps as much for budget as for strategic purposes.

The disagreement is apt to subject the Soviet SALT position to continual reshaping, the observers feel.

The one constant is apt to be the desire for parity. A year ago, Soviet Premier Kosygin told visiting U.S. Senators Albert Gore (D-Tenn.) and Claiborne Pell (D-R.I.) that agreement on arms limitation was unlikely before some sort of parity could be achieved.

●

President Nikolai Podgorny stressed this again last Thursday, when he expressed hope for a "positive outcome" to the talks but said, "we will never allow anyone to talk to us from a 'position of strength.'"

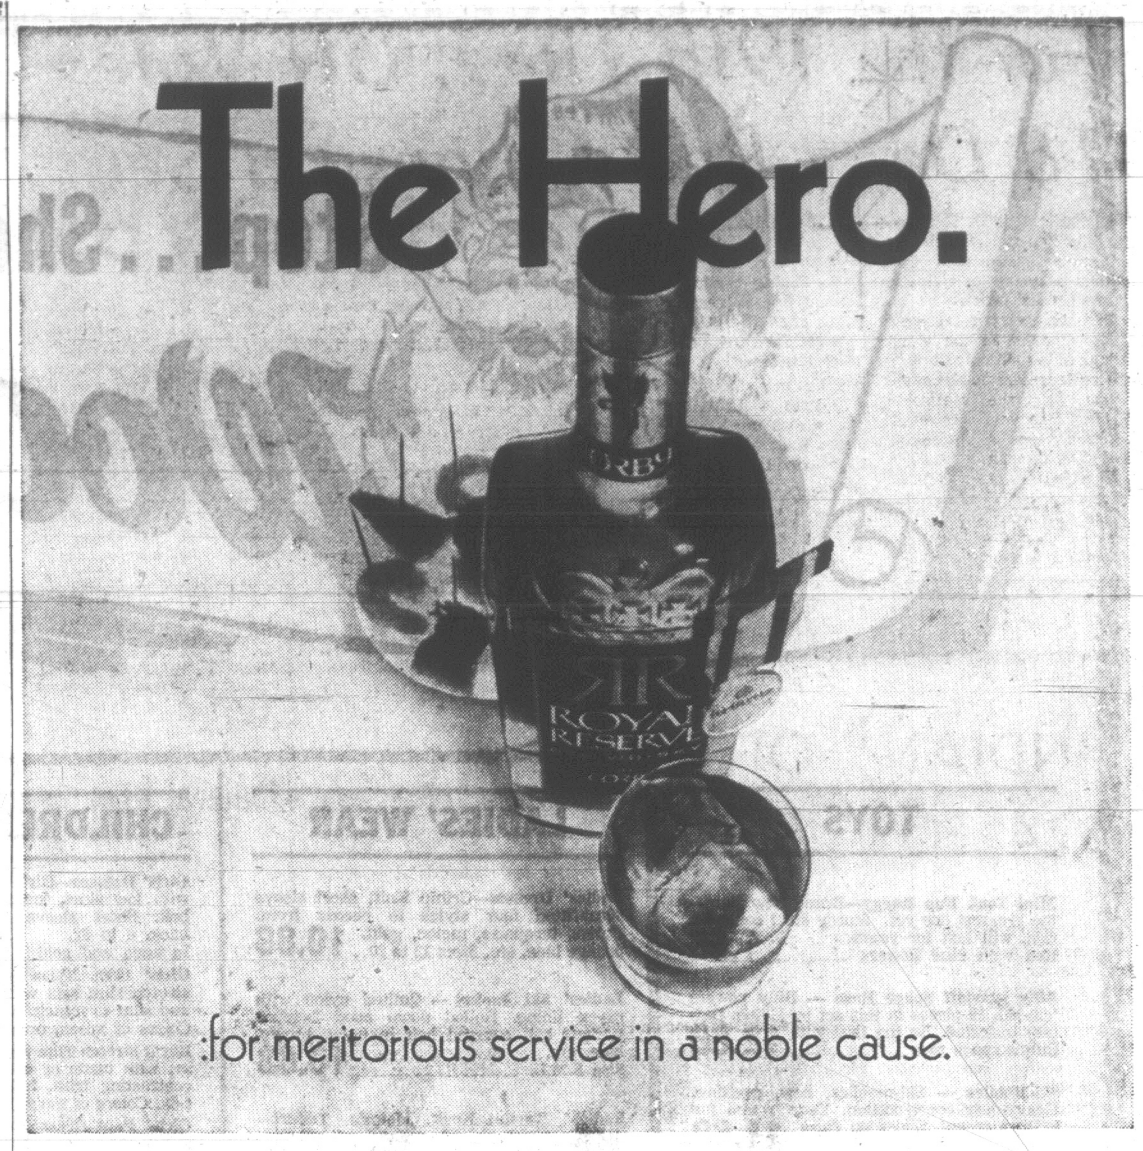

The Soviets have never defined their idea of parity, however. Even as sophisticated a thinker as Georgy Arbatov, head of the Institute of American Studies here, has said only that it is futile for Americans to think everything is all right as long as they have a "three or four-fold superiority".

Westerners do not know if the Soviets are thinking in terms of land-based ICBMs, in which western intelligence sources in Washington say they will soon outnumber the United States, 1,350 to 1,054; or warheads, in which America has 2.5-to-1 superiority; or megatonnage, in which the Soviets have a nearly 3-to-1 lead.

●

In the usual meaning of "parity," however, the Soviets are clearly "more equal" than they used to be. The issue therefore does not look insuperable from Moscow unless America is going to assert the right to achieve a 1965-style lead over the Soviet Union before any limitations go into effect.

The Kremlin's inclination to let the Americans make the first move is inferred from the remarks of Soviet officials and the tones and grimaces that accompany them.

Moon Rocks Dated With Solar System Creation

By VICTOR COHN

WASHINGTON (WP) — Man has at last put his hands on some of the first material of creation of the solar system.

The moon rocks returned by the Apollo 11 astronauts have now been "very firmly" dated as 4.6 billion years old — roughly the date when the earth and all the planets were formed.

The oldest rocks so far found on much-battered and disturbed earth are some 3.3 billion years old.

The precise dating was done in two laboratories, one at California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, the other still unnamed. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has told all scientists working on lunar material not to make further statements until investigators' conference in January.

But eminent lunar theorist Dr. Harold C. Urey, speaking in San Diego, revealed the new date. "I am not permitted" to say more, he added.

One of the labs, it was learned, is that of Dr. G. J. Wasserburg at Caltech. Wasserburg declined to name the other, except to say it was not that of Dr. Paul Gast of Columbia University credited with the dating in one report.

Wasserburg and D. S. Burnett determined the ratio of rare gases in lunar samples by analyzing them with a mass spectrometer, an instrument that separates atoms by their tiny differences in weight.

The Washington Post reported Aug. 24 that scientists had learned in their preliminary investigations that the moon rocks were "almost unbelievably ancient, perhaps even 4.5 billion years old, the very age of the solar system."

The leader of the team that did that dating, Dr. Oliver A. Schaeffer of the State University of New York at Stony Brook, subsequently reported dating lunar rocks all the way from 2.4 to 3.7 billion years old.

But Schaeffer used a potassium-argon dating method — one that measures the ratio between these gases — that really may indicate only the last time the rocks melted. Wasserburg used a more difficult rubidium-strontium method that should indicate how old the same rocks were in the first place.

One scientist Friday called this "news of tremendous importance scientifically — it may be a new key to the whole formation of the solar system."

Urey said in San Diego that the finding backed his favorite view of the moon's origin — that of a small planet formed far from earth in a distant part of the solar system, by accretion or collision of material left over from the larger planet's creation. It then somehow wandered and was captured by earth.

In other words, he believes it is a "stranger planet" rather than either a "sister planet" — one formed in the same vicinity as the earth — or a "daughter planet," a mere piece of the earth.

NEW FEDERAL MINISTER without portfolio is Herb Gray, 38, MP for Windsor West. He has been given special responsibilities in the finance department for preparation for the present parliamentary session. (CP Wirephoto.)

From Back Bench To Cabinet Post Logical Sequence

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — When Herb Gray, Liberal Member of Parliament for Windsor West, was appointed parliamentary secretary in the finance ministry shortly after the 1968 general election, he stepped into one of the most coveted — and most demanding — jobs for ambitious backbench MPs in Ottawa.

OTTAWA (CP) — When Herb Gray, Liberal member of Parliament for Windsor West, was appointed parliamentary secretary in the finance ministry shortly after the 1968 general election, he stepped into one of the most coveted—and most demanding—jobs for ambitious backbench MPs in Ottawa.

No official House of Commons aide to the finance minister of the day has failed to be appointed later to the cabinet.

Mr. Gray, now 38, continued in that tradition as Prime Minister Trudeau named him Oct. 15 as minister without portfolio, with special responsibilities in the finance department for preparation for the current parliamentary session.

With a heavy legislative task ahead of him, he has credentials established in his eight years in Parliament which equal or exceed those of his predecessors.

He is also the first Jew to sit at the federal cabinet's council table since Confederation.

Hirsute Adornments Pass

He is also the first minister, as far as anyone can recall, to combine a brush cut and sideburns. A former prime minister, it is said, once rejected a likely candidate for a cabinet post because he thought a brush cut made him look too immature.

Not so with Herb Gray. Although not yet 40, he has spent more than half his life in politics of one kind or another. As a Grade 13 student in Windsor, Ont., his birthplace, he was in an intramural political club, and was active in the Liberal Club at the university.

Senator Paul Martin (L—Ontario), long-time Windsor Liberal MP for Essex East, was his political mentor on such subjects as how to win election and re-election. First elected in 1962, Mr. Gray was re-elected with larger vote counts in 1963 and 1965.

Mr. Gray followed the Martin route into politics through law, and his interest in international as well as domestic affairs.

He has described himself as a "liberal Liberal," an appraisal borne out by his voting record and views.

Stocky, Full of Detail

He's a stocky, full-of-detail man peering at the world through thick-lensed glasses. He has something of Senator Martin's warmth of understanding of people, and perhaps a special sensitivity to achievement traceable to the influence of his Ukrainian-born parents. It is reported, for example, that when young Herb Gray won his first court case, defending a youth on a difficult charge of motor manslaughter, he wept.

Sincere and hard-working almost to the point of being labelled a man lacking humor, Mr. Gray has been unstinting in application to his job. Long after other MPs have left the Commons for the night, Herb Gray is apt to be found picking up his mail at the Commons post office and trudging home with a heavy brown leather brief case.

Soon after the Liberals came to power under former prime minister Lester B. Pearson in 1963, Mr. Gray was elected chairman of the Commons finance committee and served three years. By his intensive homework on all subjects, and tenacity in questioning witnesses, he raised the committee's stature and prestige.

Avoided Partisan Debates

His chairmanship saw the committee plod through the tangled 1966-6 revision of the Bank Act and associated legislation. He avoided partisan political argument in the committee, earning compliments for his impartiality from Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West), Conservative finance critic, and the NDP's counterpart, the late Colin Cameron (Nanaimo-Cowichan - The Islands).

More than anyone else, Herb Gray made the finance committee a prize appointment for any other new MP who is interested in its work.

In his new cabinet post, he is to be responsible for guaranteed loan programs administered by the finance department—such as farm improvement and student loans—and laws governing various financial institutions.

For the current session, this means that Mr. Gray will be in command of legislation sponsored by the government to write new charters for the trust loan companies, and a new Investment Companies Act.

Stepping Stones to Top

The latter will extend federal inspection and regulation to the tangled group of companies that borrow funds from the public for investment in business and industry. It will also ensure that Canada retains ownership and control of Canadian firms dealing in instalment sales contracts and loans to corporations or individuals.

Company law, particularly that affecting financial institutions, is about as far away as one can get in parliamentary life from those more easily understood federal programs affecting individual voters, such as Air Canada, the CBC, the post office, and pensions.

Thant, Trudeau Debate Pollution

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Secretary-General U Thant has assured Prime Minister Trudeau that developing countries are generally aware of the problem of ocean pollution.

Trudeau mentioned Canada's serious concern over ocean pollution in talks with the secretary-general Tuesday, and the Canadian leader later disclosed Thant's comments before a press conference.

The prime minister came here to discuss with the secretary-general his proposal for an international regime to control ocean pollution, particularly in the Arctic.

The prime minister indicated to Thant some concern about the attitude of developing countries to the problem of sea pollution, especially as some states seemed to have no concern about industrial pollution as long as they got industries.

But he said Thant has told him that the developing countries are just as "interested as we in these problems."

Trudeau said that the UN is the obvious place to deal with an international regime. But he added that there are 18 forums here dealing with different environmental matters and that there is need for some co-ordination.

On other matters at the news conference, Trudeau said:

—The Stockholm talks between Canada and Communist China on recognition are making progress and the negotiations are "in the process, I hope, of winding up."

—He discussed disarmament and the Middle East with Thant. Canada is "extraordinarily concerned" about the nuclear arms race but encouraged that talks will begin between the Soviet Union and the United States over limitation of strategic weapons.

9 IN MEMORIAM

GRAHAM—In loving memory of Dad who passed away Nov. 11, 1968, and Mom who passed away May 2, 1952.
Our lips cannot tell how we miss them;
Our hearts cannot tell what to say;
God alone knows how we miss them
In our homes so lonesome today.
—Always loved and remembered, Dorothy Travis and family, Jack Graham and family.

GILLAN — In loving memory of our dear son, age 15 years, Douglas Gillan, who suddenly left us on Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, 1964.
Broken is the family circle
Our dear Son has passed away
Passed from earth and earthly labours
Into bright and perfect day.
We must all cease from our languish
On the grave of him we love
Still we strive—prepared to meet him
In the better world above.
In our hearts your memory lingers
Always tender, fond and true
To a beautiful life, that's so soon ended
Douglas, he're a day, but what we think of you.
Just when your life seemed to be brightest
Just when your years were tenderest too
God had called and you must answer
"I'll rest Dear Lord" in Home so new."
Since death its gloom and shadows cast a nite
Into our home, and took from us a shining light
We still may miss that light and ever will
For in his vacant place there's none to fill.
What we have lost, Our God in Heaven has gained
The best memories, still in our hearts remain
We pray that God would guide us in his Sovereignty care
His "brighter" light still guide us till we meet up there.
The Blood of Jesus washed away his sin
As white as wool, although his eyes went dim.
He was made pure — too pure on this cold earth to stay
And so God's Angels bore, our dearest son away.
The stars seem dim, as we whisper low
Our darling boy, we miss you so.
Although death came with such a friendly care
Conveyed, the opening bud to Heaven and bade it blossom there.
Now may we pause to Praise our Father
For our family altar here
For t'was at our family altar Douglas would lead out in prayer
Read the Word of God together.
Fathers, Mothers — children share
Many precious truths are written in its pages bright and fair
Don't neglect God's Word dear neighbour
God may call you, so prepare, —Loved and remembered always. Mom, Dad and Paul.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

MOVIE TO WATCH tonight is Fail Safe, Channel 8 at midnight. It's a doomsday thriller which concentrates on the tense few hours after the United States accidentally launches a nuclear attack on Moscow. Henry Fonda, Walter Matthau, Dan O'Herlihy and Frank Overton star.

IRISH COFFEE. 10:30, Chainel 2. A group of Canadian newspapermen discuss the world of journalism on the CBC's newest panel show format. Earlier editions have been less than outstanding.

WEDNESDAY NIGHT MOVIE. 8:30, Channels 2, 6. A Fine Madness. Sean Connery, in a refreshing switch from his James Bond roles, plays an incorrigible village poet. It's excellent comedy.

GLEN CAMPBELL HOUR. 7:30, Channe 7. Guests Tony Randall and the Lennon Sisters concentrate on the old college pigskin picture songs like "Buckle Down Winsocki"; Randall offers a humorous rendition of the Beatle tune "I Want to Hold Your Hand;" the Lennon Sisters sing it sweet in a love song medley, and join their host for more "Sugar, Sugar." Songwriter Willie Nelson plugs "Take My Word," and also works with Glen in the concert spot.

SPECIAL. 9, Channel 5. "On Broadway." Diana Ross and the Supremes and The Temptations give a little bounce and zip to a multitude of Broadway show tunes, proving that the old standards aren't dead yet. The two groups start out with "I Got Rhythm" and "You Are My Lucky Star;" Diana Ross and The Supremes dip into hits of the '30s like "Mad About the Boy" and "Little Girl Blue;" The Temptations medley including "Doin' What Comes Naturally" and "Everything's Coming Up Roses." A couple of comedy sketches about soda fountain girls and jokes on musical operettas about Indian girls and Canadian Mounties, serve as pace breakers, and the kids bring the curtain down with "Let the Sunshine In" from "Hair."

SPECIAL. 7:30, Channel 5. "Hey, Hey, Hey — It's Fat Albert." Amusing half hour. Comedian Bill Cosby had two choices in preparing this special—either to create some new material, or figure out still another way to use the routines he's been performing over the past decade. He chose the latter, an animated version of several of his better monologues, and the result is a mixed bag. The animation is offbeat and quite interesting, and the stories of Bill's childhood, though wonderful, rarely complement each other. At times, the cartoon effect helps, but at others is tends to slow up the timing so vital for comedy. OK Bill, but next time, how about some new material!

SPECIAL. 8, Channel 5. "Johnny Carson's Evening of Comedy." Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show" fans get a rare opportunity to see him cavorting all over the place in comedy sketches with a trio of talented Broadway actors—George C. Scott, Maureen Stapleton and Marian Mercer. Not all the comedy works, but when it does, it's pretty funny stuff. Perhaps the best spot of the evening is a makeshift awards' ceremony honoring the best "sleazy" films of the year. Other highlights include Carson's monologue about a children's show host suffering from the big night before; George C. Scott's broad characterization of a southern despot in a Tennessee Williams' takeoff, and the quartet preparing to give a music recital. Carson obviously enjoys doing this type of show and he's chosen a cast of pros to help him carry it off.

SPECIAL. 10, Channel 5. "Norman Rockwell's America." Artist Norman Rockwell's famous magazine illustrations of kids, Indians, country doctors, and travelling salesmen, become sketch material for Jonathan Winters, Michele Lee and Dick Smothers. Rockwell's familiar paintings flash across the screen in bursts of nostalgia, dissolving into a variety of skits. Dick Smothers and Michele Lee play a couple at breakfast minus the honeymoon glow; Winters is a hambone country doctor and an inquisitive cop; and in the longest sketch, Winters and Miss Lee go sentimental portraying a lonely travelling salesman and an office spinster. Michele Lee sings in an art gallery, a setting for a controversy over nudes, and Rockwell appears in the finale for a chat with Winters, to talk about his Four Freedoms painting and his latest "Men on the Moon" cover, due on newstands shortly.

"SAM, TURN ON THE BLUE LIGHT, THE MAN WANTS A BLUE BOAT."

There's a wrong way to sell a boat. And a right way, harder.
The right way is only a little bit more.
We think a man who's going to take his family or friends out in a boat deserves some candor.
So when we sell you a Bertram or some other good boat, we'll tell you what they are. And what they aren't.
We'd rather make a fast friend than a fast buck.

WE HAVE A USED CAR PROBLEM—a very unusual one! We opened a nice new used car lot and in the very first week we sold almost all our used cars. So we're in the embarrassing position of *having a used car lot with very few cars on it — that's our used car problem. Mind you, what we lack in quantity we certainly make up for in quality.
In fact, if you're looking for a Ford or a Chev we have the nicest answers imaginable! The Ford is a 1968 Galaxie 500 sedan with only 7,000 miles on it and the Chev is a 1966 Impala 4-dr. hardtop with only 23,000 miles. Both are automatic with power steering and brakes, and radio. The Ford is priced at $3,150 and the Chev at $2,500.
You're probably sick of reading the hackneyed phrases we all use to describe our cars so suffice it to say that if either of these is the kind of car you're looking for you should come in to

TERRITORIES' CENTENNIAL

North Pole Gets New Look

By JIM OSBORNE

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The North Pole will get a paint job of brilliant orange for the Northwest Territories Centennial next year.

A veteran bush pilot and a companion will fly to the pole to redecorate a pie-shaped tract of polar ice which is Canada's most northerly square mile.

The unofficial project has received moral — but not financial — support from the N.W.T. centennial directorate, which has agreed to keep secret the names of the two men until the project is completed.

The two will fly to the pole at an undisclosed time during 1970 celebrations to:

—Paint a section of the ice adjacent to the pole with "international orange," a paint which is visible under 24 inches of snow;

—Stake the world's first mineral claim at the North Pole, and,

—Plant a 100-foot aluminum pole, with a candy-stripe paint job resembling the Santa Claus legend, from which they will fly the N.W.T. official flag.

Pictures of the results will be displayed at Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan, next year.

TransAir of Winnipeg, in a companion centennial project, plans a special flight to photograph the redecorated North Pole en route to Osaka.

Jim Wheliy, general manager of the N.W.T. centennial centre, said most of about 200 official projects are more local or regional, with events like dogsled competitions and power toboggan races or Indian-Eskimo arts festivals.

Most projects are organized and partly financed by about 75 communities, ranging in size from the 12 residents of Fort Resolution, on the south shore of Great Slave Lake, to Yellowknife's population of about 6,000.

Fort Resolution plans to take part in the Northern Community Adoption Program, one of dozens of government-sponsored projects—in this case an exchange of residents with a community in southern Canada and proposes to participate in two canoe races.

One is the government-organized 1,200-mile canoe race down the mile-wide Mackenzie River to the Arctic Ocean, billed as the longest marathon canoe race in the world.

It will commemorate the original trip by explorer Sir Alexander Mackenzie, and behind it will come a centennial flotilla of boats as diverse as cruisers and kayaks.

Some communities like Fort Simpson have more than a dozen projects and events. They include collections of N.W.T. art and folklore, and a project of town beautification to preserve Fort Simpson's claim as "the garden of the North."

Lists of centennial projects and events include names like Panghirtung and Igloolik, Grise Fiord and Gjoa Haven, or Resolate Bay.

Voyageur Eric Morse will lead 11 men on a canoe trek from Great Slave Lake to Coppermine, on the central Arctic coast 500 miles north of Yellowknife.

They will re-enact a voyage by Sir John Franklin in 1819-22 from old Fort Providence to Coppermine, in which a mutiny led to Franklin's death a short time later in the Arctic.

PROTECT CAIRNS

Mr. Wheliy said other projects are designed to record and preserve history, including cairns built 100 years ago and more, but found only recently.

He said there is ample reason to believe the trackless Arctic contains numerous cairns. Others have been robbed by souvenir-hunters and their contents traced to private collections, mostly outside Canada.

The $615,000 celebration essentially is internal: a chance for the N.W.T.'s 32,000 residents to learn about the 1,300,000 square miles they inhabit. Two-thirds of the population is Indian or Eskimo, most of whom have little knowledge beyond their home regions.

Mr. Wheliy said the Centennial will provide a structure to build from, based on 300 years of white settlement and a history of Indian-Eskimo habitation believed to go back 10,000 years.

. . . And a Problem In Ontario Loop

TORONTO (CP) — Nine of the 10 members of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A council decided Tuesday night to meet Thursday concerning the alleged illegal use of a player by Fred Muller, owner of St. Catharines Black Hawks.

The decision came after a nine-way telephone conference among council members for teams in Niagara Falls, Hamilton, Toronto, Peterborough, Ottawa, Montreal, Kitchener, Oshawa and London.

They gave the St. Catharines owner—the 10th man on the council—an order after their conference to get rid of defenceman Glenn Irwin, 17. But Muller defied the order and used Irwin Tuesday night in a game against Toronto Marlboros.

The nine claim Irwin cannot be used because of a decision by the OHA junior teams not to use players from the Canadian Hockey Association, rival of the OHA's parent Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

Irwin played last year with Edmonton Oil Kings of the Western Canada Junior Hockey League, a CHA affiliate.

Muller took his case directly to the CAHA, which approved St. Catharines' use of Irwin.

Irwin came to St. Catharines by way of Sorel, Que., where he played with Sorel Black Hawks of the Quebec Junior League, an affiliate of the CAHA.

RUSSIAN FACILITIES 'ALARMING'

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia has criticized Russian sports officials for the "alarming" state of Soviet winter sports facilities.

Government plans were drawn up in 1966 for new stadiums, hockey rinks and other sports centres but building is going extremely slowly, Izvestia said.

It said lack of official attention had led to a cut in construction and complained that "the picture is alarming."

National RC Office For Negroes

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Roman Catholic bishops have voted to establish a national central office for black Catholics and agreed to furnish money to elect its officers.

After the proposal of the black Catholic clergy caucus was accepted in closed session Tueday, a spokesman for the national conference of Catholic bishops quoted New York's Terence Cardinal Cooke as saying:

"Those who made this proposal ought to know they have our solid support and the central office should be adequately funded."

Establishment of the office is not aimed at creating a separatist black movement within the Catholic church, said Rev. Donald M. Clark, president of the black caucus.

Rather, it will attempt to relate the church to needs of black people.

"Part of the office's function will be to train black laymen as well as others to work in the black community," he said.

There are some 800,000 black Catholics and 165 black priests in the United States. There are fewer than 100 black nuns.

Father Clark said the central office for black Catholics would attempt to remain somewhat independent of the church, getting some money for other sources.

Victim Of Their Hospitality

TORONTO (CP) — "Please handle the exhibits" reads the invitation to 1,500 school children who tour the Ontario Science Centre every day of the week. The kids have taken the message to heart.

Officials at the new, $30,000,000 push-button playground may have fallen victim to their own hospitality.

The centre opened here Sept. 27, and little more than a month later many of the buttons wouldn't push, three of eight electronic calculators were being repaired, a foam-making machine wouldn't foam and a conveyor would not convey.

"They're simply the result of enthusiasm," says William Castledine, chief of the electronics division of the centre and the man in charge of attempted child-proofing.

He says some of the damage is inevitable. "Few cases resulted from wilful damage" but some of it was surprising, he says.

Three microphones with "stout" screws came unfastened. So did the welded shields that protect the screws.

Two of 14 technicians make repairs daily, Mr. Castledine says.

"It takes one man with outstretched arms and an even temperament to keep kids back while another fixes."

No estimate of the damage done has been made but officials say large crowds—up to 10,000 on the weekends—have helped the centre take in between $15,000 and $20,000 weekly and keep "well within" its budget.

Seal Ban Called Misleading

NEW YORK (CP) — The Friends of Animals, a New York humane organization, said Monday the Canadian government had issued a misleading statement when it said it would "ban the killing of baby seals in 1970."

The organization said the new Canadian rulings on the East Coast hunt, in which no seal pups can be killed until they are at least three weeks old, would "merely . . . postpone the slaughter for about two weeks."

"And this delay will apply only to the Gulf of St. Lawrence," the organization said in a statement. "Along hundreds of miles of the Labrador front, Canadian and Norwegian hunters will be free to kill seals of any age, including newborn pups."

RHODESIA HOLDS PAIR IN JAIL

SALISBURY (Reuters)—A lawyer and a journalist were charged here today under Rhodesia's Official Secrets Act and emergency counter-espionage regulations.

They are John Roger Nicholson, 37, editor of the Salisbury Herald and a correspondent for the London Times, and Arthur Trevor Gallagher, a local lawyer.

Both men were denied bail. The trials of the two are expected to begin next month.

Nicholson, who was a member of the Southern Rhodesian Parliament from 1962 to 1965, was arrested by police while working in his Salisbury office two weeks ago.

Gallagher was held in a police camp at Goromonzi about 16 miles from Salisbury for about a month.

SEX SPIES HIT

KENILWORTH, England (UPI) — Warwick University students today protested against the school telling its 72 cleaning women to report on dormitory sexual activity.

Editor Mike Newman of the school magazine said the cleaning women were told to report on student "bedroom irregularities."

He said "male and female students sleep together regularly. The number is not very great. These are couples who are engaged or courting seriously."

"There is certainly no question of any mass orgies here," Newman said.

A university official said, "Cleaners are the people closest to the students. They are allowed in and out of their rooms."

BLADE IN CANDY

EDMONTON (CP) — A 15-year-old Edmonton youth was under observation at his home Monday night 24 hours after swallowing a razor blade hidden in a halloween candy.

The youth, whose parents asked that all names be withheld, will have to undergo surgery if the blade is not passed naturally from his system, the youth's doctor, Dr. M. P. Vande Gautche, said.

The sabotaged candy was believed collected on halloween by the youth's younger brothers from homes in northwest Edmonton.

Scientific News Agency Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — Best use could be made of the millions of dollars spent on scientific and technical information by building decentralized information systems co-ordinated and helped by the national science library, the Science Council said today.

Recommendations for government policy on the subject by the council urged that a major mission of the National Research Council be the promotion of federal participation in such a system and the implementation of federal components of it.

The Science Council recommendations were delivered to Prime Minister Trudeau last month and made public today. The NRC's national science library has already been given authority to build a new $12,000,000 building next year.

The Science Council's recommendations are based on extensive studies of existing scientific and technical information by a group headed by J. P. I. Tyas, scientific adviser to the industry, trade and commerce department.

SETS OUT OBJECTIVE

The council says the basic objective of a national policy for scientific and technical information should be to provide information and services that meet the needs of those who generate, process, disseminate and use information.

That should include maximum use of existing facilities such as the extensive ones in federal departments, universities, provincial governments and other organizations and the development of new ones.

The policy should promote international co-operation and liaison for information exchange, support and develop education and training in information science and technology and support research, development and innovation.

Two important special features should be creation of a system which can be used with equal ease in English and French and which uses all the latest techniques for bridging distances.

The council put no price tag on the system recommended. It said the federal government should immediately set an example by formally adopting an information policy which would include the recommended objectives.

Ontario universities had already demonstrated the kind of co-operative activities that could build a national network. They had linked their libraries by rapid-delivery telecommunications.

Nova Scotia also afforded an example of a co-operative system encompassing university, provincial and federal organizations.

SUGGESTS FRAMEWORK

The Science Council suggested:

—NRC be authorized by the federal cabinet to create a board of directors to oversee participation in the system with representatives of users and disseminators, governments at all levels, universities and professional societies, communications experts and large and small industries.

—All NRC activities in the specialized information field—the national science library, technical information service and Canadian journals of research—be placed under direction of the proposed board.

—The NRC agency provide certain central services and encourage, support and co-ordinate the wider decentralized activities such as training, research, development, innovation and implementation.

—All scientific and technical journals in Canada, especially the journals of research, require that all articles submitted for publication to be accompanied by abstracts in English and French.

Diplomat's Son Smuggled In Marijuana

CANBERRA (Reuters) — U.S. Ambassador Walter Rice admitted today the teen-age son of an American embassy employee brought two parcels of drugs into Australia in a shipment of unaccompanied personal effects.

But he said in a statement the boy's parents knew nothing about it. The name of the boy was not disclosed.

The statement followed police reports they were interviewing the sons of two diplomats following allegations of drug-taking at two Canberra high schools.

Police seized 3½ pounds of high quality marijuana and three quarters of an ounce of pure opium after investigating drug taking at the schools.

The other schoolboy who was interviewed in connection with the drug-taking is believed to be the son of an Asian diplomat.

Police said today both the marijuana and opium were smuggled into the country by the 16-year-old son of an American diplomat, who concealed the drugs in a pair of bongo drums brought in as unaccompanied luggage when the family moved to the federal capital recently.

Police said they recovered all the drugs except for a few ounces of marijuana smoked as cigarettes by the American boy and five high school companions.

It was not expected that charges would be laid against any of the boys at this stage, they said.

'Pay 14-Year-Olds to Stay in School or to Work'

VANCOUVER (CP) — A student Liberal leader says adolescents should be paid for staying in school after 14 or leaving home to work and learn about life.

The compulsory schooling age should be reduced to 14 from 16, adds Tom Bernes of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Student Liberal Federation, in a paper prepared for a Liberal party conference in Harrison Hot Springs next week.

Berns is heading a task force investigating student unrest for the conference. He said in his paper, released here Monday:

"We must take for granted the independence of adolescents and provide them with the chance to live alone, away from parents and with peers. We must discover jobs they can or want to do in the community.

"In return for a minimum of work or continued schooling we must provide them with a minimal income that will allow them to assume the responsibility for their own lives at an earlier age, and learn the ways of the community outside the school"

The paper tells adults:

"You have forgotten the meaning of education. To you, school is a place to drop off kids so you can relax, a place to keep them off the streets and off the crowded labor market."

EXCITING RESULTS

Quebec Theatre Blossoms

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal may not have Oh! Calcutta! or Che! but an upheaval in the theatre in French Canada promises results that ultimately may be more exciting than obscenity or nudity.

Perhaps Montrealers won't see the titillating Broadways hit, but they will get a taste of new writers, new plays and a fierce determination to evolve a distinct Quebec style.

SLAVES TO COUNTRY

"We want to prove that you make good theatre from elements that are cool, pop, swinging," says Claude Prefontaine, associate artistic director of La Comedie Canadienne, the theatre that playwright Gratien Gelinas built.

"We are sure that you can have a mass theatre with something other than boulevard farces.

"Don't forget that we French-Canadians are in a sense slaves of our country. Where can we go? To Louisiana? We have to stay here, if we want to be ourselves. But we also have to express ourselves."

In its remodelled-synagogue theatre, the tiny Theatre de Quat'sous will probe the unconventional, with new plays such as a yet-untitled piece by Dyne Mousso and Marie-Jan Savard.

It will also undertake a translated version of Fortune and Men's Eyes and the controversial La Duchess de Langeais, by Michel Tremblay, a young Montreal playwright.

Production of La Duchesse may be delayed because no suitable actor has yet been willing to go along with its untamed obscenity.

Theatre du Nouveau Monde, which with nearly 12,000 subscribers is Montreal's most serious and significant company, also plans to try something new next year — sending small groups of actors to perform in the streets.

In inclement weather, the vignettes will be acted in subway stations, said director Jean-Louis Roux.

FILM COMEBACK, after 26 years, is planned by 1930s sex symbol Mae West (left). She is teamed with Raquel Welch for her new role in the film "Myra Breckenridge", based on Gore Vidal's best-selling novel. (AP Wirephoto.)

The Eyes Have It In Poker

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — A psychologist says the pupils in a poker player's eyes may tip off the kind of hand he is holding.

The pupils are apertures in the iris which normally expand in dim light or darkness and contract when the light is brighter.

But for an unexplained reason, Dr. Eckard H. Hess told a convention of the American College of Medical Hypnotists Monday, the pupils also grow bigger when the eye beholds something pleasant, a full house or four of a kind.

And they get smaller when what's on view is a bobtailed flush or a busted straight.

MANICURISTS BY THE DOZEN

DETROIT (UPI)—Trimming the toenails of Leo the giraffe was a 12-man operation.

The 17-foot giraffe at the Detroit Zoo first got a tranquilizer to put him out, then the dozen men trimmed his hooves.

'Flying Nun' Mother

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sally Field, television's Flying Nun, is the mother of a seven-pound, four-ounce boy. The baby, born at Cedars of Lebanon Hospital Monday, was named Peter Joshua Craig. His father, Steven, is a writer-photographer. Miss Field will resume her role in the ABC television series in January, a spokesman said.

Cars for Sex

LONDON (Reuters) — Salesman Anthony Cook, 23, was imprisoned for three years Tuesday for stealing 11 cars which he gave girl friends in exchange for sex. Mr. Justice Christmas Humphreys said at London Central Criminal Court: "He had a harem of cars as well as a harem of girls—and he looked after all of them well."

Hope Still Busy As Years Go By

NEW YORK (AP) — When a man has earned so many millions that other people can only guess at their number, he sometimes turns to simple pleasures for enjoyment.

Bob Hope, one of the wealthiest entertainers in history, gets a kick out of the fact that he has a "pretty big" bedroom.

"I like to putt in it while I'm thinking and working," he explained.

Born Leslie Townes Hope in England, Bob came to the United States at the age of four and has emerged as one of its most lauded and successful immigrants.

At 66, Hope is currently enjoying the highest TV ratings of his career and keeps as busy as ever.

Bob, then a young vaudeville comedian, made his first big hit on Broadway in Roberta when the musical first appeared there in 1933.

Looking back at his fabulous record—and at his present bank account—many people wonder why Bob keeps up his frantic performing pace.

For the last 42 years he has—

Travelled 6,000,000 miles.

Appeared in five Broadway shows, more than 50 films, 225 television shows and 1,145 radio shows.

Given hundreds of benefit shows in hospitals, on college campuses, and at military service camps.

Raised millions of dollars for charitable and philanthropic causes.

BOB
. . . work is healthy

Received more than 800 awards, citations and decorations, including 10 honorary university degrees.

But it's no mystery to Bob himself why he maintains his quip-a-second routine.

KEEPS HIM HEALTHY

"Working keeps your mental apparatus in shape and your adrenalin pumping," he said. "As long as I'm healthy, nothing will ever keep me from working.

"If I ever quit, I'd fret myself out of condition. Besides, I get more fun out of achievement than I do out of anything else in life."

Bob still works as conscientiously at every new production as if it were his first one, but he says he has slowed up on his social life since suffering an attack of high blood pressure a few years ago.

"I play golf as much as I can and try to get in an hour's nap every day," he said.

Asked what defeats most people in American life today, Bob grinned and replied:

"Television. It has replaced conversation, ambition and good times. People get stuck in front of the set, fasten their seat belts, and watch everything. It's some habit, I want to tell you."

Flowering Bamboo Enjoyable Rarity

By HILDA BEASTALL

The phenomen of the flowering bamboo was mentioned in this column when the plants first started blooming in May. Since then every new shoot came through the ground with flower buds in the sheaths and promptly burst into bloom. Even now in November now stems are hanging with tiny flowers.

Hilda

The strange infrequency of this event makes it worth bringing to the attention of gardeners. Horticulturalists record that a given species will flower once in 40 years or so, and when it does, those plants die. Propagation is carried on by the seed produced.

Even stranger is the report that the same species of bamboo will come into flowering wherever it happens to grow. Plants in the eastern hemisphere and in the western, north of the equator and south, within a year (to cover the varying times of summer seasons) will be recorded as being in flower.

The one flowering locally this year belongs in the arundinarias; has narrow bright green leaves and normally grows to six or eight feet.

Dwarf bamboos which we have under the name of Sasa pygmaea in the green and variegated forms have shown no sign of bloom, neigher have the tall broadleaved species with dark green leaves nearly an inch wide.

These latter are used as graceful outline plants against plain colored walls, by patio pools and swimming pools.

Still another unusual fact about bamboos in the habit of making their total height in one season of growth.

Thus, whether a bamboo stem reaches ten feet or 6 inches during its first growing season, its height will never be increased in following years.

Side branches may appear in later years, and new leaves will be produced, pushing off the old ones in summer.

Indication of the need for a rich moist soil if tall bamboo canes are wanted, is the variation in height of the canes in one plant.

In a dry year they may be only four feet tall, while the same plant is capable of producing ten footers if liberally supplied with plant foods and water.

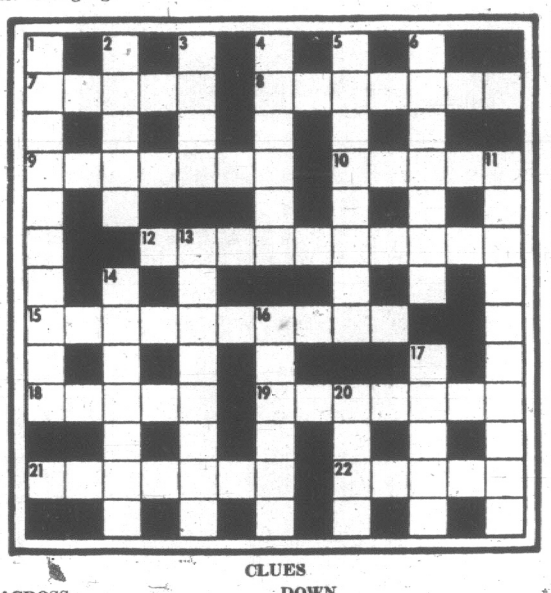

The running roots of most bamboos need tight control to prevent their taking over the garden, but in paved patio areas and in giant tubs on apartment balconies, bamboos are inspiring and elegant if you forget their once-in-a-while flowering and dying. It's not likely to happen more than once in a lifetime.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Canadian's Boasting Nearly Sparked War

By BOB BOWMAN

One of the last week's stories mentioned the part played by W. L. Mackenzie in leading the rebellion in Upper Canada in 1837. The first mayor of Toronto was easily defeated and fled to the U.S.A. before establishing a base on Navy Island above Niagara Falls from where he operated for more than a year, American sympathizers kept sending him supplies in a ship called "Caroline."

While on Navy Island Mackenzie proclaimed a provisional government for Canada and raided the military post at Chippewa. A Canadian force led by Allan McNab, who later became Prime Minister, then went into action, set the "Caroline" on fire, and let her drift over Niagara Falls. There was some fighting in which an American citizen was killed. This almost insignificant action nearly caused a war between Britain and the U.S.A. in which Canada would have been the battleground.

Some time after the "Caroline" incident a Canadian, Alexander McLeod, was drunk in a New York saloon and boasted that he had killed the American citizen during the action. He was arrested on November 12, 1840 and put on trial for murder. McLeod protested that he had been acting under military orders, and Britain demanded his release.

There was so much bad feeling about the "Caroline" and McLeod that Lord Palmerston, British Foreign Secretary, threatened the U.S.A. with "war immediate and frightful in its character" if McLeod was executed. Fortunately McLeod was acquitted and better relations were restored when Britain made a mild apology for the attack on the "Caroline."

It didn't take a great deal to cause a war in those days.

Other events on Nov. 12:

1757 Canadian force killed 50 people and burned German Flats on Mohawk River, N.Y.

1774 British citizens protested against Quebec Act which restored French law.

1813 U.S. General Wilkinson abandoned campaign to capture Montreal.

1833 Canada stirred by unusual display of shooting stars.

1856 Grand Trunk Railway opened service between Quebec and Toronto.

1880 Explosion killed 50 miners at Stellarton, N.S.

1884 Calgary became a town.

1898 Lord Minto became Governor-General.

1959 Queen Mother Elizabeth visited Ottawa until November 17.

1955 Landslide at Nicolet, Quebec, caused $5 million damage.

YOUR HEALTH

Conservative Use Of Tonsillectomy

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Many years ago I asked some 250 adults who had had their tonsils removed in adult life what they had hoped to achieve and what they had got from the operation. I learned that most of those who were not subject to spells of tonsillitis had not got much, if any, help. The ones who were pleased with the results of the operation had been suffering often from spells of tonsillitis and sore throat.

Now I read that Prof. Sidney Cohlan, a pediatrician at the University Hospital in New York City, advises mothers not to demand a tonsillectomy simply because their child is not eating well, is not growing fast enough, has large tonsils, gets colds or sometimes has a cough. Often, diseased tonsils and adenoids are considered to be the source of all these troubles, and as a result there are some 1.2 million operations to remove tonsils and adenoids every year in the U.S.

Dr. Cohlan and has associate, Dr. LaVenuta, feel that the decision as to whether the operation will cure the child's distress, ought to be left up to expert and conservative pediatricians and throat specialists.

Dr. LaVenuta believes that the only "absolute" indication for tonsillectomy is a history of abscesses around the tonsils, also a history of repeated spells of tonsillitis and perhaps rheumatic fever.

There is less controversy about the removal of adenoids, because the indications for this operation are relatively clear-cut, and include recurrent acute inflammation of the middle ear, with formation of pus and other secretions, and obstructed nasal passages that cause the child to have to breathe through his mouth. In these cases, adenoids should be removed. However, removal of adenoids or tonsils will not cure bouts of colds or flu, chronic cough, or allergies.

I read that recently a physician reported that nine of 10 persons who think they have a sinusitis do not have it. They have only a stuffy nose, and perhaps a headache.

Druing the 25 years in which I worked in the Mayo Clinic, I referred hundreds of patients with a supposed sinusitis to our very able nose experts. What impressed me was that nearly all of them came back with a note that there was no sign of sinusitis. What the patient was much scared of was a post-nasal drip. He thought the material dripping down the back of his throat was pus, and if swallowed it would cause poisoning. Actually, the nose expert said that the material was a little perfectly harmless mucus that could be swallowed without fear.

The people who were the most distressed were more-than-usually sensitive people who became upset what over may a more stolid person would not even notice. All I could tell them was that no harm would come to them as a result of their post-nasal drip, and that the best thing to do was to accept it and try not to let it bother them.

A true sinusitis is easy to diagnose because, usually with a cold, or perhaps after swimming in a tank, the person gets a pain over one of the sinuses. Later, when pus is discharged, he gets well.

A good idea for those people with a tendency to sinusitis who smoke is to stop smoking, because the smoke irritates the lining of the nose and the sinuses and interferes with their self-cleaning action.

For many years, people studying emergency medicine were taught the use of a tourniquet, a sort of band that would go around an arm or a leg and be twisted so tightly that it would stop blood from flowing through the big arteries, and thereby stop severe bleeding. But in recent years, many authors have written that because the tourniquet was left on too long, the person who was injured lost a limb beacuse the tissues in it were without blood so long that they died, and the limb had to be amputated.

Now I read that in Vietnam, the medical officers have just about eliminated the tourniquet from the battlefields.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

The late Christian A. Herter, Secretary of State under President Eisenhower, was an expert bridge player. Owing to the importance of his various governmental positions through the years, he never had the time to play in tournaments. Yet he kept abreast of theoretical developments in the field of duplicate play by studying the literature concerning the game.

In this deal, which arose many years ago, Mr. Herter gave a simple demonstration of expert play. He was sitting South.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

Opening lead: King of ♣.

After West had cashed the king and ace of clubs, he laid down the ace of diamonds. This was followed by another diamond, East covering dummy's queen with the king, South of course, ruffed this trick.

Declarer's prospects of fulfilling his contract were not good, since this could be accomplished only if a heart loser could be avoided. However, there was one chance—and Mr. Herter found it quickly.

To trick five, the ace of trumps was cashed, after which the trump queen was led and overtaken by the board's king. Next came the queen of hearts—and whether East played the king or not, South was home.

If East played low, South would do likewise, as West's jack fell. If East put up the king—as he actually did—South would win it with his ace. Dummy would then be re-entered via a trump, and another heart led, South playing his eight-spot after East followed with the seven. The 10 would next fell East's nine, and that would be that.

The only combination whereby South could have avoided the loss of a heart trick was the one that actually existed: that West possessed the singleton jack. It should be pointed out that if Mr. Herter had led a low heart to his ace initially and, in theory, caught a singleton king, he would still have to lose a heart trick, since the other defender would then have started with the J-9-7.

U.S. Pullout Risk To Asian Economy

By STANLEY KARNOW

HONG KONG (UP) — Ever since President Nixon enunciated his "Guam Doctrine" last summer, America's allies in Asia have been increasingly concerned at the prospect of an eventual disengagement of United States military forces from the Far East.

But in contrast to Americans who forecast that a U.S. withdrawal will open the way for a communist takeover of the region, these Asians are mainly troubled by the potential economic consequences of a pullout.

In other words, the "domino theory" in this part of the world is less worrisome than the "law of diminishing returns."

This attitude partly reflects an awareness that the Chinese Communist threat, such as it was, has receded within recent years as a result of the disruptive effects on China of Mao Tse-tung's cultural revolution and Peking's preoccupation with a growing Soviet threat.

Moreover, many Asian leaders are now awakening to the fact that they have neglected solid development as large inputs of American money into sectors of their economy created an artificial sense of affluence.

This is not the case in a major industrial nation like Japan. But for some Southeast Asian countries, U.S. military expenditures have bees crucial as an indirect form of foreign aid.

For the ruling groups in some of these countries, American expenditures have also been a lucrative source of graft, particularly when careful accounting procedures were disregarded under pressure from Washington to "get the job done."

Not Less, But More Profits

In the Philippines, for example, the same politicians who perennially decry the U.S. air force and naval installation there privately concede that an American pullout would dislocate the local economy in several ways.

First, a withdrawal would deprive the country of some 150 million dollars per year currently being spent by the United States to maintain its bases.

Secondly, with U.S. disengagement, the Philippines would have to bear the burden of its own defence, which at present represents only a fraction of the government budget.

In addition, huge U.S. sums sweeten the economy through black market and other rackets connected with the American military presence.

In the town of Angeles, the site of Clark Airfield, these rackets are managed by communist Huks locally known as the "Red Mafia."

Therefore, despite its nationalistic rhetoric, the Philippine establishment is not only trying to keep the American bases but would like to lease them to the United States in order to gain a bit more profit.

In Thailand, the United States spent roughly 500 million dollars to build six major air bases and has put nearly twice that amount into the country to operate the installations since 1965. These amounts include neither aid to the Thai army nor the money brought into Bangkok's vast collection of nightclubs, hotels, massage parlors and other recreational facilities by American troops on leave from Vietnam.

Pullout to Cause Unemployment

What percentage of this money has lined official Thai pockets is anyone's guess. It is unknown, among other things, how much the Thai government paid peasants for the real estate it resold to the United States for the bases. The U.S. and purchases ran to more than three million dollars.

The American withdrawal from Thailand, now beginning, is expected to cause unemployment as well as an erosion of the country's balance of payments position, which has been weakened lately by an extensive import program.

Similar problems face South Korea, Taiwan and other places that have been cashing in on the Vietnam war. Even booming Hong Kong sourly greeted President Nixon's "peace plan" last week with the calculation that it would cost local tailors and prostitutes 70 million dollars a year if it works.

The biggest crunch, of course, will come in Vietnam itself, where U.S. spending not only was made the rich richer but has seeped down to the lower social levels, especially in the cities.

At Guam last summer, Nixon stressed that Asian nations would henceforth have to be militarily self-reliant. The counterpart of that principle is, obviously, economic self-reliance.

For if fears that U.S. disengagement will lead to a power vacuum in the Far East are exaggerated, the economic vacuum left by an American withdrawal will be real—and it could hurt.

Yukon To Lower Drink Age

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP) — Proposed legislation placed before a new Yukon council session today would lower the legal age for drinking in the territories to 19 from 21.

It was one of several pieces of legislation forecast in a speech by Commissioner James Smith.

Yukoners in a recent plebiscite approved of 19-year-olds having the right to drink. Most Canadian provinces have set 21 as the legal age.

Liquor legislation would establish a territorial liquor board to look after liquor licences. It also would allow restaurants to sell beer with meals and dining rooms to sell all hard liquor.

Plots Too Valuable Just for Gardens

LONDON (CP) — The dig-for-victory land allotments that helped feed Britain during the food scarcities of two world wars have turned into "horticultural slums" says a report to the government urging a clean sweep of the whole concept of allotment use.

The Thorpe committee, headed by Prof. Harry Thorpe of Birmingham University, says these garden patches, usually linked to the efforts of low-income earners to grow some of their own food, should be turned into leisure gardens primarily for family recreation.

Allotments have been a way of life in Britain ever since the days of Queen Elizabeth I when the provision of a small plot of land formed part of the charity for the working poor. There the family could grow a few vegetables and perhaps a few pears and apples or even a few flowers to be sold to the more affluent folk.

At the height of the Second World War about 1,400,000 Britons held plots of about one-quarter acre or so. They dug with a vengeance as the government pleaded for more home-grown food to overcome the rigidities of wartime diet.

FEAR OUTCRY

But, as an indication of how Britain has changed, only 600,000 plots or allotments are still rented under the token annual payment of about 15 shillings ($1.95). And of these about 20 per cent are derelict and only 42 per cent still produce fruit and vegetables.

In many cases garden plots are located on what now has become valuable land, priced at about £20,000 ($52,000) an acre if used for housing. The local borough councils have the right to terminate rentals and switch the plot-holders to other areas but in many cases they are reluctant to do so because of the outcry from local allotment organizations.

The Thorpe committee report may be the lever to force a more rapid switch. The committee recommended that the tenants be relocated on less valuable land and be encouraged to use their plots to grow flowers, shrubs and grass instead of only fruits and vegetables.

And instead of paying only 15 shillings a year in rent, the tenand should pay about £5 ($13) annually. Those who neglect their plots should be given the boot.

The government said it would consider the recommendations but, careful to avoid controversy, emphasized that it would consult fully with local councils and allotment organizations before reaching a decision.

It appeared likely, however, that with housing pressures ever eating into the shrinking green fields of England another English tradition may soon fade into the history books.

JUDGE WORKS IN PRISON

WOODLAKE, Calif. (AP) — Each weekend Judge John R. Locke goes to the Tulare County industrial road prison camp to help rehabilitate the convicts.

He sentenced most of them himself.

Now he hopes to reshape their social attitudes so that they will not face him again in the Superior Court at Visalia.

The 58-year-old jurist drives 15 miles each Saturday and Sunday morning from Visalia to carry out what he calls "my little mission in life."

Locke mingles with the men, answers their questions, plays inspirational tape recordings and encourages the prisoners to reach such books as Man Against Himself by psychiatrist Karl Menninger and Art of Loving by Eric Fromm.

The latter is a psychological study of affection and its rewards.

The judge says his tape recordings are designed to "stir the inmate's thinking about his life."

Another of his "mind grabbers" is a mock trial in which he is prosecuted by a convict with six other prisoners as jurors.

"As I defend myself, the inmate—with the aid of his peers—gains a new insight into himself and his problems," Locke says.

"He learns to face life with courage and love—and his hate melts away."

Of the camp's 140 prisoners, 68 are participating.

And 11 who have been released return for the weekend sessions.

Past Studies Urged Against Price Controls

OTTAWA (CP)—Twenty years ago, a royal commission examining post-war inflation recommended against using price and wage controls as a general peacetime policy.

It said, however, that selective price controls might be useful "in exceptional cases."

Today, there is talk in Ottawa of the possibility such controls being imposed if a constitutional way can be found to give them teeth. In 1919, a special peacetime price control board was declared beyond federal powers by the privy council in London.

The 1943 royal commission on prices headed by Professor C. A. Curtis, now 70 and then in the economics department of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., carried on the work of a Commons committee established to look into a major increase in the price of steel.

Steel price increases once again have launched an inquiry, this time by the prices and incomes commission headed by Dr. John Young, former head of economics at the University of British Columbia.

Like the government's moves to dull the thrust of inflation, the inquiry in part at least appears aimed at "talking down" the psychology of inflation—stimulating public concern about erosion of the dollar's purchasing power.

FOLLOWED P.M.'S DICTUM

The parliamentary and Curtis commission inquiry 20 years ago, followed a dictum by the late W. L. Mackenzie King when, as prime minister, he declared that the cold light of public inquiry should shine into the factors prompting the steel companies to raise their prices.

Today's inquiry by the prices and incomes commission is being carried on privately.

The Curtis report released in 1949 said publicity can have an important influence on business generally, "through exposing the occasional circumstances of high pricing, profiteering, and restrictive practices."

In its general conclusions, the commission said governments have a responsibility to use their taxing, spending, credit control and money supply policies to moderate economic swings and fight excessive rises in prices. But governments could not do the whole job alone.

"Government in a democracy cannot move too far ahead of public opinion," the report said. "It is idle to talk about the responsibilities of government in connection with economic stability if the necessary action to achieve or maintain that stability is not acceptable to the community.

"Another important conclusion is that, in our view, general price control should not be relied upon as an important instrument for stabilizing prices in peacetime. . . .

"Selective price controls may be useful in exceptional cases. Price control in any form, however, is no substitute for action designed to bring overall demand into line with over-all supply. It disguises inflation. It does not remove the cause of the trouble."

'CONTROLS NECESSARY'

John Kenneth Galbraith, Canadian-born Harvard University economist and author, recently told the Commons finance committee he believes selective price and wage controls now are necessary and would work to dampen current inflation tires. He urged Canada to adopt such measures now, making it easier for the United States to follow suit.

Professor Galbraith proposes a start with wages and prices in the big companies and the big industries, whose actions have a pervasive effect on the economy.

He would first get the big unions to accept the principle that wage increases should not be greater than gains in the productivity of workers. Once that is established, he said, industry could be required to hold the price line.

These would be selective price controls on important sectors of the economy, vastly different from the all-embracing system of price, wage, and other controls that Canada adopted successfully during the Second World War.

Labor and management argue about whether price and wage controls must go hand-in-hand. The present labor view is that prices should be controlled and wages subject to review. Wages in fact came under some kind of control before prices did in the Second World War.

Wage control was introduced in December, 1940, as an order to conciliation boards to hold the wage line. Control was made mandatory late in 1941, when price controls were imposed. At that time, the eight-hour-day, 44-hour standard work week prevailed, with overtime for war plant workers. Minimum wages by law were 27 cents an hour for men and 25 cents an hour for women.

WAGES WERE FROZEN

Wages were frozen at the level in effect on Nov. 15, 1941, though provision was made in the Wartime Wages Control Order, passed under the War Measures Act, for raising rates deemed unduly low.

During 1944, war demands for manpower levelled off. There was less pressure in the upward trend of labor costs.

But with anticipation of a peacetime economy, the federal labor code was suspended in 1944.

In 1949, direct wage control virtually ended when new regulations governing government contract work required only "fair and reasonable" hours and wages.

Scientists Find Way To Map Sea Pasture

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian defence scientists have developed techniques which may one day be useful to map the "fish pastures" of the ocean.

The pasture consists of layers of plankton, billions of tiny organisms basic to the life cycle of ocean creatures. Small fish feed on the plankton, are devoured by bigger fish and so on right through the commercial varieties of fish.

By knowing where and what kind of pastures there are in the ocean, commercial fishermen could improve their chances of locating profitable catches.

The mapping possibilities were raised Monday by Dr. Joseph Scrimger, a physicist at the defence research board's Esquimalt establishment. They are a by-product of his efforts with colleague Dr. Glen Turner, to improve underwater detection of submarine intruders.

Scientists on the Canadian naval auxiliary vessel Endeavour have recorded backscatter at 10-foot-depth intervals between the Pacific's surface and 2,000 feet down at six points ranging from 200 miles off the Queen Charlotte Islands in the north to the same distance off San Diego, Calif., in the south.

PHIL'S WRONG SAYS BENNETT

DELTA (CP)—A forecast by Welfare Minister P. A. Gaglardi that British Columbia's homeowner grant would be increased $30 next year was rejected by Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

Gaglardi said in Kamloops last week that the grant would be increased to $180 in the next provincial budget.

The premier, who is also the provincial finance minister, told questioning reporters here Monday that "I think Mr. Gaglardi is a very outspoken person. I would like to know where he got his information."

"It is his personal view and it will not be substantiated.

"It will not be implemented," Mr. Bennett said.

Interest, Taxes Hike Price Index

OTTAWA (CP)—The consumer price index rose 2-10ths of a point to 126.8 in October from 126.6 in September, mainly because of higher interest rates, property taxes and rents, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The index, based on 1961 consumer prices equalling 100, was 121.4 in October last year.

Food prices eased moderately last month, with the food group index dropping to 127.8 from 128.5 in September. It was 122.9 in October last year.

DBS has no index of incomes exactly paralleling the index of consumer prices, an indicator of the cost of living, but its index of average weekly wages and salaries paid in a wide cross-section of industry rose in August to 152.3 from 151.1 in July the latest figures available. In August last year, this index also based on 1961 equalling 100 —was 141.8.

The consumer price index in August was 126.9, compared with 126.4 in July and 120.7 in August last year.

WAGES INCREASE

Average wages and salaries were thus up eight-tenths of one per cent between July and August this year and 7.4 per cent higher than in August last year. Consumer prices in August were up four-tenths of one per cent for the month and 5.1 per cent for the year.

Since then, consumer prices dipped in September and rose again last month, but the October index is still a tenth of a point below its August peak.

The consumer price index measures changes since 1961 in the prices of a selection of goods and services representative of the purchases of urban families.

The area covered are families of two to six, living in cities of more than 30,000 population and having annual incomes which, in 1957, ranged from $2,500 to $7,000.

About 300 goods and services are included in the monthly survey of consumer prices.

The DBS index of industrial wages and salaries measures changes in the average paid by firms employing more than 20 persons.

Old Guard Expels Gandhi

By Times News Service

NEW DELHI — The conservative old guard of India's ruling Congress Party today expelled Prime Minister Indira Gandhi from party membership. She remains as prime minister.

Mrs. Gandhi is expected to seek a fresh vote of confidence Thursday at a meeting of all 431 Congress members of Parliament but a more serious test comes after Parliament begins its winter session Nov. 18. The split within her own party forces her to rely on leftist, Communist and independent members to keep her government in office.

Hundreds of demonstrators today began converging on the 51-year-old prime minister's headquarters in her support and a demonstration leader said it was "just the beginning" of a struggle against her opponents, known as "the Syndicate".

Montreal City Hall Under Police Guard

MONTREAL (CP) — Access routes to city hall will be under police guard today against a possible demonstration to protest a city bylaw proposal banning all demonstrations likely to be violent.

City council is scheduled to meet at 2:30 p.m. to discuss the proposal which provides for a 60-day jail term and a $100 fine for anyone taking part in a violent demonstration.

A mass demonstration is scheduled for about the same time and a second protest involving the burning of a symbolic copy of the draft bylaw in front of city hall has been called for 8 p.m.

Although Mayor Jean Drapeau's administration has been criticized in the past by leaders of various demonstrations, no protest has yet been in front of city hall.

A few weeks ago, nationalist, separatist and left-wing groups which have individually organized previous demonstrations banded together in the Front du Quebec Francais to fight the Quebec government's Bill 63 on language.

Now, the FQF, though not organizing, is supporting today's demonstration.

Everything I Say Turns Into Land Mine: Philip

LONDON (CP) — Prince Philip is beginning to fear that everything he says turns into a land mine.

His latest comment and his brush with reporters has raised questions whether the Queen's consort will be as free and easy about his public remarks as he has been in the past.

The Queen is known to be unhappy about Philip's public airing of the royal financial problems though an informant said there is no truth to published speculation that her advisers had considered attempts to squelch his United States television comment.

In that pre-recorded program, aired in North America and Britain last Sunday, Philip said the palace goes into the red next year and that the Royal Family might have to move out of Buckingham Palace into smaller premises. A palace official said later that Philip was joking about the possible move.

That led to a storm of public comment and debate in Britain on whether Parliament should provide the Queen with an immediate financial increase.

COMMENTS IN HOUSE

It also led to Prime Minister Wilson's comment in the House of Commons Tuesday that there will be no immediate increase and that there will be no parliamentary committee set up to consider the royal purse until the next Parliament, which would be after the 1970 or 1971 general election.

Wilson indicated there will be a deficit in the so-called civil list payment to the Queen next year but that the Queen has sufficient private funds to meet the deficit.

This has led to fresh newspaper debate whether the Queen, reported to be the world's third richest woman, should have to use her private funds to finance her state functions and administration.

From Wilson's Commons statement it was evident that the government and palace officials had engaged in a struggle over the royal financial situation months ago and that Wilson had firmly put his foot down on any immediate increase. That may have been the reason for Philip's somewhat out-of-tune remarks in the U.S.—to embarrass the Labor administration.

The impact of Philip's television interview recorded in Washington, followed by a New York TV appearance where he spoke of an abdication "rumor," have left his advisers concerned. One official said the statements were just a bit too flippant; a bit too much out of character.

This may have unsettled the prince who suddenly boiled up and tussled with two British Press Association reporters when he found they were reporting remarks he made at a Smaller Businesses Association luncheon Tuesday.

Claiming that he had not been told that reporters would be present, he demanded of one reporter: "Who are you?" and "What the hell are you doing here?"

When he saw another reporter dictating his story in a telephone booth, Philip tapped

Crash Kills Executives

Big Hydro Project Seen in Danger

LABRADOR CITY, Nfld. (CP)—An executive jet attempting an instrument landing crashed in an open-pit iron mine Tuesday night and killed all eight men aboard, including some top executives of two companies involved in building one of the world's major hydroelectric power projects in rugged Labrador.

Among the victims was Donald J. McParland, 40, president and chief executive officer of British Newfoundland Corp., Ltd., and president of Churchill Falls Labrador Corp.

The twin-engined de Haviland DH-125 slammed into a 150-foot cliff while trying to land at Labrador City in fog and drizzle.

Churchill Falls Power Site

It was a disastrous blow to Brinco, which lost two other executives, and to allied firms, which lost another three.

The two-member crew also died.

Brinco and the other firms — Acres Canadian Bechtel of Churchill Falls and Canadian Bechtel Ltd.—are the builders of the $953,000,000 Churchill Falls hydroelectric power project.

The crash occurred at 6:32 p.m. AST when the twin-engine de Havilland aircraft was attempting an instrument landing.

But the Brinco aircraft hit what is known as the "Smallwood mine," owned by Iron Ore of Canada.

An RCMP officer, one of the first on the scene, said darkness blotted out much of the crash area, but pieces of plane were strewn over a large area—as well as bodies."

The RCMP officer said there was "no doubt" the men died upon impact. Wreckage was strewn on both the top and bottom of a 150-foot cliff.

No one saw the accident, but area residents reported a loud noise followed by a flash or fire at the scene, six miles northaest of Labrador City.

Crash to Be Investigated

The city is about 350 miles northeast of Quebec City in a Labrador section of Newfoundland. It is about five miles from the Quebec border.

The last message from the 500-mile-per-hour de Havilland was to the control tower asking for landing instructions.

It was en route from Churchill Falls, Nfld., usually a half-hour flight over the 140-mile distance.

The crash will be investigated, starting today, by department of transport officials from Moncton, N.B., and Ottawa.

The other dead:

—Eric G. Lambert, vice-president of finance for Brinco and Churchill Falls.

—John Lethbridge, executive assistant to Mr. McParland.

—Fred E. Ressegieu, general manager of Acres Canadian Bechtel of Churchill Falls and vice-president of Canadian Bechtel Ltd.

—J. Herbert Jackson, assistant general manager of Acres Canadian Bechtel and a vice-president of Canadian Bechtel Ltd.

—Arthur J. Cantle, assistant general manager of construction for Acres Canadian Bechtel at Churchill Falls.

The crew members were pilot Jack MacLeod, 39, and Robin Elley, both employed by Atlantic Aviation of Canada Ltd. in Montreal. Mr. MacLeod, a native of Nova Scotia, had just moved to Montreal with his wife and two children from Toronto.

The de Havilland was carrying Mr. McParland on a whirlwind speaking tour of the lower St. Lawrence region, then north to Labrador.

In Montreal speech Monday he described the federal white paper on tax reform as a "great disappointment."

He was especially critical of proposals to reduce exploration and development incentives in mining and other resource industries.

He was a successor this year to Donald Gordon, the

Brinco Names Henry Borden Interim Chief

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A provincial government spokesman said today Henry Borden will act as chief executive officer of the British Newfoundland Corp. and its subsidiary, Churchill Falls Labrador Corp. Until a successor is chosen to replace Donald J. McParland, killed in a plane crash.

Borden has been a member of Brinco's board of directors for a number of years.

Gordon F. Pushie, the government's representative on the board, said an executive meeting would be called within 48 hours, probably in Montreal, to decide on a successor.

Brinco Stock Dips Slightly

MONTREAL (CP) — The price of shares of British Newfoundland Corp. Ltd. declined slightly in early trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange today following the death of president Donald J. McParland and two other top Brinco executives in a plane crash Tuesday night.

Brinco lost ⅛ to $5 shortly after the Montreal markets opened for trading.

Mr. McParland, president and chief executive officer of Brinco and its subsidiary Churchill Falls Labrador Corp., died in the crash of an executive jet aircraft near Labrador City, Nfld.

'Shocked Beyond Words'

ST. JOH'S, Nfld. (CP) — Premier Joseph Smallwood said today he was "shocked beyond words" to learn of Tuesday night's plane crash that took the lives of Donald J. McParland and five other executives in the $950,000,000 Churchill Falls hydro-electric development.

Mr. Smallwood said in a statement through his office here Mr. McParland was "highly regarded as one of Canada's top business geniuses."

Apollo May Be Delayed By Hydrogen Tank Leak

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — A leak was discovered in the insulating vacuum of a hydrogen tank in the Apollo 12 moonship today. The problem threatened to delay the start of the second moon landing mission as much as a month.

Apollo 12 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Richard Gordon and Alan Bean were targeted for blastoff at 8:22 a.m. Friday. But an informed source said there is a chance they now will not be able to go the moon until December. The space agency said the extent of the problem could not be immediately assessed.

The trouble interrupted an almost flawless series of pre-launch preparations. It was discovered late in the morning and officials immediately began an investigation to see what was wrong.

The problem involved one of two 28-gallon liquid hydrogen tanks in Apollo 12's service module, the unit that services the Apollo command module. Liquid hydrogen must be kept at 423 degrees below zero and each of the tanks has a vacuum jacket to insulate it.

The trouble was detected when technicians began flowing the frigid hydrogen into the tank. The hydrogen, used to fuel the spacecraft's fuel cell power generators, was drained from the tank after the leak was discovered.

THIS IS THE WAY IT IS in Britain between the press and Prince Philip after the royal consort berated two reporters while speaking at a Small Business Association meeting. The Prince, surprised reporters were at the meeting, asked one: "What the hell are you doing here?" and told the other: "I don't want anything of what I said quoted." The palace later issued an apology to the pair. (AP Wirephoto.)

him on the shoulder and warned him that nothing he had said should be published.

The prince had maintained at the informal luncheon that smaller businesses had nothing to fear from the big international companies since most of these big companies were based on the smaller suppliers.

When the reporter argued that he had only reported Philip's innocuous remarks, the prince burst out with an angry report about "chaps like you" and then was gently nudged to his car by officials.

Later he sent an apology to the two reporters and at an appearance at a dinner function told his listeners that he rose somewhat reluctantly, for "everything I say nowadays seems as if I trod on a land mine."

At that dinner Tuesday night, he had to enter the hotel through a rear door since he was speaking partly in aid of the Jewish National Fund and pro-Arab demonstrators were outside the front door.

The palace said later that Philip has a large number of public engagements ahead of him and that none will be cancelled.

In the Commons, three Liberals tabled a motion congratulating Philip "on the style and humor with which he answered questions put to him on television"—apparently a reference to the two U.S. broadcasts.

The signatories regretted that his critics "would appear to have lost their sense of humor."

Canada Proposes Pollution Penalties

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada today mentioned the possibility of international penalties against countries that pollute the human environment.

The possibility was contained in a speech by Canadian delegate Bruce Rankin before the General Assembly's economic and financial committee. The committee is discussing the whole range of human environment, particularly a planned international conference to be held in Stockholm in 1972.

Rankin, discussing what Canada hopes will come from the conference, said:

"Specific guidelines are needed which would set out the rights of states to a sound environment and the obligation which states have to ensure that they do not contribute to the destruction of that environment.

"It is possible that a set of principles can be devised which could be adjudicated and that penalties be prescribed for failure to abide by those principles."

Rankin mentioned Canada's strong concern over environmental problems, and the primary concern about Arctic pollution.

first Brinco president to die in office and the former head of Canadian National Railways.

A college graduate in mechanical engineering, the son of a North Bay, Ont., insurance agent was married with four children and made his home in Montreal.

Mr. Cantle, formerly of Toronto, is married with three children and worked for Foundation Co. of Canada. He also had been an engineer on the Baie d'Espoir, Nfld., power development.

Mr. Jackson, also formerly of Toronto, is a former senior engineer with Ontario Hydro.

A native of Sioux City, Iowa, Mr. Ressegieu is married with one son. He joined the Bechtel group in San Francisco in 1958, becoming manager of defence projects that included designing Atlas CIBM facilities.

Mr. Lambert was carrying out much of the groundwork in arranging sale of mortgage bonds, expected to provide up to $1,000,000 in excess of the estimated cost of the Churchill Falls project upon its completion in 1976.

FIRM PAYS $7.2 MILLION FOR OIL SPILL

Times News Services

LONDON — Owners of the Torrey Canyon have agreed to pay $7.2 million for damage done when the giant oil tanker ran aground in 1967 coating English and French beaches with oil.

A spokesman for the British government said the money will be split evenly by the two countries involved and accepted the amount in settlement of law suits asking for about twice as much.

The Union Oil Company of California was the principal party involved. It is believed insurance companies in the U.K. and U.S. met the cost of settlement.

DDT Ban In U.S. Favored

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary Robert H. Finch has accepted and sent to the White House a report urging that major use of DDT be ended in the United States over a two-year period, top government officials said today.

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Finch had not yet made a specific recommendation on the findings of the study on harmful effects of the pesticide.

But John G. Veneman, undersecretary of the Health, Education and Welfare Department, said Finch had discussed the proposal with two cabinet colleagues, Agriculture secretary Clifford M. Hardin and Interior secretary Walter J. Hickel, and both were "receptive to the idea." Hickel said he favored banning DDT.

Ziegler said the report from Finch had been referred to Dr. Lee A. Dubridge, President Nixon's scientific adviser, and that it would be discussed further by the environmental quality council which Dubridge heads.

Riot Troops Moving In

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government today began moving about 9,000 riot-trained regular troops into the Washington area as a "purely precautionary measure" in advance of this week's anti-Vietnam war demonstrations.

The defence department announced that paratroops of the U.S. Army's 82nd Airborne Division arrived from Fort Bragg, N.C. A regiment of the 2nd Marine Division from Camp Lejeune, N. C., will arrive tonight.

'Sir Loin' Table Can't Be Sold

LONDON (Reuters) — An English aristocrat was forbidden Wednesday to sell a family heirloom—an oak table on which King James I is said to have knighted a loin of beef.

Tradition says James, who ruled from 1603 to 1625, named the meat "Sir Loin"—thus adding a new word to the English language. The table has been kept in the aristocratic de Hoghton family estate near Blackburn in the north of England ever since.

A High Court judge heard that the present baronet, 50-year-old Sir Antony de Hoghton, tried to sell the table and seven other family antiques to a London dealer.

Trustees of the family estate obtained a temporary court order stopping the sale of the antiques and the judge made a final order after hearing that Sir Anthony owns the heirlooms only for his lifetime and not absolutely.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

My dentist has it made. He is past 60 and heading for retirement. His children are grown and educated and he is saving money only for himself and his wife. So, his fees are much lower than the dentists around town who have three or four kids in school, and he isn't unwilling to give good advice on how to save money on dental bills. One piece of advice is to never go to a dentist except when the sun is shining.

Now that sounds like pretty drastic action, especially if a rainy spell should come down on the city for any number of days. But he laughed and said the advice was good. The reason for sunshine when you go to the dentist is that when the barometer falls and there is no sunshine, the tiny air space around a molar may tend to cause pain in what is a perfectly good tooth.

When the barometer falls, the volume of air space changes. Although the toothache might be of very short duration, you may think you have a cavity and make a date for the dentist. And when you get there, he finds no cavity. My dentist would blame your toothache on the weather.

U.S. Airlines Set Merger

NEW YORK (AP) — Northwest Airlines, the most profitable U.S. airline in 1968, plans to merge with ailing Northeast Airlines, officials of both companies announced Tuesday.

Northeast stockholders would receive one share of Northwest stock for every five shares of Northeast they turn in under the tentative merger agreement.

The plan is subject to approval of the Civil Aeronautics Board and directors and stockholders of both airlines.

Northwest turned a profit of $50,000,000 last year, while Northeast compiled a $2,400,000 deficit. Northeast's deficit for the first nine months of 1969 was reported as $8,700,000. It has lost money in 13 of the last 14 years.

Donald W. Nyrop, president of Northwest, and George B. Storer, chairman of Northeast, announced the tentative agreement. Storer also is chairman of Storer Broadcasting Co., which owns about 86 per cent of the Northeast stock.

Northeast operates routes to Florida from New York, Boston and Philadelphia and short runs between New England cities. It recently opened a Miami-to-Los Angeles flight.

Northwest holds a number of important long-range routes, including links from the Northwest states to the East Coast and Midwest.

It also flies to the Far East via Seattle and Alaska, shorter and cheaper to operate than competing routes via Hawaii, with the same fares as competitors.

Northwest stock closed at 35 Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange, while Northeast registered 13⅞.

After preferred dividends, earnings per share were $2.05 based on an average 12,496,000 shares outstanding, compared with $2.29 on an average of 11,639,000 shares in 1968.

Benson Turns Salesman

EDMONTON (CP) — Edgar Benson, finance minister turned salesman, today moved into Canada's oil country to argue that there is justice in the federal government's proposed tax reforms.

He flew in from Ottawa through fog, freezing rain and snow to present his case.

His appearance in Edmonton and in Calgary Thursday was seen as an important facet of the government's presentation of its proposed tax reforms because the oil industry was a major critic of changes proposed by the Carter royal commission.

The Carter commission findings, presented in 1967, were the forerunners of the government recommendations, made public in a white paper last Friday.

Mr. Benson, however, in effect denies he is acting as a salesman for the proposals.

He says it is part of his program to get maximum discussion of the proposals among as many people as possible.

After Calgary and Edmonton, the minister plans to visit Winnipeg Nov. 17 and Vancouver Nov. 20 for further discussion. Then he hopes to go to Halifax next month and other centres as time permits.

Government officials say there is no special significance in the minister picking on oil country for his opening rounds.

Benson had long been expected in Alberta for a Liberal party fund-raising supper but had been unable to make it because of pressures in Ottawa.

When government officials realized his appearance could coincide with publication of the white paper, they decided to turn it into the first of what Mr. Benson says he hopes will be open forums.

Mr. Benson said Tuesday he was not surprised by any of the reaction to the white paper proposals.

He said criticism so far has come from people or groups just as had been anticipated.

He was obviously pleased, however, by the reaction of Canadian stock markets.

Letting an Emotion Go in a Slow and Easy March

The Children: Maybe They Will Truly Remember

By JOHN SLINGER

"We can truly remember the dead when we transform their visions into reality."

Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff's voice is heavy and sad above the silence of the morning, above the distant gun marking off 21 minutes in a slow salute.

His voice is heavy and sad as the chill wind that moved a skein of cloud across the sun tugs at his white robe and carries his words over the 3,000 heads in front of the Legislative Buildings.

His message chastised. For failure to remember the dead. For failure to "transform their visions into reality."

The guard mounted at the Cenotaph, heads bowed over reversed arms, shivered. When there were silences they were formed around the splash of the fountain and the restlessness and small voices of children, hundreds of children.

The children, there were so many of them, could not have the remembrance of the lines of veterans drawn up by the harbor. The veterans all have grey hair now and they marched slow and easy behind the Naden band.

• • •

The band played Tipperary and Mademoiselle from Armentiers (hasn't been kissed in 40 years) and to the men on parade the music could have meaning.

For many of us who just stood and watched there was meaning. There was grey hair in the crowd, too, the same eyes that were on parade, the same mix of sadness and resolution in the eyes, the slight shade of embarrassment for letting an emotion go.

They had been there; they had seen. The women who placed wreaths; they had felt. And younger still, those of us who perhaps had had friends in school who didn't have fathers; we could at least remember something.

From the program: "Response by gathering: 'We will remember them.' "

But the children will have to learn to remember. Maybe it was for them that the archdeacon's words were spoken, maybe they will truly remember:

The lives were sacrificed in the belief that "a more peaceful and happier way of life would evolve for all people everywhere."

It had not happened: "In some parts starvation and poverty are rampant. In others, men and women are producing newer and more deadly instruments of destruction."

• • •

Even in "this Canada of ours which should be an example to all nations" there is industrial strife, "turmoil" in the universities and evidence of forces "that would cause partition."

The pipers of The Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) shivered the lament—Flowers of the Forest.

There were two hymns, a bible reading and a prayer.

The Last Post was sounded. Then Reveille. (During Reveille the Maple Leaf flag, being raised from half staff, snagged and then ripped. There was evidence that the sea cadets on parade thought the problems of the sea cadets charged with lowering and raising the flag were pretty funny.)

Wreaths were placed. (Following the placing of wreaths and O Canada, a boy with hair down to his shoulders and two girls with long hair approached the Cenotaph. The boy was carrying a bunch of white chrysanthemums which he placed among the wreaths. The three stood for a moment in silence then turned, walked back into the crowd and disappeared.

• • •

(The three looked very young. Many stopped when the parade moved off to read the note attached to the flowers: "In celebration of life, not death, we remember those who have died in Vietnam." It was signed "Concerned Victorians for Peace in Vietnam.")

Admiral H. A. Porter took the salute from a reviewing stand in front of the Empress Hotel and the crowd applauded softly as the veterans marched past. The pickets of the Peace Action League resumed their spot in front of the Cenotaph.

(They had been there since before midnight but had moved with their sign, "Respect for the Dead with Concern for the Living," to the Legislature steps. One young man said strangers had come by twice during the night with coffee and food. "It was a gentle night," he said.)

As the crowd departed, children chased one another around the trees, the Cenotaph and Queen Victoria's statue. Up in the carillon tower Herman Bergink played selections of First and Second World War songs.

Magazine Drive Complaints Put School Off the Track

By BOB MITCHELL

Complaints from residents and confirmation of school board policy on commercially-sponsored school fund-raising projects have jeopardized success of Esquimalt senior secondary's Project 70.

The project is construction of a long-sought cinder track.

Greater Victoria school district superintendent A. J. Longmore announced Monday he has sent memorandums to all principals reminding them of the school board's policy on sale of merchandise or services by commercial groups.

The move followed complaints last week from Esquimalt residents that door-to-door sales of magazine subscriptions by Esquimalt senior secondary students were linked to the students' Project 70.

Principal Roy Temple said today bad publicity over the subscriptions sales threatened to ruin the campaign to raise $14,000 to complete the school's cinder track.

SIX-POINT POLICY

Trustees were told Monday at the meeting of the board's education meeting that Andre Desmarais, provincial representative for Perfect Sales Plan, also met students at Reynoolds Junior secondary.

At both Esquimalt and Reynolds, Longmore said, there were violations of the board's six-point policy on commercial enterprises adopted in Dec., 1968:

Door-to-door canvassing is not allowed;

If approved, a sales program should be confined to a two-week period, and should run concurrently in schools that adopt it;

Company representatives must not address students in an assembly;

Planning the program should be done outside regular school hours;

Student participation must be voluntary;

Competitions and prizes must not be used to stimulate student participation.

Longmore said Desmarais addressed students during school hours at both schools and at Reynolds class prizes including "the weight of the teacher in chocolate" were offered.

WARNED STUDENTS

Any sales program is subject to approval by the district superintendent. Longmore said he requested a written outline from Desmarais earlier this year, but never received one.

When he finally met the sales representative last week he said Desmarais told him he "didn't understand" the programs at Reynolds and Esquimalt.

TEMPLE
. . . violated policy

The program at Reynolds has been curtailed. At Esquimalt, Principal Temple said, residents who want to buy subscriptions are being urged to phone the school so that students can visit them in the evening.

Students have sold subscriptions through Perfect Sales Plan for several years, but not on a door-to-door basis. Last year they made $3,000 by selling to members of their own families and to friends.

WARNED STUDENTS

"I knew of the rules and I warned the students of this," Temple said, "but we got the impression from Mr. Desmarais that the school board would look the other way."

The students are trying to raise $14,000 to complete the school's $33,000 track.

In previous years they raised $8,000, the school board contributed $5,000 and the municipality contributed $6,000.

Students learned earlier that Esquimalt residents pay between $15,000 and $20,000 annually for magazines, and decided to channel that amount through their sales program.

The company agreed to pay them 40 per cent of revenue, up five per cent from the usual 35. Temple said adverse publicity has had the effect of dampening enthusiasm of the 700 students involved in the program.

Tonight the students will put on a western variety show, a minor part of Project 70. They will also hold a city-wide car wash at the end of the month.

THIRD IN SIX DAYS

Another Driver Killed In Colwood District

A Langford man was killed in a single-car accident west of Colwood Tuesday night, the third area road death in six days.

Dead is Charles Glover Davis, 58, of 2626 Wentwich, a widower retired from the navy and the Canadian Corps of Commissionaires.

Colwood RCMP said his car ran off Sooke Road at Fulton Road, snapping off a traffic sign and flipped on its side. He was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Six people are in St. Joseph's Hospital following a two-car crash on the Trans-Canada Highway near Goldstream Park Monday night.

Mrs. Cynthia Bannerman of Courtenay is in poor condition with head and abdominal injuries. She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Roy, who suffered chest injuries and a fractured arm and is in fair condition. They are both teachers.

Driver of the other car, Richard Barker of 592 Ledsham in Colwood, is in good condition with hip injuries.

EXTENSIVE DAMAGE

Also injured were Valerie McNeil, 1279 Montrose, in good condition with facial, arm and leg cuts; Roy Maher, 51 Cadillac, in fair condition with chest injuries, and Theresa Chatten, 2232 Windsor Rd. in Oak Bay, in fair condition with head injuries.

RCMP at Colwood said the head-on crash caused extensive damage to both cars.

LS Norman Clifford Sims, 28, died last Wednesday when his car hit a rock outcrop alongside the Trans-Canada Highway near the Thetis Lake overpass.

RUPTURED KIDNEY

And coroner Edmond St. Jorre ruled Monday that Ross Rickman, 38, of Colwood was to blame for his own death in a head-on crash on Sooke Road Saturday.

Rickman was in the wrong lane, the coroner said. Death was caused by a ruptured kidney.

St. Jorre said today he has ordered a post mortem exam in the Davis death and will conduct an inquiry rather than an inquest.

Davis is survived by a brother and sister in Winnipeg and a daughter at Neah Bay, Wash.

Half His Dream Left in Ashes

By REG SILVESTER

Albert Yuen was slogging around in the mud this morning, slightly dismayed but not crushed by the sight of half of his luxury apartment complex in ashes.

His million-dollar project in Sidney was to open in January, but a fire early Tuesday morning set that back. He doesn't know yet how long or how much, and he's not sure to what extent his loss is covered by insurance.

This morning, at the site on shoal Harbor, near Resthaven Hospital, he met RCMP and a man from the fire marshall's office investigating "every possibility" in connection with the fire.

Yuen said the fire was a blow but not big enough to stop his beginning again.

TWIN COMPLEX

"If you have half a house built, you have to rebuild the other half. This is a twin complex."

The remaining twin is scorched, but whole. It's a four-storey 42-unit apartment building with deep, arched balconies.

All that's left of the burned-out building is a tottering wall of concrete blocks and a pile of 42 twisted and scorched bathtubs that had been taken into the building the day of the fire.

Hugh Loney, chief of the Sidney and North Saanich volunteer fire department, said the building was engulfed in flame when they got there at 12:26 a.m. Tuesday.

Their job then was to prevent spreading.

"He was fortunate he didn't lose both buildings," Loney said.

A small house, which Yuen had bought and will remove to landscape the apartment site, was slightly burned. It was not occupied.

At another nearby house, fibreglass awnings melted.

Central Saanich sent 10 fire-fighting reinforcements in two trucks to help the 20 men from Sidney and their three trucks.

WATCHMAN HIRED

RCMP in Sidney say there have been complaints of vandalism in the past from the construction site, and that the company had hired a night watchman. He was on duty the night of the fire, police say.

Yuen said his apartments will rent for between $130 and $185 when the building is completed and include mooring for tenants' boats at a marina he is building on the harbor.

Sore Throats Top Diseases

Sixty-five cases of communicable diseases were reported during October by the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health on southern Vancouver Island and in the Gulf Islands.

Leading disease was streptococcal sore throat with 29 cases, followed by chicken pox (11) and salmonella (9). There were eight cases of infectious hepatitis, four of rubella, three of measles and one of mumps.

Most of the cases—46—were withing the Greater Victoria School District—Victoria, southern Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt.

Vet Relives War With Punch

"Are you trying to start another war?" Judge William Ostler asked a Canadian ex-serviceman in court today.

"I don't remember anything about it, Your Honor," answered Frederick Schulz, 55, of 3159 Shelbourne.

He was fined $50 for causing a disturbance outside the Britannia Branch, Royal Canadian Legion, around 10:15 p.m. on Remembrance Day and threatening to knock the doorman's head off.

Police said Schulz attempted to provoke fights with several people in the Britannia branch and when other veterans tried to assist him from the premises, he shouted abuse at them.

"It seems you almost started a war," said Judge Ostler.

Schulz said the trouble started when two sailors celebrating Remembrance Day called him out to the washroom and started a fight.

"That was the start of the trouble," he said. "I don't remember anything after that."

UNITED APPEAL INCHES TOWARDS OBJECTIVE

The United Red Feather-Red Cross Appeal continues inching towards its $694,000 objective.

Today's total is $545,000 or 78 per cent of the goal.

Officials had hoped to have been able to wrap up the campaign Monday but the date was extended in the last two weeks to allow volunteers to recheck areas that are far from their projected donations.

The 1968 campaign ended $40,000 short of its $655,000 goal.

Arthur Mayse . . .

THIS IS YOUTH APPRECIATION Week, and it's high time we got around to it. But let me ask a question of the powers who lay on such festivals.

When are they going to declare a Middle-Age Appreciation Week?

We in that age-group are the unsung heroes of the race, even though the fact is apparent only to us. We hold the sky suspended, not to mention the national economy.

Because we get more knocks than boosts, we tend to be somewhat humble, and even though the fact may not be fully apparent, more than a little unsure of ourselves. We are whistlers, and occasionally brayers, in the dark.

★

The aged patronize us. So do the young, when not raking strips off our long-suffering hides for letting the world get into a mess.

('Look at the bomb. Look at pollution, poverty, and the housing situation, also Vietnam and Biafra! How could you let these things happen?')

To the young, we are old, but the oldsters look on us as youngsters with everything still to learn. We can't win and we dare not lose, because without us, the deluge.

★

We're not crying into our beer, mind, and even though we aren't really likely to set the world right, we'll blunder along as best we may until present youth arrives at middle-age and the hot seat.

Still, I feel we should have a week—or, come to think of it, a day would suffice—of being appreciated by young and old alike.

Perhaps we don't deserve it, but Lord, it would be nice!

HERE'S A LETTER FROM Nelson Dewey, Box 631, Sidney, who suggests that if the passenger train appears to be obsolete, it is only because the railway lines are doing their determined best to foster this impression.

"It's my meagre understanding," he writes in part, "that the railroads were given vast amounts of land throughout North American in return for providing freight and passenger service. They made more money by shipping freight, and decided to get out of the less profitable passenger business by following the theory, 'If you ignore it, maybe it'll go away'."

★

Dewey tells of a family trip from Los Angeles that involved several train changes, with waits of from 30 minutes to two hours between each. Then he zeroes in on the E & N as another example of railway reluctance to make passenger train travel the first class experience it could be.

"But, do the railroads want to make the effort?" he demands. "Just take another look at the Esquimalt & Nanaimo 'passenger terminal' (and I use the words advisedly) for the answer. I had to get out of my car and peer into the closed-up building, then decipher a faded 'schedule' chalked on a piece of blackboard next to the tracks before I discovered what that building was!

★

"I later read that there was a passenger service to Nanaimo—in the newspaper—but remembering the 'terminal,' I decided I would never take my family into such a run-down place. I'd fear for our lives, if not from rats, then from its collapsing upon us."

His theory: that apealing, well-advertised and reasonably priced railway passenger service might very well show a profit.

I'd like to believe so, but remain skeptical. I think it would also be necessary for passenger trains to travel from here to there at jet speed.

We'll keep this discussion open. Any other opinions?

MILES FOR MILLIONS preparations are booning along, and rain or shine or merely grey, a mighty army of marchers will be hoofing a 25-mile route measured from the registration point at Mile Zero, where Douglas meets Dallas.

I'm told, though, that one acute need still needs filling. This is for more volunteers to pass the marchers through the checking stations strung along the course.

★

If you don't mean to undertake the walk, here's a chance to get in on the action.

For anyone interested in helping out, the numbers to call are 477-1863 or 477-1864.

Move fast on this one, because Saturday's the day, and it's coming up lickety-split.

TERRITORIES' CENTENNIAL

North Pole Gets New Look

By JIM OSBORNE

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The North Pole will get a paint job of brilliant orange for the Northwest Territories Centennial next year.

A veteran bush pilot and a companion will fly to the pole to redecorate a pie-shaped tract of polar ice which is Canada's most northerly square mile.

The unofficial project has received moral — but not financial — support from the N.W.T. centennial directorate, which has agreed to keep secret the names of the two men until the project is completed.

The two will fly to the pole at an undisclosed time during 1970 celebrations to:

—Paint a section of the ice adjacent to the pole with "international orange," a paint which is visible under 24 inches of snow;

—Stake the world's first mineral claim at the North Pole, and,

—Plant a 100-foot aluminum pole, with a candy-stripe paint job resembling the Santa Claus legend, from which they will fly the N.W.T. official flag.

Pictures of the results will be displayed at Expo 70 in Osaka, Japan, next year.

TransAir of Winnipeg, in a companion centennial project, plans a special flight to photograph the redecorated North Pole en route to Osaka.

Jim Whelly, general manager of the N.W.T. centennial centre, said most of about 200 official projects are more local or regional, with events like dogsled competitions and power toboggan races or Indian-Eskimo arts festivals.

Most projects are organized and partly financed by about 75 communities, ranging in size from the 12 residents of Fort Resolution, on the south shore of Great Slave Lake, to Yellowknife's population of about 6,000.

Fort Resolution plans to take part in the Northern Community Adoption Program, one of dozens of government-sponsored projects—in this case an exchange of residents with a community in southern Canada and proposes to participate in two canoe races.

One is the government-organized 1,200-mile canoe race down the mile-wide Mackenzie River to the Arctic Ocean, billed as the longest marathon canoe race in the world.

It will commemorate the original trip by explorer Sir Alexander Mackenzie, and behind it will come a centennial flotilla of boats as diverse as cruisers and kayaks.

Some communities like Fort Simpson have more than a dozen projects and events. They include collections of N.W.T. art and folklore, and a project of town beautification to preserve Fort Simpson's claim as "the garden of the North."

Lists of centennial projects and events include names like Pangnirtung and Igloolik, Grise Fiord and Gjoa Haven, or Resolate Bay.

Voyageur Eric Morse will lead 11 men on a canoe trek from Great Slave Lake to Coppermine, on the central Arctic coast 500 miles north of Yellowknife.

They will re-enact a voyage by Sir John Franklin in 1819-22 from old Fort Providence to Coppermine, in which a mutiny led to Franklin's death a short time later in the Arctic.

PROTECT CAIRNS

Mr. Whelly said other projects are designed to record and preserve history, including cairns built 100 years ago and more, but found only recently.

He said there is ample reason to believe the trackless Arctic contains numerous cairns. Others have been robbed by souvenir-hunters and their contents traced to private collections, mostly outside Canada.

The $615,000 celebration essentially is internal: a chance for the N.W.T.'s 32,000 residents to learn about the 1,300,000 square miles they inhabit. Two-thirds of the population is Indian or Eskimo, most of whom have little knowledge beyond their home regions.

Mr. Whelly said the Centennial will provide a structure to build from, based on 300 years of white settlement and a history of Indian-Eskimo habitation believed to go back 10,000 years.

Victim Of Their Hospitality

TORONTO (CP) — "Please handle the exhibits" reads the invitation to 1,500 school children who tour the Ontario Science Centre every day of the week. The kids have taken the message to heart.

Officials at the new, $30,000,000 push-button playground may have fallen victim to their own hospitality.

The centre opened here Sept. 27, and little more than a month later many of the buttons wouldn't push, three of eight electronic calculators were being repaired, a foam-making machine wouldn't foam and a conveyor would not convey.

"They're simply the result of enthusiasm," says William Castledine, chief of the electronics division of the centre and the man in charge of attempted child-proofing.

He says some of the damage is inevitable. "Few cases resulted from wilful damage" but some of it was surprising, he says.

Three microphones with "stout" screws came unfastened. So did the welded shields that protect the screws.

Two of 14 technicians make repairs daily, Mr. Castledine says.

"It takes one man with outstretched arms and an even temperament to keep kids back while another fixes."

No estimate of the damage done has been made but officials say large crowds—up to 10,000 on the weekends—have helped the centre take in between $15,000 and $20,000 weekly and keep "well within" its budget.

British Pairing Joins Pro Ranks

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Mark Cox and Graham Stillwell, England's top two players and the heart of Britain's Davis Cup team, have signed professional contracts with World Championship Tennis, Inc.

Mike Davies, executive director of World Championship Tennis said the two would begin play on the pro circuit in 1970.

Seal Ban Called Misleading

NEW YORK (CP) — The Friends of Animals, a New York humane organization, said Monday the Canadian government had issued a misleading statement when it said it would "ban the killing of baby seals in 1970."

The organization said the new Canadian rulings on the East Coast hunt, in which no seal pups can be killed until they are at least three weeks old, would "merely . . . postpone the slaughter for about two weeks."

"And this delay will apply only to the Gulf of St. Lawrence," the organization said in a statement. "Along hundreds of miles of the Labrador front, Canadian and Norwegian hunters will be free to kill seals of any age, including newborn pups."
